Comments to Debaters:

SP1. Good presentation, time control and statistics. Well in crossfire

SP3. Good rebuttal, payback, outweigh burden and 100,000 deportations.

Grand Crossfire: more focused final: stated larger issues such as economic impact and societal impact.

These are the reasons for my decision:

Overall Ridge DK stayed more focused, good questions during crossfire. Good rebuttal too.

Comments to Debaters:

SP2. ^{by} Good defining binds - right at beginning. Good statistics about economic impact. Enthusiasm about subject summary. Have repetitive facts and statistics.

SP4. Need improvement in presentation. Final focus is good in net benefit. unequal distribution of burden.

Comments to Debaters:

Amazing speakers!!

NOT much of a critique on the round,
it was an amazing round!!

These are the reasons for my decision:

The arguments posed by the ^{affirmative} ~~negative~~ referring to cost is where the round was decided. The negative team showed how under both the pro & con world, those lose would still be there, making the entire affirmative case to fall.

Comments to Debaters:

Robert: Excellent flow and enunciation, excellent case - had all 4 necessities of debate covered through and through (claim, warrant, link, impact). Your 65% costs more than benefits was excellent, as well as your point on decreasing national income. Those most jumped out to me but your warrants were all excellent. Great job in CX. Great summary, definitely picked up backlog argument, welfare leeching, increased wages, decreased crime, $113 bil cost.

Kevin: Excellent flow & enunciation - excellent rebuttal - great responses to neg case; definitely bought flow response, 2 logical warrants argument, the fact that aff needed to quantify the increase in underclass, and that statelessness is merely a misconception. Great job analyzing and seeing that practicality isn't important given the ~~severe~~ implications of the resolution. Great job extending responses to underclass.

Very close debate, excellent job by everyone; In the end I affirm b/c aff proves that the status quo of society could be better without BC, while I did seriously take into consideration that Neg proved a correlation with economic incentives, backlog, welfare leeching, increased wages, decreased crime and $113 bil. cost all outweighed. I also bought neg's argument that Aff's terrorism point lacked a causal link, but that didn't negate the other points.

Conor: ^{Excellent} flow and enunciation, excellent case - had all 4 necessities of debate covered through and through (claim, warrant, link, and impact). Your case was excellently developed - other teams have tried to use this point, but they have not executed it as well as you have. Great warrants and great comparison using Dom Rep. Good job in CX. Great summary, really liked extension of your correlation evidence, that deportations happen anyways and no link for their C2 (terrorism).

Kabbas: Excellent flow & enunciation - excellent rebuttal - had major responses to Aff case. Definitely bought correlation of drop after recession, your Coleman v. US case, and linking citizenship v. BC and assumption of impact as for as their terrorism impact went. Also great job establishing causal link framework.

Comments to Debaters:

Vincent: Decent flow, needs work on enunciation - some of your words mashed together but it didn't fully detract from my understanding of your case. Good case, lacked explicit impacts but did give 3/4 necessities: claim, warrant, link. Your impacts need work but that doesn't mean they were completely non-existent. Good job in your summary on ~~the~~ looking towards the Supreme Court, saying that Aff provides no solvency, children should not be punished for something their parents did, and that these ppl are still under US jurisdiction.

Tim: Great flow + enunciation; good rebuttal, had great responses and sign posted well. Helped me to follow in what direction you were taking your arguments. Good job pointing out the tangential characteristics of their case (illegal immigrant impacts). Nice bringing up Kim Jong Un. These are the reasons for my decision: v. US case. Also good how you pointed out that Aff hasn't shown the statistics for how many ppl are breaking these laws.

Comments to Debaters:

Naeem: Good flow + enunciation. The strength of your case started off high, but severely deteriorated by the end. The necessities of debate are as follows - claim, warrant, link, and impact, all in that order. Your C3 + C4 had no warrants, so you could not make the links and impacts. Thus I don't buy C3 + C4 in your case.

Yash: Good flow + enunciation, had good points in your rebuttal. But many of the things you said were tangential and had no true connection to the resolution. For example your answers to their instability point had neither empirical nor logical warrants, so it was hard to buy.

ORAL RFD. -- I negate b/c of better warrants and justifications.

These are the reasons for my decision:

The pro asks me to compare a world with bre with a world without - seems the German example would be the best way to do this. It is first world. Inoustaizlo etc, dealing w/an ethnic minority infusion. The world was clearly better w/con side.
 Morkers v. workers - the shears still go con. Even if some come to get coverage (lyg later), they would still have the incentive to come for job stability. The social impact of a permanent unworkclass also goes con.

These are the reasons for my decision:

CON clearly defined costs and effects of eliminatory BC and followed up w/ appropriate evidence. Countered PRO's "effects" by showing their minimal impact did not outweigh costs. CON failed to counter PRO's evidence with their own stats. Provided mostly anecdotal evidence, not effective against CON's contentions.

These are the reasons for my decision:

CON presented stronger case for positive effects of retaining BC (eg positive effects on labor market) and harms (eg permanent underclass) if BC is abolished. PRO did not give adequate evidence for contention that citizenship more valued if earned. PRO questions to opponents lacked clarity and focus, and failed to address numerous examples/evidence provided by CON.
