THE HISTORY OF ISRAEL AND JUDAH.

BY ISAIAH, THE SON OF AMOZ.

(See Second Chronicles, Ch. 32, v. 32.)

BOOK II.

THE PERIOD OF THE JUDGES.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE UPON THE BOOK OF JUDGES.

From the opening of this Book it seems to me that a period of anarchy intervened after the death of Joshua, during which the whole, or at least a great part, of his conquests in South Palestine were lost, and fell back into the possession of the former inhabitants; for it is certain from the words of the Historian that they had to be reconquered, and, as we learn by the subsequent history of the Period of Samuel, this was only very partially accomplished until the days of David, nearly 400 years afterwards. Of that period of anarchy immediately after the death of Joshua the historian Isaiah takes no notice, for it was out of his line of intention, as being merely political. Chronologists have been blind to these facts, and so have allowed no time for them, by which the dates of the following history have been confused, and lead to puzzles that seem inexplicable to commentators and readers. It would repay the labour for some competent scholar to clear up this confusion, I think.—F. F.

(B.C. 1425 to 1406.) A Period of Anarchy and Revolt of the Natives.

1 After the death of Joshua the children of Israel enquired of the Ever-Living, "Who shall lead us against the Cananites, to make war with them?" The LORD replied, "Judah shall go up, and I will give the country into his power."

2 Judah, however, said to Simeon his brother, "Go up with me to my district, and we will fight with the Cananites, to make war with them." The LORD replied, "Judah shall go up, and I will give the country into his power."

3 Judah accordingly went up, and the Ever-Living gave the Cananites and the Perizites into their power, and they defeated them in Bezek with a loss of ten thousand men. Then they met the Prince of Bezek at Bezek and fought with him, and defeated the Cananites and Perizites; and the Prince of Bezek fled, but they pursued after and captured him, and cut off the thumbs of his hands and feet. Then the 7 Prince of Bezek said, "Seven kings, with the thumbs of their hands and feet cut off, were waiters beside my table! As I did God has repaid to me!" (They afterwards brought him to Jerusalem where he died.)

The children of Judah next besieged Jerusalem and captured and conquered it by the edge of the sword, and delivered the city to fire. After that the sons of Judah proceeded to make war with the Cananites who occupied the hills, the south, and the pastures. Then Judah marched against the Cananites who held Hebron, and defeated Sheshi, and Akhiman, and Thalmai. And marched from there to the possessors of Debir,

12 where Kaleb said, "Whoever conquers Khith-sefer, and captures it, I will give him my daughter Aksa for a wife." So Athnial the son of Kenez, the younger brother of Kaleb, captured
it from them; and he gave Aksa his daughter to him as a wife. Now as she was coming he suggested to her to ask an estate from her father,—so she dismounted from her ass, when Kaleb asked her, "What do you want?"

15 And she replied, "Give me a blessing;—with the southern land you have given me; give me springs of water." So Kaleb gave her the Upper Springs and the Lower Springs.

(B.C. 1405.)

16 The sons of Keni, the father-in-law of Moses, had come up from the city of The Palmtrees with the sons of Judah into the desert of Judah, which is to the south of Arad, and marched
and lived with that people.

17 Then Judah went with Simeon his brother and conquered the Cananites inhabiting Tzifath, and destroyed it,—
and called the name of the town
Kharmah.1 Judah also captured
Gaza, and its district, and Ashkelon, and its district, and Akron and its district, for the EVER-LIVING was with Judah and he took possession of the highlands, but they could not drive out the population of the plains
because they had iron chariots.

20 Hebron was given to Kaleb as Moses had promised, and he drove the three sons of Anak from it.

(B.C. 1424 to 1406.) A General
Revolt of the Nations conquered
by Joshua.

21 But the Jebusites continued in Jerusalem, for the sons of Benjamin could not drive them out,—so the Jebusites continue to reside with the sons of Benjamin in Jerusalem to this day.

22 The House of Joseph also went up to Bethel, and the EVER-LIVING was with them, so the House of Joseph was successful against Bethel,—the name of the town was formerly Luz.

24 And the scouts saw a man who came out from the city, and said to him,
"Show us, we pray, the entrance into the town and we will reward you."

1 V. 17. "Kharmah" = The Ruins.—F. F.
the country which I promised to your ancestors, declaring, 'I will not break My covenant with you for ever; but you shall not make a treaty with the inhabitants of this country but strike down their altars.' However you have not listened to My voice. Why have you done so when I said, 'If you do not drive them out from you, they will be thorns,—and their gods will be snares to you'?"

