Santa Monica automotive entrepreneur honored in 2023 ASU Sun Devil 100 awards

SCOTT SNOWDEN
SMPD Staff Writer

Santa Monica has developed a thriving automotive industry with repair shops and dealerships throughout the city and the industry has matured to the point where its starting to procreate.

Santa Monica resident Kevin Emamian, owner of The Haus automotive repair center, is a second generation gear-head who learned his trade at another popular car business before branching out to his own successful business.

The Haus is a certified independent Mini Cooper and BMW repair shop located at 2621 Pico Blvd — with a second location at 14850 Calvert St in Sherman Oaks — and if you’re the proud owner of one of those diminutive icons of design, emblematic of British yesteryear, then you’ll no doubt already be familiar with The Haus. In fact, the name means “house” in German, entirely appropriate since BMW bought and rebooted the Mini brand in 2000.

Emamian started his hop after being mentored by another successful automotive entrepreneur from the area, LAcarGUY’s CEO Mike Sullivan. Celebrating its seventh location in Santa Monica, the LAcarGUY dealership has announced that the latest outlet will be the country’s first standalone showroom focused specifically on Hyundai’s all electric brand, called the Ioniq.

From the Civil War to today’s mattress sales, Memorial Day is full of contradiction

BEN FINLEY

Memorial Day is supposed to be about mourning the nation’s fallen service members, but it’s come to anchor the unofficial start of summer and a long weekend of discounts on anything from mattresses to lawn mowers.

"We don’t stop playing because we grow old; we grow old because we stop playing."
— George Bernard Shaw

But for Manuel Castañeda Jr., 58, the day will be a quiet one in Durand, Illinois, outside Rockford. He lost his father, a U.S. Marine who served in Vietnam, in an accident in California while training other Marines in 1966.

"Memorial Day is very personal," said Castañeda, who also served in the Marines and Army National Guard, from which he knew men who died in combat. "It isn't just the specials. It isn't just a barbecue.

But he tries not to judge others who spend the holiday differently: "How can I expect them to understand the depth of what I feel when they haven't experienced anything like that?"

"What happened in Charleston does have the right to claim to be first, if that matters," Blight told The Associated Press in 2011.

In 2021, a retired U.S. Army lieutenant colonel cited the story in a Memorial Day speech in Hudson, Ohio. The ceremony’s organizers turned off his microphone because they said it wasn’t relevant to honoring the city’s veterans. The event’s organizers later resigned.

HAS MEMORIAL DAY ALWAYS BEEN A SOURCE OF CONTENTION?

"Someone has always lamented the holiday's drift from its original meaning. As early as 1869, The New York Times wrote that the holiday could become "sacriligious" and no longer "sacred" if it focuses more on pomp, dinners and oratory.

In 1871, abolitionist Frederick Douglass feared Americans were forgetting the Civil War's impetus — slavery — when he gave a Decoration Day speech at Arlington National Cemetery.

"We must never forget that the loyal soldiers who rest beneath this sod flung themselves between the nation and the nation's destroyers," Douglass said.

His concerns were well-founded, said Ben Railton, a professor of English and American studies at Fitchburg State University in Massachusetts. Even though roughly 180,000 Black men served in the Union Army, the holiday in many communities would essentially become "white Memorial Day," especially after the rise of the Jim Crow South, Railton said.

Meanwhile, how the day was spent — at least by the nation's elected officials — could draw scrutiny for years after the Civil War. In the 1880s, then-President Grover Cleveland was said to have gone fishing — and "people were appalled," said Matthew Dennis, an

WHAT IS THE OFFICIAL PURPOSE OF MEMORIAL DAY?

"It's a day of reflection and remembrance of those who died while serving in the U.S. military, according to the Congressional Research Service. The holiday is observed in part by the National Moment of Remembrance, which encourages all Americans to pause at 3 p.m. for a moment of silence.

WHAT ARE THE HOLIDAY’S ORIGINS?

The holiday stems from the American Civil War, which killed more than 600,000 service members — both Union and Confederate — between 1861 and 1865.

There's little controversy over the first national observance of what was then called Decoration Day. It occurred May 30, 1868, after an organization of Union veterans called for decorating war graves with flowers, which were in bloom.

The practice was already widespread on a local level. Waterloo, New York, began a formal observance on May 5, 1866, and was later proclaimed to be the holiday's birthplace.

