 Local Bingo Events & Great Specials

Riverboat will treat you to a nice $8 lunch special for Father's Day, on Sunday, June 15th. Each dad and their guest will receive a $6 coupon strip. Their ad is on page 11.

Boyd Gaming, in Las Vegas, has another great $500,000 Power Bingo planned for August 24th and 25th. There will be guaranteed winners, at each of their three properties, on every game....Gold Coast, Suncoast and Sam's Town. For only $345 you'll get a 9-on for both days, food vouchers, a dauber and a souvenir. You can go online at BoydGaming.com/PowerBingo to reserve your tickets. Their ad is on page 14.

Just a reminder, Sunland Village has started a new Monday daytime game. They play at 11:30 am and start selling cards at 10 am. They are going to play every Monday thru the end of July. They will continue with their regular Thursday games. Their ad is on page 13.

At Vee Quiva, on Father's Day, all guys will get a free gift, with their buy-ins, at both the matinee and evening sessions. Thank you. Finally, someone is remembering us. Their ad on page 8.

Spend a great July 3rd and July 4th weekend at Plaza Hotel & Casino, in Las Vegas, and they will treat you to a whopping $250,000 Super Bingo. They'll have a $60,000 coverall. They'll also play 20 $1,999 regular games each day for only a $200 entry fee. Call 702-386-2318 to reserve your seat. Their ad is on page 13.

$34 million bingo operation to its most wanted list following a $10.7 million charity fraud case. The FBI is searching for Michael Lizaso Marasigan, who fled after being convicted in May 2025 of a $34 million charity bingo fraud in Guam. Marasigan ran Hafa Adai Bingo, promising funds for Shriners Hospital children's transport, but laundered $10.7M for personal use. He is a dual U.S.-Philippines citizen and was added to the Most Wanted list after violating pretrial release.

* "Newspaper bags are handy hand covers in many situations. Keep them close if you are painting, doing a DIY art project, working in the shop with sticky or greasy materials or baking and working with dough. If you are interrupted, simply slip a bag over your hands to answer the phone or door, etc. It's much quicker than washing and drying your hands, and you can go right back to it once you have dealt with the interruption." — W.A. in Oregon

* "To clean burned-on bits from your cast iron skillet, scrub with a plastic scrubie and salt as an abrasive. Dry immediately and rub with oil to keep moist." — R.T. in Ohio * Metal shower hooks can be used in the sewing basket to hold safety pins. They can be used in a jewelry box to corral costume rings as well.

* "Line the edges of a plastic shower curtain on both sides with duct tape. Then snip out a few holes through the tape edging. You can use the holes to tie the plastic stretched out between trees for a wind break or as a quick shelter from the rain. You can tie bagged sand to the corners as a car cover. Stake it to the ground under your blanket to avoid ground moisture. Lots of possibilities." — F.C. in Georgia

BROOM-HILDA

Hillbilly Bingo

In the summer we must go outside into the scorching heat to avoid frostbite from restaurant air conditioning.

—Ms. Know-It-All

Sweet, sweet June with its weddings, picnics, gardens, and flowers in full bloom. Decades ago, in our family, that meant we kids could go barefoot and wear shorts after Memorial Day. Later, as a teacher, it meant a month or two of relaxation before gearing up for another year of molding young minds. My pals and I played hide and seek after dark and chased fireflies in the fields around us. Afterward, I'd go to bed in the upstairs of our farmhouse and sweat profusely even with window fans going full blast. No air conditioning—but my family and I survived.

June is the start of family reunions and get togethers. I recently learned a cool game to play at these events. It's a variation of bingo called Hillbilly Bingo, who knows why. This version uses standard playing cards instead of bingo balls and cards and each player needs his own deck of cards. Each player shuffles his personal deck and places the top ten cards face up in front of himself. A designated caller draws cards from a master deck and announces the rank and suit (example: king of spades). A player who has that exact card in his/her face-up pile flips it face down. When a player has only one face-up card left, he/she must shout aloud Uno, meaning one card left, or Ready. Failure to do so means that player must take the next card from his deck and add it faceup to his remaining one. The first player to flip all 10 of his/her cards yells Yeehaw! Or Bingo! or Hot Damn which is my personal favorite and that player wins that round. Card decks are then reshuffled, another ten cards placed face up, and the next round begins with 8-10 rounds being the usual.

Before starting play, each participant contributes a set amount of money to build the pot with the amount depending on the crowd—but is usually five or ten dollars per player; meaning the pot can grow quite large. Before starting play, take half of the collected money for the last round and that will be the jackpot win for the final game of the last round. Divide the rest of the money by the number of games and that amount goes to the other individual round winners. This game can be played for prizes, more or less money to buy in, or just for fun with no money or prizes, but what fun is that says the gambler I am? In some versions, the caller announces the first four cards drawn as wild. If you have any of those cards (regardless of suit), you get to flip them over immediately which speeds up the game. Hillbilly Bingo will never replace the real bingo games we're used to playing, but it does have its own charm, especially if you're looking for something different to generate interaction at a family event. Just remember to alert everyone to bring a deck or two of cards so everyone who wants to participate can play.

