Hillbilly Bingo

In the summer we must go outside into the scorching heat to avoid frostbite from restaurant air conditioning.

—Ms. Know-It-All

Sweet, sweet June with its weddings, picnics, gardens, and flowers in full bloom. Decades ago, in our family, that meant we kids could go barefoot and wear shorts after Memorial Day. Later, as a teacher, it meant a month or two of relaxation before gearing up for another year of molding young minds. My pals and I played hide and seek after dark and chased fireflies in the fields around us. Afterward, I'd go to bed in the upstairs of our farmhouse and sweat profusely even with window fans going full blast. No air conditioning—but my family and I survived.

June is the start of family reunions and get togethers. I recently learned a cool game to play at these events. It's a variation of bingo called Hillbilly Bingo, who knows why. This version uses standard playing cards instead of bingo balls and cards and each player needs his own deck of cards. Each player shuffles his personal deck and places the top ten cards face up in front of himself. A designated caller draws cards from a master deck and announces the rank and suit (example: king of spades). A player who has that exact card in his/her face-up pile flips it face down. When a player has only one face-up card left, he/she must shout aloud Uno, meaning one card left, or Ready. Failure to do so means that player must take the next card from his deck and add it faceup to his remaining one. The first player to flip all 10 of his/her cards yells Yeehaw! Or Bingo! or Hot Damn which is my personal favorite and that player wins that round. Card decks are then reshuffled, another ten cards placed face up, and the next round begins with 8-10 rounds being the usual.

Before starting play, each participant contributes a set amount of money to build the pot with the amount depending on the crowd—but is usually five or ten dollars per player; meaning the pot can grow quite large. Before starting play, take half of the collected money for the last round and that will be the jackpot win for the final game of the last round. Divide the rest of the money by the number of games and that amount goes to the other individual round winners. This game can be played for prizes, more or less money to buy in, or just for fun with no money or prizes, but what fun is that says the gambler I am? In some versions, the caller announces the first four cards drawn as wild. If you have any of those cards (regardless of suit), you get to flip them over immediately which speeds up the game. Hillbilly Bingo will never replace the real bingo games we're used to playing, but it does have its own charm, especially if you're looking for something different to generate interaction at a family event. Just remember to alert everyone to bring a deck or two of cards so everyone who wants to participate can play.

Until next month, may Lady Luck blow you kisses as you dance out the door with dollars. Win big. If you try this game, contact me (nlpvzw6172@gmail.com) and let me know how it went. Yeehaw!

Canned Salmon: The Pantry Secret for Healthy, Budget-Friendly Meals

Here's a pantry staple I don't write about often enough: canned salmon.

Fresh salmon is one of the healthiest foods you can eat. It's rich in protein and omega-3 fatty acids, and it's wonderfully versatile. The problem, of course, is that fresh salmon can also be expensive, seasonal and sometimes difficult to find, especially if you're trying to buy wild-caught fish instead of farmed.

That's where canned salmon shines. It delivers the same nutritional benefits as fresh salmon at a fraction of the cost, and it's always waiting in the pantry when you need it.

When shopping, take a moment to read the label. Health experts recommend choosing wild-caught Pacific salmon whenever possible. Salmon labeled "wild Alaskan" or "Pacific salmon" is harvested from well-managed fisheries and is a more sustainable choice.

You'll also notice two types of canned salmon on the shelf: boneless-skinless, and the traditional variety that includes skin and soft bones. If you buy salmon with skin and bones, there is one small drawback: namely, skin and bones. The boneless version is convenient but costs more. The version with bones is economical and just as nutritious.

The bones in canned salmon are pressure-cooked until they become soft and completely edible. In fact, they're an excellent source of calcium. Many people mash them right into the fish and never notice them. If the idea makes you hesitant, you can easily remove the larger pieces before using the salmon.

A clever trick I've used for years is adding a small handful of slivered almonds to recipes made with canned salmon. They add a pleasant texture and completely disguise any remaining bones.

Canned salmon is versatile. Use it in pasta, salads, chowders or sandwiches. In my house, however, our favorite is salmon patties. Crisp on the outside and tender on the inside, they're quick to make and satisfying enough for dinner.

Serve them as burgers on buns, make smaller cakes for appetizers or enjoy them alongside a fresh green salad.

Simple Salmon Patties

Yield: 4 servings

Total Time: 30 minutes

- 1 teaspoon olive oil or avocado oil
- 1/4 cup green onions, sliced
- 1/4 cup red bell pepper, minced
- 1 (14.75-ounce) can pink salmon
- 1/2 cup panko breadcrumbs
- 1 tablespoon slivered almonds, optional
- 1/4 cup mayonnaise
- 2 large eggs
- 1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon lemon zest, optional
- 1 teaspoon seafood seasoning (such as Old Bay) or paprika
- olive oil or avocado oil for cooking

Warm 1 teaspoon oil in a skillet over medium-low heat, add the onions and pepper. Saute until just softened.

Meanwhile, place the salmon in a bowl and gently break it apart with a fork. Remove any large pieces of skin or bone if desired. Add breadcrumbs and almonds. Add the softened onion and pepper and stir to combine.