Yet Boalsburg, Pennsylvania, traced its first observance to October 1864, according to the Library of Congress. And women in some Confederate states were decorating graves before the war's end.

But David Blight, a Yale history professor, points to May 1, 1865, when as many as 10,000 people, many of them Black, held a parade, heard speeches and dedicated the graves of Union dead in Charleston, South Carolina.

A total of 267 Union troops had died at a Confederate prison and were buried in a mass grave. After the war, members of Black churches buried them in individual graves.

California’s epic melting snowpack means cold, deadly torrents ahead of Memorial Day weekend

HAVEN DALEY AND JOHN ANTCZAK
Associated Press

California rivers fed by this winter’s massive Sierra Nevada snowpack have been turned into deadly torrents, drawing warnings from public safety officials ahead of the Memorial Day weekend’s traditional start of outdoor summer recreation.

At least seven people, including two children, have died or gone missing this spring in the grasp of powerful rivers plunging down from California’s towering mountain range, and there have been numerous rescues.

“This year we’re seeing higher water, faster water and colder water,” said Capt. Justin Sylvia, a fire spokesperson in Sacramento, which is crossed by the American River.

Sacramento has already had 20 water rescues this year, nearly as many as all of 2022, Sylvia said Tuesday as crews practiced swift-water rescues on the lower American River near its confluence with the Sacramento River.

Memorial Day weekend is typically one of the busiest, if not the busiest, times of the year, and ‘floating down the American River is like a quintessential Sacramento activity,’ said Ken Casparis, spokesperson for Sacramento County regional parks.

‘Probably thousands of people use the river for floating or swimming or rafting, what have you, and this weekend conditions are shaping up to be pretty dangerous, so we have been urging people to stay off the river,’ he said.

Even just wading along the shore is being discouraged, said Casparis, who was hoping for chilly weather to discourage river use. Forecasters predicted mild weather in the interior of Northern California except for chances of thunderstorms in the mountains.

With Californians expected to flock to the outdoors, the Governor’s Office of Emergency Services on Thursday issued a broad caution about conditions they might encounter, including fast-moving water, following months of severe weather.

An extraordinary series of storms this past winter buried the Sierra range in deep snow that is now melting, swelling Central Valley rivers that just months ago were running low because of years of extreme drought.

Reservoirs that store water and provide flood control must release high flows into rivers to maintain room for incoming runoff. That, in turn, changes rivers. Sandbars and ledges may become steep drop-offs and lead to an unexpected plunge into cold water.

“It can really give a shock to the body,” said Daniel Bowers, Sacramento city’s director of emergency management. Experts say muscle control can be lost in minutes.

The recent tragedies include an 8-year-old girl and her 4-year-old brother, who were swept away by the Kings River on Sunday.

The girl’s body was found that afternoon and the boy’s body was found nearly 2 miles (3.2 kilometers) downstream on Monday, the Fresno County Sheriff’s Office said.

The fatal accident occurred even though both the Kings and San Joaquin Rivers have been ordered closed to recreational users since March 14.

In the Sierra northeast of Sacramento, a man was swept away by the American River on April 29, two days after Placer County authorities first issued warnings. His body was found Friday in a lake miles away. Another man who vanished in the river on Mother’s Day remains missing.

Placer County’s messaging about the risk is blunt. “If the public doesn’t listen to our warnings this year, people are going to die, more people than we’ve seen over the last few years,” sheriff’s Sgt. Kevin Griffiths says in a public service announcement video.

The American River has not been closed to recreation in Sacramento but Bowers, the emergency management official, urged all river users to wear life jackets, even if they’re using another flotation device.

American River Raft Rentals of suburban Rancho Cordova has temporarily suspended its operations on the lower segment of the river because the rate of flow is too high, co-owner Kent Hansen said Thursday.

“We definitely understand that this is part of the business and that’s why we would never put profits over safety,” Hansen said. “We’re hoping that all of our guests will choose a safe time to go soon when water flows get back to a normal, raftable flow.”

Sylvia, the fire captain, emphasized that people should immediately call 911 if someone gets in trouble in the water.

“If you have a rap or if you have a life jacket that you can throw to them, do that, but do not go in the water after them because you will become a second victim,” he said.

