NEDD I SAY MORE 2015-11-21 11:41:00 I co-purchased a new 2014 Chevrolet Cruze in September 2014 and the vehicle was involved in a low speed (less than 25mph)front end collision in December 2014. The car suffered front shots, shields, hoods, engine consumption and deployed airbags (front and side). The dealership repair shop refused to repair the vehicle indicating it was due to the deployment of the airbag altogether and it was intended to throw away the vehicle although it was driven and everything other than the front end was complete. I believe the seller may have purchased the new $27K vehicle at auction under $5 dollars and repaired it and reselled it in as many of its useds. Do business by representing Chevrolet in Lake Charles Los Angeles. General Motors also refused to rest. Poor customer service and consumer assistance. My lawyer is now attracting their attention. General Motors has already recalled the airbag on this car. User AOL 2015-04-15 19:06:57 This car looks cool to make it fun to drive but it has so many problems. I bought a new car to get away from it. Hit and run 5 has been slowly finished on the front by half and back twice! The machine makes me nervous at this point. Now there are strange moans and hum noise. It looks like a tolerant wheel but the seller said they can't figure it out and it's not a problem. But I think it's a joke.
