History

Exact Editions is a digital publishing company that turns publications into dynamic, user-friendly digital editions. It was launched in 2005 by Adam Hodgkin, Daryl Rayner and Tim Bruce. The company is based in London and has offices in Hatton Garden.

Exact Editions has always operated on the principle that publications with archives and book collections are valuable and readers should, where possible, have full access to the riches that they contain. The platform is equally able to deliver subscriptions to individuals and institutions, digitise archives & collections and provide streaming solutions for publishers.