In Yosemite National Park, waterfalls have been thundering with runoff bound for the Merced River. The park has advised visitors to keep their distance from all waterways and stay off slick rocks.

“We shouldn’t have to say it, but do not try to wade, swim, or float on any rivers or creeks,” the park said via Facebook.

With summer approaching, the Kern County Sheriff’s Office on Friday planned to carry out a ritual intended to warn people about the southern Sierra’s notorious Kern River, which country legend Merle Haggard called “a mean piece of water” in his song “Kern River.”

A sign at the mouth of the Kern River Canyon, which tallies the number of lives lost in the river since 1968, is updated each spring to add deaths that occurred over the previous 12 months. This year, the total was to be raised from 317 to 325.

eminent history professor at the University of Oregon. By 1911, the Indianapolis 500 held its inaugural race on May 30, drawing 85,000 spectators. A report from The Associated Press made no mention of the holiday — or any controversy.

HOW HAS MEMORIAL DAY CHANGED?

Dennis said Memorial Day’s potency diminished somewhat with the addition of Armistice Day, which marked World War I’s end on Nov. 11, 1918. Armistice Day became a national holiday by 1938 and was renamed Veterans Day in 1954. An act of Congress changed Memorial Day from every May 30th to the last Monday in May in 1971. Dennis said the creation of the three-day weekend recognized that Memorial Day had long been transformed into a more generic remembrance of the dead, as well as a day of leisure.

In 1972, Time Magazine said the holiday had become “a three-day nationwide hootenanny that seems to have lost much of its original purpose.”

WHY IS MEMORIAL DAY TIED TO SALES AND TRAVEL?

Even in the 19th century, grave ceremonies were followed by leisure activities such as picnicking and foot races, Dennis said.

The holiday also evolved alongside baseball and the automobile, the five-day work week and summer vacation, according to the 2002 book, “A History of Memorial Day: Unity, Discord and the Pursuit of Happiness.”

In the mid-20th century, a small number of businesses began to open defiantly on the holiday.

Once the holiday moved to Monday, “the traditional barriers against doing business began to crumble,” authors Richard Harmond and Thomas Curran wrote.

These days, Memorial Day sales and traveling are deeply woven into the nation’s muscle memory. This weekend, 2.7 million more people will travel for the unofficial start of summer compared to last year — despite inflation, according to AAA.

The Transportation Security Administration said it screened 2.66 million people at airport checkpoints on Thursday, about 2,500 more than last Friday, and the highest number since the Sunday after Thanksgiving in 2019. The Federal Aviation Administration had predicted that Thursday would be the busiest travel day of the holiday period, with more than 51,000 airline flights.

Meanwhile, Jason Redman, 48, a retired Navy SEAL who fought in Iraq and Afghanistan, said he’ll be thinking of friends he’s lost. Thirty names are tattooed on his arm “for every guy that I personally knew that died.”

He wants Americans to remember the fallen — but also to enjoy themselves, knowing lives were sacrificed to forge the holiday.

1,683 calls (7%), officers arrested an additional 259 individuals (for a total of 662), a 64% increase.

Crime trends have see-sawed in recent years. There were 1,212 Part 1 crimes in 2019. That dropped by 25 percent in 2020 due to pandemic era closures of public spaces. Serious crimes rebounded to 1,126 incidents in 2021 and then dropped to 1,028 last year before increasing this year to 1,177.

Part 2 crimes trends have been more predictable. Starting with a high of 1,065 incidents in the first quarter of 2019, Part 2 crimes declined to 937 in 2020 and 566 in 2021 before starting to climb last year to 637 and then 756 this year.

The trends for the first three months of this year are on par with overall trends. Part 1 crimes increased by 10 percent over the entirety of 2022 and Part 2 crimes increased by 21 percent that year.

For the past several years, Southern California cities across the board have seen year over year increases in Part I and Part II crimes as the economy, tourism and other factors are returning to pre-pandemic levels.

In February of this year in a presentation to City Council, Police Chief Ramon Batista said that some of the increases have been caused by more proactive enforcement by officers specifically targeting the busier downtown areas and making more arrests than prior years. He also said that persistent staffing shortfalls, an increase in the number of incidents related to homelessness, and aging technology all contributed to the overall trend.