When the Messenger of the EVER-LIVING addressed this speech to the Parliament of the children of Israel, the People lifted up their voices and wept, and called the name of that valley The Weepings, and sacrificed there to the EVER-LIVING.

(B.C. 1425 to 1424.) Recapitulation of the Events of the Last Days of Joshua.

6 When Joshua dismissed the People, the children went each to his share, to take possession of the country, and the People served the EVER-LIVING all the days of Joshua and all the time of the old men who survived Joshua, who had seen all the great acts of the EVER-LIVING which He did for Israel.

8 Joshua, the son of Nun, the servant of the EVER-LIVING, died at a hundred and ten years of age, and they buried him within the bounds of his estate, at Thimnath, in Mount Ephraim, on the north of the hill of Gash. But when all that generation were added to their fathers, there arose another generation after them, who knew not the EVER-LIVING, or the acts which He did for Israel.

(B.C. 1424.)

11 Then the Children of Israel did wrong in the sight of the EVER-LIVING and passed over to Baal, and forsook the EVER-LIVING God of their fathers, who brought them out of the land of the Mitzeraim, and went after the gods of the nations who surrounded them, and worshipped them, and provoked the EVER-LIVING. Thus they forsook the EVER-LIVING and worshipped Ashtaroth.

Wild Anarchy.

Then the anger of the EVER-LIVING burnt against Israel, and He gave them to the hand of robbers who robbed them, and delivered them to the power of their enemies all round, and they were not able to stand before their enemies. Wherever they went the hand of the EVER-LIVING was against them for evil, as the EVER-LIVING had said, and as the EVER-LIVING had threatened them, and He greatly afflicted them.

(About B.C. 1406.) Leaders arise and advise Reform, but are rejected. The EVER-LIVING afterwards raised up judges who protected them from the powers of the Robbers. Yet, however, they would not listen to their judges, for they went whoring after other gods, and worshipped them,—turning soon from the path which their fathers followed,—that of listening to the commands of the EVER-LIVING. They did it not. But when the EVER-LIVING caused some of the judges to arise, and the EVER-LIVING was with that Judge, He saved them from the hand of their enemies, for the EVER-LIVING pitied their groans under their adversaries and oppressors. But when that Judge died, they turned and corrupted themselves more than their fathers, by following seducing gods, and serving and worshipping them. They ceased not from their offences, and from making their way hard.

Then the anger of the EVER-LIVING burnt against Israel, and He said; "Because this Nation has broken My Covenant which I communicated to their ancestors, and does not listen to My Word, I also will not continue to drive out before them any of the nations whom Joshua left at his death,

2 NOTE.—These dates are far from accurate, but I adopt them from the ordinary chronologers. I estimate that 100 to 200 years of anarchy is intimated, and that consequently the date of the Exodus and all the subsequent events should be put backwards for that time, but this question is one for chronologers, and does not affect the accuracy of the Biblical Narrative, but corroborates it.—F. F.
so that I may try Israel by them, whether they will keep the path of the EVER-LIVING, and walk in it, as their fathers kept it, or not." So the EVER-LIVING gave them not those nations, and did not dispossess them of the mountains, and gave them not to the hand of Joshua.

(b.c. 1420.) Why the Revolt of the Natives was allowed.

And these are the nations whom the EVER-LIVING permitted to try Israel, all who were not acquainted with the wars of Canan; so that the generations of the Children of Israel might learn war, which they otherwise would not have known.

The five Lordships of the Philistines, and all the Cananites, and Zidonians, and the Hivites, inhabiting the hills of the Lebanon, from the Hill of Bal-Hermon, to the pass of Khamath. They were also to try Israel to teach them to listen to the commands of the EVER-LIVING, which He dictated to their fathers by the hand of Moses.

So the Children of Israel resided amongst the Cananites, the Hitites, the Amorites, the Perizites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites, and took their daughters to themselves for wives, and gave their daughters to their sons, and served their gods.

The Children of Israel also did wrong in the sight of the EVER-LIVING, and forsook their EVER-LIVING GOD and served Balim and Ashteroth.

The anger of the EVER-LIVING consequently burnt against Israel, and He delivered them to the power of Koshan-Ramathim, King of Aram-between-the-Rivers, and the Children of Israel were subject to Koshan-Ramathim for nine years.

