Comments & Reason for Decision:

Both cases were well argued, with strong bolstering evidence. Both teams utilized their time well and were strong in rebuttals and cross fire.

The con team conceded a pro team point in rebuttal (regarding the switching win), ~~which was~~.

This debate was essentially decided on cross fire, where the pro team was able to consistently push back on the points made.

Overall, very good quality of debate. ~~at least~~

Comments & Reason for Decision:

GeoDay
1st Speaker:
Very loud and clear,
good job
Summary was unorganized,
you jumped from point to point without signposting, hard
2nd Speaker: to follow
You're making good points
but you need to sound
more confident!
Nice weighing in the end.

Potomac
1st Speaker:
Good case reading
Spent too much time summarizing your own points in summary, so you didn't get sufficient coverage
2nd Speaker:
Same comment, need more
confidence!
Final Focus was too short.

RFD:

This round was extremely messy and hard to follow, a lot of information was thrown at me without explaining how they relate to the big picture.

Ultimate, CON gives better weighing.

Con teams needs to reinforce their contentions beyond the impact to the economy. It's hard to justify jobs being more important than lives.

  - Pippa - Nice summary but I feel you can outline the voting issue more. I also thought you were light on weighing.
  - Tanvi - Good eye contact. I think you should push harder on the anti-American section argument - it controls not cause.
  - Emma - nice summary, you can push harder in cross 2 I think for framework you should fill me why I should prefer you over her.

Comments & Reason for Decision:

Jaina

- good warrants, spend more time on impacts to fill time
- tell me why I should prefer your framework
- ask stronger crossfire questions, not just abt their sources
- strong summary, talk more abt your impacts (especially compared to theirs)
- put dates on everything

Adrielle

- good points, but respond to their arguments specifically and tell me where you are responding
- excellent flow, passion, and telling a story
- make the overview a contention if you want to read it. It seems out of place in rebuttal
- extend your framework throughout the round, not just at the end

Ryan

- speak up, sound more confident
- add more statistics to your impacts to fill up time
- try to organize your summary and tell me which arguments you are talking abt
- the weighing w/ the hierarchy of needs was kind of confusing
- make sure you respond to all their arguments in rebuttal
- dates on everything please

Hillary

- good organization + connection to framework, you can fill more time by responding to their rebuttal and strengthen your points

REA

without much comparative analysis or dates on evidence, most of the round was a wash especially because things kept getting dropped and brought back up. The main voter was Yemen, which I thought was being solved, terror, which is ending, and the con overview on US hospitals. Since that overview is the only link into lives I have, I vote there.

Comments & Reason for Decision:

I was persuaded by Accoke HJ's argument that US should end sales of Arms to Iran because they established that Saudi Arabia was misusing its arms to harm <sup>Yemen</sup> civilians and arm terrorists, and that ~~the economy~~ <sup>U.S.</sup> outweighed the U.S. need for Saudi oil.

Leon - Your arguments were well articulated but could benefit by citing stronger support especially with regard to the Iranian influence in the Yemen War.

Madinah - Your poise and presentation skills are impressive. Would have liked to see more rebuttal but you did well ~~looking~~ <sup>citing</sup> lack of support.

Andrew - You were well organized and very respectful. You excelled at the rebuttal.

use all of your prep time

Don't address the judge directly during speech

Link between Arab race and war needs to be clearer

Comments & Reason for Decision:

Naomi - You cannot talk in the first ex. It's against the rules when you rebut, don't deny that something happened, you need to use it to help you.

Clio - same, you can't talk in spkr 2 ex, against rules

GeoDay - Try to work together. Don't just restate points, build off of them. Add uparts. You quoted the same THAAD line 3 times w/o linking it to the topic. Make sure all of your evidence is pertinent. Also, attack the specificity of Emily's points. Turn them on her. Eg instead of asking her for evidence about Saudi Arabia turning weapons on the US, say instead that those arms prevent more aggression for Iran.

Emily - You did a really good job reading your case. Try to be just a little louder. Your point about human rights and the relationship between arms and alliances. Don't be afraid to defend them. They're really good. Try to ask questions next time in ex. Get on offense.

RFD - The con most effectively rebutted and reconstructed their points.

Comments & Reason for Decision:

Vote con, oral RFD. Good round!

Point Scale:

 RANK them 1-4.

Aff

- I thought your case was good, but your 1st and 2nd contentions could be combined. You could also do a little more justification for your FW, why is that the best one to evaluate that with?
- Try to fill up the speech time. Your rebuttal should be a bit more organized - what arguments respond to the different arguments they make?
- In summary, you should continue to articulate exactly what happens when you affirm. You say these democratic ideals, but how does this change when we end arms sales?
- Final focus also needs more link explanation. Try to say "I think" or "I hope" less, to focus more on the concrete.

Neg

- Case seemed to be a bit too monotonous. You should emphasize certain words to create a flow in your speech. Additionally, maybe do more emphasis on exactly what happens when we end arms sales.
- Decent rebuttal, but you need to do some more work on this culpability argument. Even if the US isn't responsible, Saudi Arabia is still doing bad things. Fill your speech time!
- 2nd speaker, calm down a bit in 2nd cross.
- You do explain your arguments, but not enough responses to their arguments in summary.
- Good argumentation. Do some more explanation as to the direct effects of affirming/negating, you did talk about your impacts a lot.

Comments & Reason for Decision:

Dilan: Good clear points with a road map. Try to pre-plan some questions. Try to do at least 2 minutes of rebuttal in your rebuttal. You need to add more to your summary. Good final focus, wanted to hear more about C1, C2, C3.

Susanna: In your rebuttal, try to attack her points directly. A lot of good content, no direct rebuttal.

RFD: So con <sup>had points</sup> ~~was~~ on "critical strategic interest" / mutually beneficial relationship. Pro had a lot of points about helping soft power, human rights, ending war in Yemen. In the end there was no offense in the final focus of pro so I voted con.

Comments & Reason for Decision:

The pro won that ending arms sales would decrease the number of civilian casualties and ultimately save more lives. Although the con was winning that ending arms sales would damage the US economy, ~~that it is more important to protect the lives~~ the pro team won that it is more important to protect the lives of innocent people.

Comments

Both sides should have used all of their speech times.

Both sides should have had more comparison of their impacts in their final rebuttals.

Pro Team Comments

You talked too loudly during your opponent's final focus. a

Comments & Reason for Decision:

Pro:

1st speaker:

1. very clear in open statement. effective question.
2. Summary is not effective, used for rebuttal rather than his points.

2nd speaker:

1. raised questions well and effectively.
2. focus and engaging
3. Could improve in time. He left too many time on the table.

Con:

1st speaker

1. clear arguments,
2. ~~summary part~~

2nd:

1. great summary.
2. did not participate in Grand Crossfire.
