The History

Set on historic Blaisdell Avenue, the John Pillsbury Snyder Mansion is a stunning example of early 20th-century design. Built in 1913, by Earnest Kennedy, as a wedding gift for Titanic survivors John and Nelle Pillsbury Snyder, the home blends Tudor Revival, Renaissance Revival, and Georgian Revival styles with remarkable craftsmanship. Grand staircases, stately columns, rich woodwork, and a preserved limestone façade highlight its timeless elegance.

A thoughtful 2014 renovation restored the mansion’s original grandeur, including the intricate ballroom. Once home to two of Minneapolis’s most prominent families, the mansion now offers a unique venue and a living window into the city’s storied past.

The John Pillsbury Snyder Mansion remains one of the last surviving examples of the grand residences that once lined Blaisdell Avenue, offering a glimpse into Minneapolis’s architectural and social history.

John and Nelle Snyder, on April 18th, 1912, the day that they disembarked the Capathia.

A letter on Titanic stationery, dated April 10, 1912, was written by Mr. Snyder to the proprietor of a London tobacco shop where he had purchased cigars before boarding the ship. ‘As I sit here at the writing desk, peacefully and contentedly smoking one of your finest,’ he wrote, ‘I simply wish to thank you...’