Then the sons of Israel cried to the EVER-LIVING, and the EVER-LIVING raised a saviour for them, Ahud-ben-Ghera, a Benjaminite, a left-handed man, by whose means the sons of Israel sent the tribute to Aglon, King of Moab. But Ahud made himself a sword of a foot long with a double edge, and bound it under his cloak on his right thigh, when he approached with the tribute to Aglon, King of Moab,—(Aglon, however, was a very fat man)—and when he had finished presenting the tribute, he sent away the people who carried the tribute, but he returned back from the quarries that are in Ghilgal, and said, "I desire a word in private between myself and you, King," and he replied "All right!" and sent away all who stood about him.

Ahud stabst King Aglon of Moab, and Israel revolts.

Then Ahud came to him, and he sat upon the raised seat which was reserved for himself alone, and Ahud said, "There is a message from GOD with me for you." So he rose from his throne. Then Ahud stretched out his left hand, and drew the sword from his thigh, and drove it into his belly, and the excrement came out after the blade, but the fat closed up over the blade, for he did not draw the sword from his belly, but it went into the intestines. Then Ahud went out by the private porch and shut the Hamath.—F. F.

The door after him, and locked it. But when he was gone the servants came and looked and saw the door of the chamber locked, and said, "Perhaps he is lying down in the chamber of his summer house." So they waited until they were alarmed, and seeing no one open the door of the retreat, at length they took a key and opened the door, and saw their Prince fallen on the earth dead!

But Ahud escaped while they delayed, and passed the quarries, and ran away like a tempest, and then went on and blew a trumpet in Mount Ephraim, and the Children of Israel flocked to him from the hills, and he became their leader, and said to them, "Follow after me, for the EVER-LIVING will give your enemies, the Moabites, into your hand!" So they followed after him, and captured the fords of the Jordan leading to Moab and permitted no man to pass over. They also cut off from Moab at the same period about ten thousand men,—all stout men of valour, and not a man escaped. Moab was consequently from that time subjected to the hand of Israel, and the land was at rest eight years.

(About B.C. 1328.)

And after that came Shamgar the son of Anath, who slew six hundred of the Philistines with an ox-goad and delivered Israel.

(B.C. 1316.) Jabin, King of Canaan, subjects Israel.

But the Children of Israel continued to do wrong in the sight of the EVER-LIVING, therefore the EVER-LIVING delivered them to the power of Jabin, King of Canaan, who reigned in Khatzor, the commander of whose army was named Sisera, and he resided in Kharshith of the heathen.

But the Children of Israel cried to the EVER-LIVING, for he had nine hundred chariots of iron, and oppressed the Israelites cruelly for ten years.

(B.C. 1300.) Deborah, a Woman, gains Power.

At that time a woman, Deborah, a distinguished teacher, was a judge in Israel, and Deborah sat under the palm-tree of Deborah, between Rama and Bethel, in Mount Ephraim, and the Israelites went to her for decisions.

(B.C. 1296.) Deborah asks Barak- ben-Abinoam to head a Revolt against the Tyranny of Jabin.

But she sent and summoned Barak the son of Abinoam, from Kadish of Naphthali, and said to him, "Has not the EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel ordered you, 'Go and encamp on Mount Thabor, and collect ten thousand men to you from the sons of Naphthali and the sons of Zebulon, and I will draw Sisera, the Commander of the Army of Jabin, with his chariots and his great numbers to you, at the River Kishon, and I will deliver him into your hand'?"

But Barak replied to her, "If you will go with me, I will go. And if you will not go with me, I will not go!"

And she answered, "I will go with you. However, the road you go shall not lead to your honour, for the EVER-LIVING will give Sisera to the hand of a woman."

Then Deborah arose and went with Barak to Kadish, where Barak invited Zebulon and Naphthali to Kadish, and ten thousand men came to his feet, and Deborah went up with him, and Heber the Kenite, who was descended from Kien, one of the sons of Hobab, a father-in-law of Moses, who had also pitched his tent at Alon-Betzanim near Kadish; and it was reported to Sisera that Barak- ben-Abinoam had occupied Mount Thabor.

Sisera consequently summoned all his charioteers with their nine hundred chariots of iron, and all his forces from Khar-sheth of the heathen, to the river Kishon. Then Deborah said to Barak, "Arise! for this is the day when I will deliver Sisera to your hand! Does not the EVER-LIVING go before you?"

