

CONTENTS

Letter from the General Editor / iii

Foreword / xi

Acknowledgments / xv

Introduction / xvii

Notes to the Introduction / xxxi

Map: The Lands and Seas of Abu Zāyid's Accounts / xxxiv–xxxv

ACCOUNTS OF CHINA AND INDIA / 1

Accounts of China and India: The First Book / 3

The Sea of Harkand / 4

Maritime Commerce between the Arabs and the Chinese / 7

The Sea Route from Sirāf to Khānfū / 8

On Tides, and Unusual Phenomena of the Seas / 10

The Chinese and Some of Their Customs / 11

Accounts of the Lands of India and China and of Their Rulers / 12

China, and the Customs of Its Inhabitants / 16

India, and Some of the Customs of Its People / 23

Chinese and Indian Customs Compared / 24

Accounts of China and India: The Second Book / 29

The Changed Situation in China, and the Cause of It / 30

Various Practices and Manufactures of the Chinese / 32

The Visit of Ibn Wahb al-Qurashī to the King of China / 36

How the Seas Are Connected One to Another / 41

The Kingdom of al-Mihraj / 42

The Land of al-Qamār and the Stupidity of Its King / 44

The Belief of the Eastern Kings in the Transmigration of Souls	/ 47
Accounts of China Continued	/ 48
Further Accounts of India	/ 54
Accounts of the Island of Sarandīb and of the Region of al-Aghbāb, Which Faces It	/ 57
General Accounts of India Continued	/ 59
The Land of the Zanj	/ 62
The Island of Socotra	/ 62
Seas and Lands Lying West of the Gulf of Oman	/ 63
Ambergris and Whales	/ 65
An Account of Pearls	/ 66
Further Accounts of Indian Customs	/ 68
Afterword to the Second Book	/ 69
Notes	/ 71
Glossary of Names and Terms	/ 89
Bibliography	/ 101
Index	/ 107
About the NYU Abu Dhabi Institute	/ 113
About the Translator	/ 114
The Library of Arabic Literature	/ 115