This volume of NOMOS—the 59th in the series—emerged from papers and commentaries given at the annual meeting of the American Society for Political and Legal Philosophy in Chicago, Illinois on February 27–28, 2014, held in conjunction with the annual meeting of the American Philosophical Association. Our topic, “Compromise,” was selected by the Society’s membership.

The conference consisted of three panels: (1) “Compromise and Negotiation,” (2) “The Problem of Clean Hands: Legislative Compromise and Obstructivism,” and (3) “Democratic Conflict and the Political Morality of Compromise.” The volume includes revised versions of the principal papers delivered at that conference by Eric Beerbohm, Amy Cohen, and Michele Moody-Adams. It also includes essays that developed out of the original commentaries on those papers by Simon May, Melissa Schwartzberg, Anton Ford, David Dyzenhaus, Amy Sepinwall, and Andrew Sabl. After the conference we asked Alexander Kirshner to contribute an additional paper to the volume. We are grateful to all of these authors for their insightful contributions.

Thanks are also due to the editors and production team at New York University Press, and particularly to Caelyn Cobb and Alexia Traganas. On behalf of the Society we wish to express our gratitude for the Press’s ongoing support for the series and the tradition of interdisciplinary scholarship that it represents.

Finally, thanks to Samuel Bagg and Isak Travnik of Duke University for providing expert assistance during the editorial and production phases of this volume.