So Barak descended from Mount Thabor with the ten thousand men following him, and the EVER-LIVING routed Sisera, with all his chariots, and all his troops, with the sword before Barak, so that Sisera descended from his chariot, and fled on foot! But Barak pursued the charioteers and the infantry to Khersheth of the heathen, and stormed all the camps of Sisera by the sword, not sparing one.

17 Sisera, however, fled on his feet to the Tent of Jael, the wife of Heber the Kenite, for there was peace between Jabin, King of Khatzor, and the House of Heber the Kenite, and Jael came out to meet Sisera, and said to him, "Turn in, Prince, turn in to me; fear nothing." So he entered with her into the tent, and she covered him with a cloak.

19 Then he said to her, "Let me have a little water to drink, for I am thirsty." And she opened him a bottle of milk, and gave him a drink and covered him up again. Then he said to her, "Stand before the door of the hall, and if any man comes to inquire of you, and says is there anyone here? answer, there is no one!"

21 Jael, the wife of Heber, however, took a peg of the tent, and grasped a hammer in her hand and went to him secretly, and fixed it on his temples and drove it through to the earth, for he was fast asleep. So he expired and died.

22 Then she saw Barak pursuing Sisera; so Jael went out to meet him, and said to him, "Come, and I will show you the man whom you seek!" And he went with her, and saw Sisera lying dead, with the nail through his temples.

(B.C. 1296.)

23 Thus GOD defeated on that day Jabin, King of Canan, before the Israelites, and the power of the Children of Israel increased, advanced, and strengthened over Jabin, King of Canan, until Jabin, King of Canan, was subdued.

5 Then Deborah and Barak-ben-Abinoam sang, saying;—

SONG OF DEBORAH AND BARAK.

2 DEBORAH. "For free freedom in Israel,
You heroes and people bless the LORD."

3 BARAK. "Let kings hear, let princes listen,
I, to the LORD, myself will sing;
I chant to the EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel."

THE TROOPS. "LORD, in Your 4 advance from Sair,—
In Your march thro' the field of Edom,—
The earth shook, the heavens poured down,
The storm clouds poured out water!
The mountains melted before the 5 LORD;
Sinai itself before the LIVING GOD of Israel!"

DEBORAH. "In the days of 6 Shamgar son of Anath,
In the days of Yal the caravans ceased,
And travellers went in the bye-paths,—
Judges ceased—in Israel ceased,—
Till I, Deborah, arose,—
Till I arose, a mother to Israel!"

BARAK. "They chose for them- 8 selves new gods!—
When there was war at the gates,
Was a shield or a spear to be seen,
In forty thousand of Israel?"

DEBORAH. "My heart can picture 9 Israel!—
Heroes among the People bless the LORD!"

THE TROOPS. "You riders upon 10 white asses,—
And you who dwell in the plain,—
And the trav'lers by roadways publish,
With the sound as of rushing 11 waters,
The kindness the LORD has done;
The kindness to Israel's hamlets,
When the LORD'S force rushed down to the dales!"

BARAK. "Arise! arise you! 12 Deborah!
Awake, awake! and utter a song!"

DEBORAH. "Arise, Barak, and conquer,— Conqueror, son of Abinoam!
Let the Nobles and People de 13 scend;
The Lord sent me to summon heroes:
Come to me, Ephraim, rooted in 14 Amalek;
Follow me, Benjamin, from your caves;
Come to me, Makir, with your chieftains;
With Zebulon wielding the writer's pen,
And Issakar's eloquent Princes;—
And along with Issakar, Barak,
Who directs the march with skill.

"My heart aches for Reuben's absence;—
Why stayed he among the sheep-folds,
To hear the cries of his flocks?
My heart aches for Reuben's absence!

"Ghilad remained beyond the Jordan;—
But why stayed Dan in his ships?
And Ashur rest on the shore of the sea,
And continue to lie in his ports?

"Zebulon's men risked their lives to death,
With Naphthali from the high-lands."

BARAK. "Kings came out to the war,
Like Canan's Kings at Thanak,
Who fought by the Brook of Megiddo;—
They took no silver as plunder;—
The stars, they fought from the skies,—
The stars from their high course fought against Sisera!—
The river Kishon swept them away,
That ancient river — the river Kishon!"

DEBORAH. "Rush strongly along, my life!
How the hoofs of the horses sound,
With their mighty leapings and prancings!

"'Curse Meroz,' said the man of the LORD,
'When cursing, curse its people,—
For they came not with help to the LORD,
To help the LORD and His heroes!'