While SMPD has been hiring officers at a steady rate, injuries and retirements have prevented the department from reaching its budgeted maximum, which is around 220 sworn officers. Those vacancies have overlapped with the city’s homelessness crisis as the department would like to expand its homelessness outreach programs. According to Batista, the department is moving as quickly as possible to hire new staff with an expectation that its issues will be resolved well before the expected flood of visitors tied to the 2028 Olympic Games in Los Angeles.

On the technology front, the department has had significant success with its drone program and is beginning to adopt new license plate readers, but Chief Batista said they still need to update the department’s crime mapping technology and find new systems to help officers review crime trends more quickly.

Lt. Erika Aklufi said the department has made changes to its patrol deployment to target resources more efficiently and she said there is evidence that joint operations with patrol officers and special units like Downtown Services and DART are starting to bear fruit.

“We were able to positively impact the crimes downtown with those targeted patrols and while the numbers are up, the rate of growth has slowed in the months after that report was generated. We believe we will continue to see success with these operations over the next quarter,” she said.

necessary to clean the exhaust before it exits the vehicle.

A catalytic converter can be worth anywhere from $50 to $1,200 depending on the amount of precious metal inside. The cost to repair the theft to the car owner can be several thousand dollars depending on the individual model.

Nationwide, Carfax estimates as many as 153,000 converters were stolen last year. The company tracked how many were being replaced each year, not just how many were reported stolen, and said they accounted for legitimate repairs.

Prior to the meeting, Santa Monica had no law specifically targeting possession of stolen converters. If police officers found a suspect in possession of the parts, they were unable to charge them with theft unless they could positively identify a victim associated with the individual part.

SMPD Detective Martin Hardy and Sergeant Afonso Lozano said catalytic converters have become a prime target for thieves due to the difficulty in detecting the theft at the time it occurs and the lack of consequences for possession without proof of ownership.

“We’re averaging about two catalytic converters a night. They’re not sophisticated criminals,” said Sgt. Lozano. “They’re very easy to do. Our workers, our residents, visitors are constantly being victimized by this crime and we believe that by passing of this ordinance, we can increase penalties. And if the city could increase penalties.

During the discussion, council members acknowledged the challenges in combating catalytic converter thefts and expressed support for the proposed ordinance. They recognized the need to provide law enforcement with the means to address this issue effectively.

Councilman Oscar de la Torre asked what could be done to stop the sale of the stolen parts and if the city could increase penalties.

“I started realizing like, okay, somebody’s buying these catalytic converters, right. So the question for me is, how do we stop it at that end?”

The officers said SMPD can and does conduct long-term investigations into the buyers of stolen parts but those are complicated and the ability to charge criminals with a crime at the time of that first contact is necessary to start those investigations.

Staff said the city charter limits the fees the city can increase penalties without a change to the charter.

The class of 2023 honorees were unveiled at a reception on April 27 at the massive Mullet Arena in Tempe, Arizona, but all recipients of the award will also be celebrated on September 9, once again at the Sun Devil Football Stadium before the Sun Devils take on Oklahoma State. The criteria to qualify for the awards program involves three tiers, which are broken down by revenues of $250,000–$1.999 million, $2 million–$9.999 million and $10 million–plus, the first one of which is the category Emamian’s business falls into.

SMC’s Drescher Planetarium Continues Free, Live Virtual Shows in June

Santa Monica College’s John Drescher Planetarium continues its Friday evening events in June 2023 with free, live virtual shows presented online at smc.edu/planetarium. This month’s friendly presentations will cover dark matter, what nebulae are, deep sky exotica, women in astronomy, and rocketry history.

The Friday evening shows are at 8 p.m. and are preceded by a streamlined virtual digest of the popular Night Sky Show at 7 p.m., offering the latest news in astronomy and space exploration. The shows include the chance to chat with the planetarium lecturers and ask questions.

Planetarium lecturers are currently using the Zoom platform to present shows while the actual on-campus planetarium remains closed due to the COVID-19 pandemic. To attend the shows, the Zoom software must be installed on the viewer’s computer. A free download is available at zoom.com.

