CONTENTS

Introduction: Disability, Design, and Rights in the Twentieth Century 1

1. Progress through Prosthetics: Limbs, Cars, Houses, and the American Dream 17

2. Disability in the Century of the Gadget: Rehabilitation and Access in Postwar America 43

3. Electric Moms and Quad Drivers: Do-It-Yourself Access at Home in Postwar America 69

4. Berkeley, California: An Independent Style of Access 96

5. Kneeling to the Disabled: Access and Backlash 129

6. From Accessible to Universal: Design in the Late Twentieth Century 147

7. Beyond Ramps: Crippling Design 185

Conclusion: Design for All? 209

Acknowledgments 215

Notes 217

Bibliography 247

Index 267

About the Author 279