"Since high school, I've found myself working various dead-end jobs. These jobs became frustrating as I became more and more anxious about a long-term plan for the future. It was only natural, being my own neighborhood's unofficial tech-guy, that I finally pursued the credentials I needed to step into a job that I will fit right into: computer technology."

Brian obtained both the Cisco IT Essentials and CompTIA A+ certifications. Brian was offered a full-time job as a Desktop Technician, and was recently promoted to Server Administrator, inside the corporation where he interned.
