WHAT PART ARE YOU PLAYING? TEAM WORK IS A MUST!

For football lovers the Super Bowl is the most important game of the year. Sports can be a good thing. It's not only entertaining but they teach children the necessity of teamwork and that working as a team can produce a much greater result.

In a football game a "one-man show" is frustrating. Out on the football field, when one person thinks that he alone can win the game, think about it for a moment. What would a football game be like if there was only one player on each side? What about a band concert? What if you only had a drummer? How long would you be willing to sit and listen to only the beat of one drum? It is obvious that a team sports event must be approached with a team effort. A band concert must be approached with every instrument participating in the score. In a team sport effort or in a band, everyone has a function. Some have a more outstanding role than others, TEAM-WORK IS A MUST!

Now, let's apply this principle to the church. We must keep a good attitude and work together. We can accomplish so much more by working together as a team. We can accomplish a job much quicker if we work together. Not to mention the fellowship we would miss.

In football, if you weigh 250 pounds, stand 6'4" tall, and like to hit people, the coach would put you on the front line to block for the quarterback. He would place you according to your build and ability.

In the church, Jesus Himself has built you for a specific work. He has placed you on the team to use your gifts & talents as HE sees fit. He has given you something that will help the others on the team accomplish the overall mission that He, Himself came to do: "Seek and Save the Lost." "For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost." (Luke 19:10)

Every instrument that is removed from the band hurts the sound. TEAM WORK IS A MUST! What part do you play? Are you still playing?

Elders' Comments

There are things in this life that challenge our faith and commitment to God. Sin is a daily challenge. Who does not face temptation? Being a Christian does not remove it, or make it easy to overcome. Hebrews 12:1 speaks of "the sin that so easily ensnares us." For the Hebrew Christians in that context, their sin was a lack of faith and commitment to Christ. That is why the writer gave numerous examples of obedient faith in the previous chapter. Others had faced persecution and hardships in life but remained true to God, so must we. Today, we have the same examples of faith, and others in the New Testament, to emulate when our faith and commitment are challenged. Is there a sin that so easily "ensnares" you? Deal with it immediately! Do not let it keep you out of heaven. Your soul is precious. Resist the devil. Ask God to help you. Jesus died for you, and He is ready and able to help.

ARE MY PRIORITIES IN ORDER?

The above question is very significant to those who want to go to heaven. Most everyone has priorities. Whatever receives the greater emphasis in thought, time and effort become our personal priorities. Three general categories of priorities would be the material, physical and spiritual. A worldly individual seeks the material and physical to the neglect of the spiritual. The Christian's primary emphasis is always the spiritual, with the material and physical kept in their proper perspective. Because of worldly influences, sometime we allow conflicts to develop in what becomes our priorities, creating a need to reevaluate them. Personal examination is emphasized in scripture (II Cor. 13:5).

God must be first in our love (Mark 12:29-30). In this great text, love for God with all one's heart, soul, mind and strength is described as the "first of all commandments." And why is it first? Because in observing it, all other commandments are observed. In loving God first, all others (family, friends, brethren, enemies and self) are properly loved. Loving God first is the only way to keep other relationships in their right perspective. Loving self, or family, first involves misplaced priorities. And Jesus said that those who do so are not worthy of him (Matt. 10:37). In becoming a Christian, everyone and everything takes a secondary place in importance. The same is true in living faithfully. The Lord is to be first always.

Very often material pursuits or physical pleasures choke out the word, hindering our spiritual growth (Matt. 13:22). It could be the time we spend watching television, attending sporting events, gardening hobbies and various other things that can take much of our time. These things are not wrong within themselves, but when we overindulge in them to the exclusion of spiritual pursuits, the word of God is choked and the work of God is hindered. Is it wrong to work, to pay your bills and support your family? Certainly not. In fact, the Bible emphasizes the importance of it (II Thess 3:10,11; I Tim. 5:8). However, secular work to the neglect or exclusion of one's spiritual needs is wrong. Spiritual growth can never be neglected and still please God. When we work to pay for things we did not need in the first place, and to be able to buy even more, then our spiritual objectives can be compromised and neglected. That's where sin enters the picture.

Christianity involves a new life and a new pastime. It is based on commitment, not convenience. Living right is far more important than living well. Food for the soul must have priority over food for the body (Matt. 4:4). Godliness is of greater value than physical exercise (I Tim. 4:8).

The one who gains the world and loses his soul cheats himself (Matt. 16:26). Though we do not earn our salvation in any way, still there is a price that must be paid to be a disciple of Jesus (Luke 14:33). Let's all consider the above question— Are my priorities in order?
