Ettore Bugatti's cars, better known as Bugatti, were a well-known French automaker that produced high-performance vehicles. Founded in 1909 in Molsheim, Alsace by Italian automotive engineer Ettore Bugatti, the company-made cars were known for great design as well as outstanding performance. Ettore's untimely death in the accident proved fatal to the Marquise because she suffered financially and there was no one to run the factory since his son Jean Bugatti had already died in 1939. Bugatti was revived in the 1990s by Italian businessman Romano Artioli as a manufacturer of high-end limited edition sports cars. Today, the name is owned by German car giant Volkswagen. The Bugatti logo is a tricolor oval figure. Sixty red dots symbolizing pearls or safety wires are embedded in a narrow white border. The word 'Bugatti', carved in white letters with black shades, lies on a red font in the middle of the logo. The emblem is complemented by a stylish EB trademark above the word, the initials of the great Ettore Bugatti, the founder of the company. The company's emblem was designed by Ettore Bugatti's father, who was a well-known artist, jewelry designer and furniture manufacturer. He considered the oval shape a perfect display of technology and elegance. The main color of the Bugatti logo is red, which of course shows extreme strength, passion and pleasure for driving. White color denotes elegance and nobility, while black shades represent excellence and courage. The Bugatti logo uses a simple typography that is bold but pleasantly balanced.