In a small mixing bowl, stir together the mayonnaise, eggs, Dijon mustard, lemon juice, lemon zest and seafood seasoning.

Add the mayo mixture to the salmon and mix until well combined and the mixture holds together. If the mixture is too dry, add mayonnaise. If it's too wet, add breadcrumbs.

Form the mixture into 8 patties and refrigerate for 15 minutes.

Heat a thin layer of oil in a skillet over medium heat. Cook the patties for about 4 to 5 minutes per side, until golden brown and heated through. Serve warm.

Leftover patties can be stored in the refrigerator for up to three days, or frozen for up to three months.

Protecting Your Benefits

On a recent National Slam the Scam Day for 2026, the VA stepped up, along with other federal agencies, with an array of information to keep veterans safe from scams and fraud. Thieves don't just work one day per year, however. We need to stay vigilant all year long to protect our benefits and personal information from getting to the scammers.

How do they approach us? Phone calls, emails, text messages, social media, phishing, impersonation, fake charities — you name it, the crooks have thought of it as a way to get to us.

If you're approached, whether on the phone or in email, the more urgent the problem, the more likely it's a scam. A scammer might pretend to be from the VA and try to claim there's something wrong with your benefits — and that you need to hand over your personal information so they can "fix" the problem. They might want your bank account access info or password, your Social Security number, your date of birth. The answer is no.

Don't do a direct deposit into another person's account — even if it's a relative! If you need a fiduciary situation (where someone helps you with finances), have that person go through the accreditation process and be authorized to assist you. You're protected that way.

If you're told you need to hand over a fee to get claims assistance from the VA or to apply for increased benefits, it's fraud.

Invest in a shredder and use it to cut up not only VA documents with personal information on them, but any documents, even when you put out the trash.

If someone calls and claims to be from the VA and asks you to pay for something with a gift card or bitcoin, feel free to laugh as you hang up the phone. It's an impostor. Report it to the VA at 800-827-1000.

BINGO JOHN

Holy Daubers

Last month, we left Bingo John riding in the Gold Bingo Bus of Redemption with the esteemed Bingo preacher, Orchard Reece. They pulled into a Bingo hall in Dothan, Alabama, and Bingo John ran for the entrance.

Once I got inside the Bingo hall, I saw my picture posted on the wall like an old west "Wanted!" poster. I stopped to read it and saw that Sarah-Mae was on the hunt for me. She posted flyers in every Bingo hall from here to Atlanta. The notice was right next to the window, and my reflection in the glass caught my attention. I was a terrible sight. It was weeks since I'd shaved, and I looked like something dragged out of the woods. I marched inside the Bingo hall and headed right for the bathroom.

I went in the nearest stall so I could straighten out my hair in private. It was in knots and matted like old dog's fur. I didn't notice the bathroom's scent at first, but then it hit me like a bag of bricks. The restroom smelled as fresh as field flowers. I continued preening myself, and slowly it dawned on me that I was in the women's bathroom. No men's restroom smelled like that. I tried to jump up and get out, but it was too late. A woman came in and was standing at the sink. I could see her feet from inside the stall. Her toes were painted red, but they were chipped and ragged like she gnawed on her feet. They were big feet too, all scrunched into her shoes like swollen sausages. I tried to be calm and continued cleaning myself. I took some toilet paper and wiped my face. Then, I watched in horror as a piece fell out of my hands. It drifted and landed right on the lady's swollen foot. I heard a gasp, and then she started screaming that someone threw some nasty piece of toilet paper on her foot. As I searched about and tried to figure a way out of my predicament, I heard Preacher Reece out in the Bingo hall trying to save people.

I took a deep breath and opened the stall door. The bathroom lady started screaming over and over, "A MAN IS IN THE BATHROOM!" I tried to calm her down, but she started hitting me with her hands. Then her eyes rolled back in her head. I reached up with my hands just as she passed out. As she fell, she hit her head on the side of the stall. She started bleeding a lot, so I grabbed some toilet paper to help slow the blood. Nothing would slow it. Then, when I thought things couldn't get any worse, someone opened the bathroom door. It was another lady, and she turned as pale as a white sheet and started screaming. I let the bleeding woman's head down as gently as I could, but I knew things were getting out of control. I scurried past the two ladies to the exit door and slowly opened it. Outside, the Preacher had a Bingo player in his hands. He pressed a shiny gold dauber into the player's forehead. It left a gold circle, and the Preacher praised the Lord for the player's deliverance into the Bingo Kingdom of God.

While everyone was distracted with the Preacher, I ran outside. I'd just breathed a sigh of freedom, when off in the distance, police sirens started. The only place I saw to hide was in the Gold Bingo Redemption bus. I pried open the doors and hid behind a stack of Holy Gold Bingo Daubers.

