

Look Out The Window

You gotta look out the window,
There's clouds on the horizon,

You gotta look up the forecast,
They're predicting stormy weather,

You gotta read the tea leaves,
To find out what the tea believes,

You gotta read the sundial,
Anything's a sundial if you leave it in the sun for a while

Your palm tells your future,
This line's your mansion,
This line's your fortune,
This line's your grandson,
Here's the kingdom you will rule,
And here's your swimming pool.

Life's A Pest

Life is just a pest that sits between your birth and death, No one goes untested, unmolested by this mess, known as life,
But you can find relief, for a price,
C'mon and put your hands together, now

Look to the ceiling, kneel in the feeling,
And believe in what this being you're appealing to's revealing,
They say it ain't for profit, they say no one can stop it,
And even though it's nonsense, don't it feel nice to be wanted for a change?

To be wanted ain't so strange, or dishonest,
And let's say you had to put money on it,
Wouldn't you take a safe bet?

But life is a disease that knots your spine and rots your teeth,
And when this tough plays rough, well sure enough, the game's for keeps,
You've had your fill with running round, it seems there's no one to be found,
But lo there's one true game in town, let's put our hands together now!

That's Alright

There ain't no trick to get you off my mind,
There ain't no skill to killing time,
There ain't no corner collecting no dust,
There ain't no fixture, no faucet not cultivating rust,

I scrubbed the walls, I mopped the floors,
I did the dishes, greased the hinges on the doors,
But I never did find what I been looking for,
If it turns up I know I'll recognize it for sure,

There ain't no cure, ain't no disease,
There ain't no symptoms, no sympathy,
There ain't no pill, there ain't no spell,
There ain't no better revenge than living well,

I clean my ears, I blow my nose,
I trim the nails on my fingers and toes,
But I never did find what I been looking for,
I'm trying to get by not looking anymore,

That's all there is, that's all there ever was,
That's all there's ever gonna be, and that's more than enough
That's all there is, and that's alright by me.