

ALTERNATIVES TO INCARCERATION IN LATIN AMERICA & THE CARIBBEAN

Side event at the 60th Session of the Commission on Narcotic Drugs

THURSDAY 16TH MARCH, 2:20 TO 3:10 PM
CONFERENCE ROOM M4

Drug laws and the region's untenable prison crisis are at the center of the drug policy debate in Latin America and the Caribbean. The incarceration of low-level drug offenders for long sentences has left the region's prisons bursting at the seams; the impact is not only felt by those incarcerated, but also by their families and communities. Cutting edge research by the Colectivo de Estudios Drogas y Derecho (Research Consortium on Drugs and the Law, CEDD) and the Social Science Research Council (SSRC) sheds new light on the problem and efforts to address it through alternatives to incarceration.