Until next month, may Lady Luck blow you kisses as you dance out the door with dollars. Win big. If you try this game, contact me (nlpvz6172@gmail.com) and let me know how it went. Yeehaw!

Fresh Fruit Cookie Tarts

Tell your kids that they can be the "King and Queen of Tarts" when they make this gem of a dessert. The fresh fruit ingredients from your local market or fruit stand are luscious and good by themselves, but when they're combined with a cookie base, you'll have a can't-miss finale to a barbecue or outdoor get-together with friends.

These cookie fruit tarts are super simple to assemble and look "tres francais," but there's no from-scratch pastry with mini fluted rims that you have to fuss over. Instead, the easy recipe starts with good, large sugar cookies that you purchase at your bakery or grocery store.

FRESH FRUIT COOKIE TARTS
 Serves 8

- 8 large sugar cookies, or your favorite plain round cookie
- 8-ounce package of cream cheese
- 1/3 cup white or vanilla chips (find them in the baking section of your store)
- Assorted fresh fruit and berries for toppings such as blueberries, raspberries, strawberries, cherries, and sliced peaches and plums, washed and dried
- 1/4 cup currant jelly or powdered sugar (optional)

Set cookies on a work surface such as a cutting board. Place cream cheese in a medium-sized mixing bowl. In a microwave-safe dish, melt chips, spoon into cream cheese, and stir until smooth.

Spread the mixture evenly over the cookies. Let kids arrange the fresh fruit and berries in pretty designs on the top. Meanwhile, if you would like a glaze, an adult should melt the jelly in a saucepan. Cool.

Let kids drizzle or lightly brush with a pastry brush over the fruit to glaze the tarts. Or dust over each tart with powdered sugar. Arrange on a serving platter.

Variations:

— Get creative with the presentation and decorate the serving platter, or top the tarts with coconut flakes, sprigs of mint leaves, tiny blooms of edible flowers, or fresh lavender.

— Make a larger quantity of bite-sized tarts using packaged cookies such as gingersnaps.

— Instead of using cookies, make a larger single tart. Press a prepared piecrust from the refrigerated section of your market on the base and sides of a 9-inch tart pan. Prick sides and bottom. Bake according to package directions. Cool. Spread cream cheese mixture on the base, arrange fruit attractively, and brush on the glaze.

DEAR AUNT BINGO

by Bonnie Mitchell

Pull Tabs for the Fun

Dear Aunt Bingo,

I play Bingo twice a week. There are five of us that buy pull tabs, weekly. We never ask if a big one is won. We enjoy pulling them open. People who complain probably don't have extra cash to spend. I always say, "Only gamble with money you can lose." Thanks for listening.

Barbara W., Wisconsin

Dear Barbara,

Truer words were never spoken. Bingo (and pull tabs) should be fun, and if you're playing with scared money, it's bound to make you more upset if you don't win. It should be added that Wisconsin, unlike some other states, does not require establishments to post a list of winners, or the number of remaining winners for pull-tabs. You play at your own risk! Have fun pulling those tabs. —Aunt Bingo

Dear Aunt Bingo,

Would you please, please, PLEASE run an item in your column asking people to be a bit more considerate and watch their language at Bingo? A woman I sat near the other night cussed like a sailor all evening. Every time a number was called that she did not like, she uttered a very loud profanity. At the end of each game, when she did not win, she could be counted on to state a good half dozen dirty words.

How can she not be aware that her language is inappropriate anywhere, and certainly unacceptable in the mixed company of a Bingo hall?

—Lisa, Phoenix, Arizona

Dear Lisa,

Not long ago I happened to come across a student newspaper from a local college and decided to read a few stories and see what students were talking about. I was amazed to find the "f" word and the "s" word peppered throughout the paper in quote after quote. It seemed so childish, as if the reporters were determined to include "dirty" words whenever they could under the guise of journalistic freedom, when all it really seemed to be was an excuse to print those words.

I support freedom of expression as much as the next person, either spoken or in print. But there is a line between free expression and just plain offensive language which people need to be far more sensitive about.

In the case of your fellow Bingo player, it's a bit tricky. Do you say something to her and risk a barrage of foul language directed at you? Do you complain to management? Or do you do what you did—write a letter asking a national columnist to address the issue on your behalf? In this case, I'm glad you decided on the latter. But the manager might still have to come into play. —Aunt Bingo

Exciting Times at Speed Bingo

Kate loves to play Speed Bingo. The one she likes best lets you choose one or more hard cards. You put chips in the pot according to the number of cards you have and then numbers are called at a very fast rate; I think there are only three seconds between calls. None are repeated. You win when you have five good numbers on any card. It is incredibly fast and furiously exciting. I play only one card, which is enough for me. Kate likes to play two cards and once tried three, though even she had to admit it was too much.

