CONTENTS

Acknowledgments ix

Introduction: Mapping the New Criminal Justice Thinking 1
Sharon Dolovich and Alexandra Natapoff

PART I. SYSTEMIC PERSPECTIVES 31
1. The Criminal Regulatory State 33
Rachel Barkow
2. Disaggregating the Criminal Regulatory State: A Comment on Rachel Barkow’s “The Criminal Regulatory State” 53
Daniel Richman
3. Improve, Dynamite, or Dissolve the Criminal Regulatory State? 61
Stephanos Bibas
4. The Penal Pyramid 71
Alexandra Natapoff
5. Linking Criminal Theory and Social Practice: A Response to Natapoff 99
Meda Chesney-Lind

PART II. LEGAL DOCTRINE IN PRINCIPLE AND PRACTICE 109
6. Canons of Evasion in Constitutional Criminal Law 111
Sharon Dolovich
7. Taking the Constitution Seriously? Three Approaches to Law’s Competence in Addressing Authority and Professionalism 155
Hadar Aviram
8. Making Prisoner Rights Real: The Case of Mothers 168
Lisa Kerr
PART III. GETTING SITUATED: ACTORS, INSTITUTIONS, AND IDEOLOGY 197

   Mona Lynch

    Priscilla Ocen

11. Jumping Bunnies and Legal Rules: The Organizational Sociologist and the Legal Scholar Should Be Friends 246
    Issa Kohler-Hausmann

PART IV. HUMANIZING THE QUESTION 273

12. The Second Coming of Dignity 275
    Jonathan Simon

13. Dignity Is the New Legitimacy 308
    Jeffrey Fagan

PART V. THE NEW (OLD) CRIMINAL JUSTICE THINKING 323

14. “Miserology”: A New Look at the History of Criminology 325
    Mariana Valverde

   About the Contributors 339

   Index 341