

North Korea Has a New Weapon

Early satellite imagery suggests that the Democratic People's Republic of Korea has been secretly developing a weapons program that was not previously known to US intelligence. Members of congress are asked to remain on high alert and await further updates.