With contributions from scholars immersed in the transformation of their disciplines and this most pivotal region, Middle East Studies for the New Millennium presents a comprehensive, authoritative overview of how this crucial field of academic inquiry came to be and where it is going next.

“A volume everyone in that area of study needs to read, but [also] one that every university actor concerned for the globalization of knowledge must engage.”

Zachary Lockman, author of Field Notes: The Making of Middle East Studies in the United States

This book “explores key dimensions of the field of Middle East studies, including its relationship to the traditional disciplines, its place in American higher education, and the political assaults to which it has been subjected over the years.”

Michael D. Kennedy, author of Globalizing Knowledge: Intellectuals, Universities, and Publics in Transformation
