Our Families and the Family of God

As Thanksgiving approaches, many of us pause to reflect on the blessings in our lives. At the heart of this holiday is the tradition of gathering with family, sharing a meal, and expressing gratitude for the love and support that binds us together. But beyond the warmth of our earthly families, Thanksgiving also invites us to consider our place within the family of God—a spiritual community that offers belonging, hope, and purpose.

Thanksgiving has long been a time for families to reunite, often traveling great distances to be together. The holiday's origins are rooted in a communal meal shared by Pilgrims and Native Americans, symbolizing cooperation, gratitude, and unity. Today, those same values echo around dinner tables across the country. Family provides a foundation of love, acceptance, and support. It is within our families that we learn important lessons about compassion, forgiveness, and generosity. These relationships nurture us, help us grow, and give us a sense of identity and belonging.

In a world that is often fast-paced and demanding, Thanksgiving serves as a reminder to slow down and cherish the people closest to us. Sharing stories, laughter, and even challenges with family members strengthens our bonds and creates lasting memories. For many, these moments are a source of comfort and joy throughout the year.

While Thanksgiving highlights the importance of our biological or chosen families, it also presents an opportunity to reflect on the broader spiritual family that we experience—the family of God. For those who hold faith, the family of God is a community of believers united by love, faith, and a shared purpose. This spiritual family transcends geographical, cultural, and generational boundaries, offering connection and fellowship to all who seek it.

Thanksgiving is a unique moment when the values of family and faith can come together. As we gather around the table, we can express gratitude not only for our loved ones but also for the larger community that surrounds us. This might mean reaching out to those who are alone, inviting neighbors or friends to join our celebrations, or supporting those in need through acts of service and generosity.

As Thanksgiving draws near, let us remember the profound importance of family—in all its forms. Whether gathered with relatives or united in faith, the bonds of love and belonging are at the heart of what makes this holiday so meaningful. May we celebrate the blessings of family, give thanks for the gift of spiritual community, and carry the spirit of gratitude with us throughout the year.

In Christian Love—Elvis

We would like to encourage you to come to Bible Class. We certainly all need to know more about the Bible as it is the word of God. We all need to be encouraged to live the best Christian life possible. We all need to know the history of the Old Testament and the people of God from years ago and how what they learned can help us in our Christian life today.

Roy Clark has been doing a wonderful job of studying with us the letter to the church in Rome. Rome had an amazing history in the early years of the church. We see a mixed church with both people who came out of the Jewish faith and who were gentiles. This is a wonderful study to be part of.

Elvis is teaching our Sunday morning class out of the book of Jeremiah. What a wonderful book about a nation that had spent years turning away from God. The punishment was coming quickly and God used Jeremiah to let the nations know what was on the horizon.

Ideas to help with Evangelism

- † Each morning as you leave home, pray for opportunities to talk about Jesus. Pray for boldness to teach the gospel (Acts 4:29; Ephesians 6:19-20).
- † Invite one person to attend worship with you each Sunday. Always sit with guests in class and worship, even if you did not invite them. Never let a visitor or visiting family sit alone.
- † Do an act of service (e.g., babysitting, lawn care, etc.) each week or month as an inroad to developing interest in a Bible Study (serve just to serve, but do not stop just with service—let it be a means to an end).
- † Simply invite others to study the Bible with you. Many are interested and will agree. Live and speak the truth in love before them consistently (Ephesians 4:15). Be patient and wait for hearts to open. Be available when someone says, "I want to study."
- † Share a tract, House to House, or church bulletin with a friend. Ask the person to read it and tell you what he or she thinks about it (Matthew 22:42).
- † Build relationships and then use relationships to lead people to Christ. Humbly, genuinely love people. Identify burdens they bear and share their load (Galatians 6:2). Pray each day by name for those who are hurting.
- † Ask cashiers, waiters, and waitresses if you can pray for them about anything. If they say no, tell them, "Remember, God loves you." if they say yes, ask them to stay with you while you pray. Earnestly pray for their request. Then leave a card QR code to a video with contact information for follow-up.
- † Share a new sermon on social media weekly. Use sermons from congregations in our area or the prospect's area so he or she can get to know a local church. You can also share resources from House to House, World Video Bible School, and Apologetic Press.
