

DUWOP Policy

This era of digital file-sharing poses a challenge for our special community. Many of us give ourselves permission while at Eliot to try new things, stretch in new directions, risk unfamiliar behaviors. This is one of the joys of what we create together.

At the same time, not all of us are comfortable sharing these brave acts beyond Eliot. And posting of photos and videos can, easily and inadvertently, result in embarrassment or other negative consequences. Reflecting on a previous camp theme: we get to tell our own stories ... we let our friends tell their own stories.

In an attempt to balance this need for privacy with the desire for continued fun and connection, Eliot has instituted a policy about image sharing. This is: DUWOP – Don't Upload With-Out Permission. Before posting a photo or video of any camper to the Internet (or transmitting it via cellphone), you must first obtain permission from the subject; for those under 18 years of age, you must obtain permission from the parents.