We frequently play Speed Bingo before our regular Bingo session, just as a warmup. Recently, I had a very good card, which is all you need to win any Bingo game. We may pretend that lucky charms, special daubers, a particular seat or playing rituals make a difference, but actually it is the card that wins or loses.

I had this very good card and was up for winning. Several times I was on when the Bingo was called, the winner receiving the entire contents of the pot. Then I started winning, just as a fit of hiccups struck. It sounded pretty funny to the assembled players and they laughed uproariously when I yelled, "Bin-hic-go."

I did not have time to think about having hiccups or try any of the cures people have supplied me with over the years. A new game started, and I hiccupped and continued playing. Some people laughed so hard they couldn't play and claimed unfair advantage. I don't personally think there is anything that funny in a hiccup but had no time to debate the issue.

Kate switched cards during the brief interval between games. She had already tried to talk me out of mine without success. She brought me a drink of water—no help. In spite of my handicap I won again and now had a nice pile of chips in front of me. Kate started borrowing to ante. I did not care. I was too busy trying not to hiccup. I held my breath, drank from the wrong side of the glass, tried to think of something else, and won again.

"Unfair," said Kate softly as she snagged a handful of my chips. I hiccupped again and felt my rib muscles getting sore. "I know what you need," she said. "You need a good scare."

"So, scare me," I replied. "No, not yet. I'm ready for you. You have to sneak up on me."

The fast games were over, and we prepared to go to the regular hall for Bingo. I was still hiccupping when Kate suddenly dropped my chips all over and we started scrambling to pick them up. They seemed to go everywhere. Some other players helped but I was afraid I was losing more with their help. I stretched and found one that had rolled under a stool and stood up triumphantly. "Now try not to drop them again," I instructed her.

She grinned and grinned, then said, "Where are your hiccups?"

■ The Feral Cat

This past Winter, we were frequently visited by a stray or feral cat. He's a rather handsome, gray-furred gentleman. We have been calling him Mr. Cat. He will allow the occasional petting, but not much more. He likes his independence, I suppose. It is nice to sit on the porch with him, but everything is on his terms... far.

As I understand it, we're not supposed to feed stray cats, but it was cold, and I had developed a soft spot for him. I was already leaving clean water for him, so I decided to add cat food as well. He's been neutered. Our city has a TNR (trap-neuter-return) program and Mr. Cat has the tipped left ear to show he's been TNRed. I believe he was part of a larger colony of stray cats we had in the neighborhood last Summer.

I made a shelter for Mr. Cat on the far corner of our front porch over the winter. His first shelter was a large Amazon box, flipped sideways with an old fleece blanket and a towel inside. It was almost a week before we saw him using it. After a few months, the box was not holding up very well. I decided to splurge and buy him a proper outdoor shelter at the pet supply store. It said CAT HOUSE in big bold letters on the box, and I snickered, but that's all I'm saying about that. Mr. Cat adapted to it quicker than he did the paper box version, and that made me happy.

I think in time, Mr. Cat may let me pick him up without resistance. The TNR folks arranged vaccinations for him, but I'd like to take him to a veterinarian for anything else he may need. I am also hoping he'll eventually transition into an indoor cat and let me properly adopt him. He's already met one of my dogs, and they get along fine...well, after the first two meetings. No fighting or anything like that—Mr. Cat would just run and hide in the bushes (and observe), but now they respect each other, as well as a dog and cat can.

For now, I'm just allowing him his space, caring for him, and keeping my fingers crossed.

I hope all your pets are doing well. Mr. Cat says "hi". —Elle

SENIOR NEWS LINE

by Matilda Charles ■ Stopping Medicare Fraud

Medicare fraud is one of the big scams that thieves love. Approximately $60 billion per year is stolen from taxpayers through Medicare theft and fraud. Your job is to be the intermediary and foil their attempts.

Here's how:

Treat your Medicare number as though it's as valuable as a credit card or access to your checking account. Don't give the number to anyone but your doctor's office.

If anyone calls asking for your Medicare card number, hang up. If you receive a text message asking for the number, delete it.

When you get a Medicare summary statement, go over it line by line to be sure that you actually received every service.

It's true that now and then a service listed on your statement is genuine, even if it doesn't seem to be. It's possible that a coding error in the doctor's office was wrong. Get to the bottom of it by calling them and asking for the billing department to pull your file and determine whether the Medicare statement is correct or not. Ask specific questions about tests and lab work, as these are sometimes lumped together.

Sometimes, if the scammers do contact you, they'll try to get you to accept delivery of a medical device that you don't actually need in exchange for giving them your Medicare number. Don't do it.

Occasionally, too, you might be contacted with an offer to "review" your medical records to see if you need any additional services or devices or if you "need" genetic testing. Don't do it. What the scammers are looking for is your personal information and that Medicare number.

Remember: Medicare isn't going to call you or send text messages or show up at your door.
