Christianity on the defensive today in the world religions, philosophy and science.

Rigently understood, Christianity will prove its unity with religion, philosophy and science, and their unity in Christianity, that is, the teaching of Jesus scientifically understood.

Archaeologists say that nearly all the descriptions of Creation found in the Book of Moses appear in various forms in the legends and religious writings of other nations that existed ages before Moses. When one admits this, we have added proof of their vernacular origin—that they are true because they have been recognized and believed by men everywhere, and that they are therefore based upon principles universally operative; in other words that the experiences of one race have all races of men been.

But on every hand we are met by the demand for a deeper insight into the creative principles that here operate in life to produce these uniform results. This brings us to the study of man as the inlet and outlet of both the natural and spiritual environments in which he lives—— that man has within him powers that when discovered and utilized make him master of his mind, body and the natural forces in which he lives.
When Jesus proclaimed "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth," it was no idle boast, nor was it confined to him as the Son of God, but is common to all men when they have developed the abilities inherent in man spiritually.

Science has been of inestimable value to the student of the hidden man symbolically described in the Bible. It has revealed the life forces hidden in the billions of cells forming the body, while religion describes as spirits in prison. Jesus preaching to the spirits in prison may be interpreted as Spiritualism.
thanking sitting for the imprisoned angels' forces in prison in in's fleshly处. Their invisible and to the manifested man, the known forces may be inspired to be a might, best of ministers. angels toiling in silence for the ultimate good of man.
They are personified or individualized.
in Genesis as fisher in the sea,
beasts of the field, birds of the air,
and creeping things.
The Garden of Eden. Not a place on the earth in Asia, but in the Ether above the earth. A potential paradise.
The garden of Allah.
The four rivers of Eden.
Modern science says that all things are made of original particles of light, which are transformed into electrons and protons, the basic of atoms. That atoms form molecules, which combine and make cells, a network of which make tissues, the foundation of visible flesh.

From this we have a corroboration of the Scripture statement that first of Creation was light. "And God said that there be light and there was light."

"There was the true light, the light that enlighten every man coming into the world."
"Whosoever shall not doubt in his heart but shall believe that what he saith shall come to pass, he shall have it."

"Then shall the curse of a thing and it there be established unto the"