The June 2023 shows are:

- Friday, June 2, at 8 p.m. (following The Night Sky Show at 7 p.m.): “A Look at the Dark Universe” — Lecturer Sarah Vincent. Tonight’s show will work to demystify dark matter and dark energy, those mysterious components that are theorized to make up most of the mass of the universe. Free. Zoom at smc.edu/planetarium.
- Friday, June 9, at 8 p.m. (following The Night Sky Show at 7 p.m.): “Shedding Light on a Nebulous Cosmos” — Lecturer Sarah Vincent. The universe is scattered with nebulae, but what are they? Tonight’s show will take a look inside these mysterious clouds. Free. Zoom at smc.edu/planetarium.
- Friday, June 16, at 8 p.m. (following The Night Sky Show at 7 p.m.): ”Deep Sky Exotica” — Lecturer Sarah Vincent. The deep sky is filled with galaxies, star clusters, and nebulae, but the deep sky zoo also contains some truly exotic denizens like quasars, fast radio bursters, and magnetars. Tonight’s show takes a guided tour among these mysterious objects. Free. Zoom at smc.edu/planetarium.
- Friday, June 23, at 8 p.m. (following The Night Sky Show at 7 p.m.): “Women of Space Series: Women in Astronomy” — Lecturer Sarah Vincent. The Drescher Planetarium launches its new Women of Space Series this June on women who have made significant advances in the fields of astronomy and space exploration. From Caroline Herschel to Annie Jump Cannon to Andrea Ghez, there is a long list of distinguished (and often underappreciated) women who have made critical contributions to astronomical research. Free. Zoom at smc.edu/planetarium.
- Friday, June 30, at 8 p.m. (following The Night Sky Show at 7 p.m.): “A Short History of Rocketry” — Senior Lecturer Jim Mahon. Aries (March 21-April 19). You’ll tap into that multifaceted part of you that feels comfortable and confident wherever you go. It’s not because you know everything, rather, it’s because you’re respectful and inclined to observe the customs. You’re curious and will ask excellent questions.

Taurus (April 20-May 20). A naive mind may assume that everything they’re going through is unique to them. With maturity it becomes clear that this is unlikely to be the case. You’re in a position to help someone understand they are not alone.

Gemini (May 21-June 21). Your first idea may not be refined, but that doesn’t matter. The rugged notions are quite useful. You’ll have plenty of time to polish your work later, but for now, trust yourself and push on.

Cancer (June 22-July 22). Be careful about where you get your information. Beware of those who might be trying to impress you. Their statements may be overzealous. Wrong information could cost you money and time. Published words will be a more reliable resource.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22). You’ve seen plenty of projects through to fruition, so you should trust yourself when you sense things are getting off track. Regardless of your official position in the group, you can lead from wherever you are and get everything going in the right direction.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). The way you handle challenge and/or conflict keeps you spiritually and physically fit. Arguments may actually be helpful if they are short. Know when to drop it and be the first to do so. It will keep your heart light.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22). With acceptance you can live more peaceably within your own being. There’s no need to fight things like worry or fear. If these natural emotions knock on your door, invite them to show you what gifts they have to offer.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Filled with courage, you’ll gravitate toward the tough rooms where the tension is thick and the expectations are tall. The talent and opportunity are concentrated in such places and it’s exactly where you belong.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). There’s someone you love to be silly around. This safe relationship represents a level of trust built over years. For this and the many other treasures in your realm of relationships, now and to come, you count yourself as fortunate indeed.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Be your own best friend, not because others will let you down, but because they need your example to teach them what it takes to show up the way you prefer. First, you’ll celebrate you, and then they will.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Knowing how many relationships can be situational, you’re grateful for the surge of unconditional love that comes this weekend. And while it’s wonderful to be adored, it’s the love you give that most expands and strengthens your heart.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20). You tune into your environment more acutely than most. Integrating all you feel and observe requires extra energy. You’ll recharge at home, where you feel safe to process and recuperate from all you’ve experienced.

You’re humble, though exceptional. Because you do all you can with what you have, the year sends you to dazzling and unplanned places. The best part is the chemistry and kinship of excellent company. More highlights: a big bonus with multiple aspects of benefit, a remarkable healing and an unprecedented deal. Pisces and Aries adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 5, 3, 33, 39 and 16.

Sudoku

Fill in the blank cells using numbers 1 to 9. Each number can appear only once in each row, column, and 3x3 block. Use logic and process of elimination to solve the puzzle.

Long period S swell builds over top of lingering SSW swell. There should be enough directional spread between the two southerly swells for some running left corners at beachbreaks early. Points generally the best option.
