In the speech conversation test, you will have a conversation with a certified scout. It will be interactive and as close as possible to the real situation that the test can get. The speech test is 11-14 minutes long and is in three parts. Part 1 You will answer questions about yourself and your family. Part 2 You're talking about a topic. Part 3 You will have a longer discussion on the topic introduced in Part 2. The speaking test shall be the same for the general IELTS Academic and IELTS general training tests. How to practice This practice material is designed for two people involved. Find a study partner to help you practice. Maybe he's a teacher or a friend. Take three parts of this test after another without a break to make your practice as realistic as possible. Remember, you need to speak fluently, clearly and accurately. It's important to say as much as you can and that you're spontaneous. Do not prepare replies in advance. It's recorded if you can, so you can go back and check your performance. Review your speech test Listen to your recordings and discuss the test with your study partner. Think about the way you talked. Are you fluent? Did your speech sound natural? Could you make your expresses clearly? Use audio clips and transcripts in each section to gain insight into the test format. Note that these are not model answers, so don't try to imm yours. There are no answers. You and your study partner will need to assess how well you are doing. IELTS Speaking PracticeOnline study course and practice tests. Duration: 11 to 14 minutes The speaking language test will assess your use of spoken English. The test will last between 11 and 14 minutes, where you will discuss various topics with IELTS. Your test will be carried out in a quiet reconnaissance room that will encourage you to keep talking. Unlike the AI test, the IELTS scout will be able to feel relaxed and confident. They are also able to understand your accent to ensure that you get the best possible result. There are three parts on the speech test. Part 1 Examiner will ask you general questions about yourself and a range of well-known topics such as home, family, work, studies and interests. This part takes 4 to 5 minutes. Part 2 You will get a passer-by and the examiner will ask you to talk about the topic. Before talking, you will have 1 minute to prepare for up to 2 minutes. The examiner will then ask or two questions on the same topic to complete this part of the test. Part 3Third section 2 will ask you additional questions related to the topic. These questions will allow you to discuss more abstract ideas and questions. This part of the test lasts from 4 to 5 minutes. 4 to 5 minutes Part 1 of the test will start with the examiner asking you to give your name and show your identification. They will then ask you general questions about yourself, such as where you live or what you are currently doing (you are working or studying). They'll then ask you some questions about a variety of familiar topics, such as music you like, cooking, weather, or movies you prefer. In general, you will be asked about one or two topics. The examiner will ask scripting questions and listen to your answer and ask you to expand your answer with why? or why not? if your answer is too short. This part of the test follows a form of answer to questions that focuses on your ability to communicate opinions and information on everyday topics by answering a series of questions. 3 to 4 minutes After the first part, the examiner will give you a topic and ask you to talk about it for one to two minutes. The theme will be handed over to you on the card and you will also get a piece of paper and a pencil to take notes. On the tab, you'll see a speech prompt and a few points that you can cover in a conversation that relates to it. Before you speak, you will have exactly one minute to prepare and take notes. The examiner will use the timer to tell you when your time will go. The examiner will tell you when to start your conversation and will remind you that you will be stopped after 2 minutes. Points on the task card will help you think about what to say and try to continue to talk for a full 2 minutes. They might ask you a question about what you said before the next section started. This part of the test evaluates your ability to speak at length on a particular topic, using appropriate language and organizing your ideas in a logical way. With your theme experience, you can help complete the long turn. 4 to 5 minutes Questions in Part Three will be related to the general theme you spoke about in Part 2. You will discuss the subject in a more general and abstract way, in which you will show that you are able to express and justify your opinions, analyse, discuss and speculate on this subject in more depth. If your long turn was a nice place to visit your city, this section could start by talking about wonderful places, and the first question could be: Do you think it's important to keep beautiful places in places? The examiner will speak to you more in this section and may ask you to justify your opinion to see how well you can communicate compared to the personal themes you discussed in Parts 1 and 2. In Part 3, you are assessed as being able to express and justify opinions and analyse, debate and speculate on a range of issues related to the general topic that you discussed in Part 2.
