Contents

Acknowledgments vii

Introduction 1
Dayo F. Gore, Jeanne Theoharis, and Komozi Woodard

1 “No Small Amount of Change Could Do”: 25
Esther Cooper Jackson and the Making of a Black Left Feminist
Erik S. McDuffie

2 What “the Cause” Needs Is a “Brainy and Energetic Woman”: A Study of Female Charismatic Leadership in Baltimore
Prudence Cumberbatch

3 From Communist Politics to Black Power: The Visionary Politics and Transnational Solidarities of Victoria “Vicki” Ama Garvin
Dayo F. Gore

4 Shirley Graham Du Bois: Portrait of the Black Woman Artist as a Revolutionary
Gerald Horne and Margaret Stevens

5 “A Life History of Being Rebellious”: The Radicalism of Rosa Parks
Jeanne Theoharis

6 Framing the Panther: Assata Shakur and Black Female Agency
Joy James
7 Revolutionary Women, Revolutionary Education: 161
The Black Panther Party’s Oakland Community School
Ericka Huggins and Angela D. LeBlanc-Ernest

8 Must Revolution Be a Family Affair? 185
Revisiting The Black Woman
Margo Natalie Crawford

9 Retraining the Heartworks:
Women in Atlanta’s Black Arts Movement 205
James Smethurst

10 “Women’s Liberation or . . . Black Liberation, You’re Fighting the Same Enemies”: Florynce Kennedy, Black Power, and Feminism 223
Sherie M. Randolph

11 To Make That Someday Come: 248
Shirley Chisholm’s Radical Politics of Possibility
Joshua Guild

12 Denise Oliver and the Young Lords Party: 271
Stretching the Political Boundaries of Struggle
Johanna Fernández

13 Grassroots Leadership and Afro-Asian Solidarities: 294
Yuri Kochiyama’s Humanizing Radicalism
Diane C. Fujino

14 “We Do Whatever Becomes Necessary”: 317
Johnnie Tillmon, Welfare Rights, and Black Power
Premilla Nadasen

About the Contributors 339
Index 343