ABOUT THE MIAA

The Mid-America Intercollegiate Athletics Association, a 14-member conference of NCAA Division II institutions in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska, was first organized in 1912 as the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletics Association.

Over the past 25 years, the league has undergone several changes, highlighted by increased participation in national championships.

The MIAA has gained the reputation of being one of the top NCAA Division II conferences in the nation. MIAA student-athletes have won 28 national team championships and, since 1964, more than 196 individual national titles.

The MIAA will conduct conference championships in 13 men's and nine women's sports in 2014-15. Men's championships include football, cross country, basketball, indoor and outdoor track & field, baseball, soccer, tennis, wrestling and golf. Women's champions are determined in volleyball, soccer, cross country, basketball, indoor and outdoor track and field, softball, golf and tennis.

MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM

Kansas City's historic Municipal Auditorium, an art deco wonder, occupies the square block bounded by 13th, 14th, Wyandotte and Central streets in downtown Kansas City.

The auditorium opened in 1936 and cost $6.5 million. It was the largest of a group of public improvements constructed under a "10-year plan" for which Kansas City voters approved a $52 million bond issue in 1931. The bonds were supplemented by a federal Public Works Administration grant.

The auditorium was designed to accommodate the broadest possible range of events – conventions, athletic events, exhibitions, industrial shows, concerts, plays or lectures, big or small. It has been the scene of everything from political conventions and NCAA basketball championships to philharmonic performances and circuses.

Literature from the time of its opening, the ceremony of which U.S. President Franklin Delano Roosevelt spoke, noted that no expense was spared on the interior decor and accommodations. Color schemes, lighting, furniture, artwork and a wealth of art deco design elements were carefully chosen to give it a finished, even lavish appearance.

The building includes three large spaces: a multipurpose arena, the Music Hall, and the Exhibition Hall below the arena. An elegant little ballroom, known as the Little Theater, adds to the amenities. Each space is easily accessible through its own lobby, complete with coat-check room, box office and marquee. Events can be held in each of these large facilities simultaneously, without conflict.

The arena has seating for 9,827 people. It has a 92-foot ceiling – high enough for a trapeze artist – and a 24,000-square-foot floor built of oak two-by-fours strong enough to support an elephant (which it has).

Although the arena remains nearly the same structurally as it was in 1936, improvements have been made in recent years.

An electronic message center was installed in January 1988 as part of a $2 million scoreboard package with Kemper Arena; all permanent seats have been replaced; and new lighting was installed in 1990. Prior to the 1998-99 season video boards at either end of the arena were added. New matrix scoreboards were placed in the 2001-02 season.

In 2004-05, all of the lower level chairs were replaced, the loge and balcony seats were reupholstered, and the upper wall was refurbished. A new basketball floor was purchased for the 2006-07 season.

All the changes have made Municipal one of the finest basketball venues in the Midwest.

Besides the MIAA Championships, Municipal is the home for the NAIA Division I Men's Basketball Championship (which returned in 2002 after an absence from the building since 1975).

It is the former home of UMKC basketball, and the NAIA also used Municipal for its indoor track national championships for several years.

The Big 12 Conference conducted its women's basketball championship from its inception through the 2002 season, and returned in 2008. Its predecessor, the Big Eight Conference, held an annual holiday men's basketball tournament at Municipal for many years, as well as the loop's annual indoor track championships.

Municipal also holds the record for most NCAA Division I men's basketball championships hosted by one venue (nine). The NCAA conducted a Division I women's basketball regional at Municipal in 2005.

Besides hosting many college events, Municipal was the home for several professional sports franchises which came to Kansas City – starting in 1947 with the Kansas City Blues of the short-lived National Professional Basketball League.

The Kansas City Steers of the American Basketball League used the facility from 1961-1963. The Steers were ABL runner-up in 1961-62, losing to the Cleveland Pipers (owned by a young George Steinbrenner) in the finals, and declared champions in 1962-63 when the league folded, finishing 22-9.

The Auditorium was one of the homes (along with the Omaha Civic Auditorium) of the National Basketball Association's Kansas City-Omaha Kings, when the Cincinnati Royals moved west in 1972. As the Kansas City Kings, the franchise moved temporarily from its new Kemper Arena digs back to Municipal in 1979, while Kemper was being repaired following a collapse of the roof during a June rain and wind storm.

The Continental Basketball Association's Kansas City Sizzlers played the 1985-86 season at Municipal before moving to Topeka, and the Kansas City Mustangs of the Women's Basketball Association were home at the Auditorium for the 1995 season.

Soccer also has been played at the facility, as the Kansas City Attack moved from Atlanta to Municipal for the 1991-92 National Professional Soccer League season.

Major improvements were made prior to the 2014 tournament with the addition of new video boards, a video scorers table and others cosmetic improvements to the building.

Missouri Southern Men Capture Tournament Title

By Josh Slaughter

Kansas City, Mo. – Missouri Southern shot .574 from the field as they claimed their first MIAA Tournament Championship since 2000. The Lions hit 10 three-pointers and got 28 points from their bench in the 84-72 victory over Central Oklahoma claiming the MIAA's automatic bid into the NCAA Tournament.

Missouri Southern jumped out to an early 10-2 advantage, but Central Oklahoma answered and two teams played back and fourth basketball for most of the rest of the half. UCO got a three-pointer with three seconds to go in the half to take a one point lead into the break. MSSU would then open the second half on a 15-4 run and would not look back.

For the Lions Marquis Addison led the way with 21 points earning a spot on the All-Tournament team. Tournament Most Outstanding Player Slim Magee had 15 points and nine rebounds while Jordan Talbert added seven assists. For the Bronchos All-Tournament team member Josh Gibbs had 24 points and pulled down nine rebounds. Aaron Anderson finished with 19 points and Phillip Brown added 15 points on the afternoon.

Notes: Missouri Southern earns their third MIAA title and just the fifth ever won by the #3 seed. . .
