A Bill to Ban Additive Chemicals in Foods in the United States

BE IT ENACTED BY CONGRESS HERE ASSEMBLED THAT:

SECTION 1. The United States Federal Government allows the usage of additive chemicals in U.S. food products such as Titanium Dioxide and Potassium Bromate, which are banned in supranational organizations such as the E.U., and countries such as Brazil and China. These were banned due to the dangers of genotoxicity and chromosomal damage which can be passed down to future generations.

SECTION 2. Additive Chemicals can be defined by the World Health Organization as “substances primarily added to processed foods, or other foods produced on an industrial scale, for technical purposes”

SECTION 3. These shall be defined by the Food and Drug Administration to include but not limited to: Titanium Dioxide, Potassium Bromate, Azodicarbonamide, and Propylparaben. Products such as salt, sugar, and corn syrup are exempt from this ban. Companies found in violation should receive:

- A. A fine of $1,000,000 per kg/mol at the first offense
- B. A shutdown of the company, operation and/or corporation by the FDA at the second offense

SECTION 4. This legislation shall take effect on January 1st, 2026.

SECTION 5. All laws in conflict with this legislation are hereby declared null and void.