When the police showed up, everyone came out of the Bingo hall with the Preacher leading the way. I thought he was completely off his rocker, but the Bingo players followed him like the new Messiah. The police questioned everybody. Then, an ambulance showed up and took the hurt lady away. Amazingly, they never searched the bus. The Preacher convinced the police that I ran off into the woods behind the Bingo hall. While they went to get the search dogs, the Preacher finished baptizing everyone. It was quite a sight to see a bunch of Bingo players wandering around in the Southern heat with gold dauber marks on their foreheads. The sun reflected off the gold spots like miniature stars blooming out of their skin. Out in the parking lot it looked like a whole solar system of newly saved Bingo souls. As the sun started to set, the Preacher got back on the bus and pulled the doors shut. "I know you're back there. Might as well come on out." I got out in the aisle where he could see me. "You caused me a lot of trouble. I don't know where you came from, but the Lord has shown me that you need to see the light." Then he came back and daubed my head with the gold dauber. I sat, stunned. Light penetrated my vision. Next thing I know, we're traveling down the road with cicadas chirping in the humid dark air. —Next Month: Bingo John becomes a disciple.

Exciting Times at Speed Bingo

Kate loves to play Speed Bingo. The one she likes best lets you choose one or more hard cards. You put chips in the pot according to the number of cards you have and then numbers are called at a very fast rate; I think there are only three seconds between calls. None are repeated. You win when you have five good numbers on any card. It is incredibly fast and furiously exciting. I play only one card, which is enough for me. Kate likes to play two cards and once tried three, though even she had to admit it was too much. We frequently play Speed Bingo before our regular Bingo session, just as a warmup. Recently, I had a very good card, which is all you need to win any Bingo game. We may pretend that lucky charms, special daubers, a particular seat or playing rituals make a difference, but actually it is the card that wins or loses. I had this very good card and was up for winning. Several times I was on when the Bingo was called, the winner receiving the entire contents of the pot. Then I started winning, just as a fit of hiccups struck. It sounded pretty funny to the assembled players and they laughed uproariously when I yelled, "Bin-hic-go."

I did not have time to think about having hiccups or try any of the cures people have supplied me with over the years. A new game started, and I hiccupped and continued playing. Some people laughed so hard they couldn't play and claimed unfair advantage. I don't personally think there is anything that funny in a hiccup but had no time to debate the issue.
Kate switched cards during the brief interval between games. She had already tried to talk me out of mine without success. She brought me a drink of water—no help. In spite of my handicap I won again and now had a nice pile of chips in front of me. Kate started borrowing to ante. I did not care. I was too busy trying not to hiccup. I held my breath, drank from the wrong side of the glass, tried to think of something else, and won again.
"Unfair," said Kate softly as she snagged a handful of my chips. I hiccupped again and felt my rib muscles getting sore. "I know what you need," she said. "You need a good scare."
"So, scare me," I replied. "No, not yet. I'm ready for you. You have to sneak up on me."
The fast games were over, and we prepared to go to the regular hall for Bingo. I was still hiccupping when Kate suddenly dropped my chips all over and we started scrambling to pick them up. They seemed to go everywhere. Some other players helped but I was afraid I was losing more with their help. I stretched and found one that had rolled under a stool and stood up triumphantly. "Now try not to drop them again," I instructed her.
She grinned and grinned, then said, "Where are your hiccups?"

QUESTIONS

1. Who wrote and released "Piano Man"?
2. Which artist wrote and released "Dirty Blvd"?
3. What was "Smoke on the Water" about?
4. Which artist released "Talk to Me"?
5. Name the song that contains this lyric: "I've been in love so many times, Thought I knew the score, But now you've treated me so wrong, I can't take anymore."

ANSWERS

1. Billy Joel, in 1973. Joel has said that the song was written about his time as a lounge piano player in Los Angeles.
2. Lou Reed, in 1989. The song topped Billboard's Modern Rock Tracks for four weeks.
3. Deep Purple was in Switzerland at the Montreux Casino to do some recording when the casino caught fire. Detractors say the song's famous opening riff was taken from Beethoven's 5th played backward. Others note, however, that it seems to be taken directly from a Bossa Nova song called "Maria Quiet." You decide.
4. Stevie Nicks, in 1985.
5. "I'll Never Fall in Love Again," by Lonnie Donegan, in 1962. Tom Jones released a cover of the song in 1967. Donegan's son auditioned for The Voice UK and performed a duet of the song with Tom Jones in 2019.

* "Newspaper bags are handy hand covers in many situations. Keep them close if you are painting, doing a DIY art project, working in the shop with sticky or greasy materials or baking and working with dough. If you are interrupted, simply slip a bag over your hands to answer the phone or door, etc. It's much quicker than washing and drying your hands, and you can go right back to it once you have dealt with the interruption." — W.A. in Oregon
* "To clean burned-on bits from your cast iron skillet, scrub with a plastic scrubbie and salt as an abrasive. Dry immediately and rub with oil to keep moist." — R.T. in Ohio
* "Line the edges of a plastic shower curtain on both sides with duct tape. Then snip out a few holes through the tape edging. You can use the holes to tie the plastic stretched out between trees for a wind break or as a quick shelter from the rain. You can tie bagged sand to the corners as a car cover. Stake it to the ground under your blanket to avoid ground moisture. Lots of possibilities." — F.C. in Georgia
* After your dishwasher has run its course, open up the door and let the dishes air-dry. On cold days, there's the added bonus of humidifying the house with the steam that escapes.
