

2026 STATE CONGRESS LEGISLATION DOCKET

NSCTA Congress 2026 Procedures

Prelim Sectioning

Students will compete in different, randomly assigned preliminary chambers for each session.

Rationale:

1. Like other debate events, students will compete against a variety of students, rather than the same students in all preliminary competition. (This will minimize the impact of “stacked houses.”)
2. House chambers will have approximately 12-15 students
3. Houses chambers will have one parliamentarian and two point recorders for each session.
4. Judges are encouraged to rank student presiding officers on their final ballots
5. Precedence will be randomly preset and a new PO will be elected for each session.
6. There will be three prelim sessions.

In each of the three sessions, students from each school will be divided randomly. If there are three houses, there will be a maximum of three students per house from a school. If there are four houses, there will be a maximum of two students per house from a school. The intent is to keep one house “clean” so we can use all of our judges.

Prelim Tabulation:

1. The number of students in finals will be determined by the number of entries based on rankings. The number of finalists will be announced after entries have closed.
2. All ranks from prelim judges will be cumulated:
 - a. Lowest overall ranks (after all ranks are truncated to 9)
 - b. Highest total reciprocals (1/ranks, after all ranks are truncated to 9)
 - c. Lowest overall ranks, dropping the highest and lowest (after all ranks are truncated to 9)
 - d. Judges’ preference
 - e. Lowest parliamentarian ranks (after all ranks are truncated to 9)
 - f. Lowest prelim overall ranks
 - g. Strength of competition (average competitor rank after all ranks are truncated to 9)

Final Round

1. Precedence will be randomly preset for each session.
2. Final placement will be tabulated as follows:
 - a. Lowest final round ranks (after all ranks are truncated to 9)
 - b. Highest final round total reciprocals (1/ranks, after all ranks are truncated to 9)
 - c. Judges’ preference
 - d. Lowest total overall ranks from all rounds (after all ranks are truncated to 9)
 - e. Lowest final round parliamentarian rank