"But bless the children of Jael,—
The wife of Heber the Kenite,
Bless all the sons of her tent.

"He asked her water,—she gave him milk!
She offered him butter on a beautiful dish!

Then she stretched her hand to the nail,
Her right hand to the workman's hammer,—
And Sisera pierced through his head,
And broke, and drove through his temples!
At her feet he bowed,—fell down,—
At her feet he bowed,—fell down,—
When he bowed, he fell down dead!"

THE TROOPS. "Sisera's mother, at the evening hour, Bent and watched from her window;—
'What prevents his chariot's return?
What delays the tramp of his chargers?'
Her wise women answered to her,— Nay, continued her words to herself,—
'Have they not found plenty of plunder?
A lovely girl for the generals,
And a plunder of robes for Sisera?
A plunder of robes embroidered,—
Embroidered robes for the necks of the victors?'

DEBORAH, BARAK, AND TROOPS. "LORD! thus destroy Your foes:—
But let Your friends march on,
Like the sun in his glory!"

After this the country rested for forty years.

(mid. 1256.) Midian conquers the Israelites.—Oppression and Anarchy rampant.

Then the Israelites did wrong in the eyes of the EVER-LIVING, so the EVER-LIVING gave them to the hand of Midian twelve years. And the power of Midian was so strong over Israel, that the Israelites made for themselves entrenchments in the mountains, and caves, and towers; and if the Israelites sowed, then Midian, and Amalek, and the Beni-Kedem came upon and assailed them and wasted the whole breadth of the country to the pass of Gaza.
and left no means of subsistence for Israel, or sheep, or ox, or ass. For they, and their cattle with them,
advanced with their tents, coming in such immense numbers, both of themselves and their camels, that they could not be counted, and went over the country destroying it. Thus Israel was thoroughly exhausted
before Midian.

(B.C. 1249.) A Preacher exhorts to Reformation and to abandon Sin.

Then the Children of Israel cried
7 to the EVER-LIVING. And when the Israelites cried to the EVER-LIVING on account of Midian, the EVER-LIVING sent a man, a preacher, to the sons of Israel and he said to them:—
"The EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel says thus,—'I brought you from the House of Bondage, and delivered
you from the power of youropponents, and swept them before you, and gave you this country. Then I said to you, I am your EVER-LIVING GOD. You shall not reverence the gods of the Amorites, in whose country you reside,—but you would not listen to My voice.'"

(B.C. 1249.) He calls upon Gideon
to lead his Nation.

11 Afterwards the Messenger of the EVER-LIVING went and sat under the oak which is at Afrah, belonging to Yoash, and Gideon his son was threshing wheat in a wine cellar, to hide it from the Midianites, and the Messenger of the EVER-LIVING looked in at him, and said to him, "The EVER-LIVING is with you, brave man!"

12 But Gideon answered him, "What, Sir! If the EVER-LIVING is with us, then why has all this come? And where are all His wonders that our fathers related to us, telling about the bringing us up from Mitzeraim?
For now the EVER-LIVING has forsaken us, and put us under the foot of Midian!"

13 But the Noble Man turned to him and replied; "Go with your courage and rescue Israel from the hand of Midian! Have I not sent you?"

He, however, returned, "Me, sir? 15
How can I rescue Israel? The regiments of Manasseh have failed!
and I am the youngest of my father's family!"

But the Noble Man answered to 16
him; "Because I will be with you!
And you shall defeat the Midianites
like a single man."

Then he asked him, "If you have found favour in your eyes, and you have done me the kindness of speaking with me, do not remove 18
from here until I come back to you,
when I will bring my present, and present it to you."

So he replied, "I will sit down until you return."

Then Gideon went and killed a 19
goat's kid, and baked an unfermented
cake, and placed the meat on a tray,
and put the broth in a basin, and brought to him under the oak, and presented it.

Then the divine Messenger said to 20
him; "Take the meat and the biscuit, and ascend to the peak of Luz, and pour out the broth." And he did so,
when the Messenger of the EVER-LIVING extended the end of the staff
which he had in his hand, and touched the meat and the biscuit, and fire
came from the rock and consumed
the meat and the biscuit! Then the Messenger of the EVER-LIVING went from his sight; and Gideon perceived 22
that he was a Messenger from the EVER-LIVING; so Gideon exclaimed,
"Ah! Great LORD! I have certainly seen a Messenger of the EVER-LIVING face to face!" And the NOBLE 23 replied to him, "Peace to you! Fear not! You will not die!"

Consequently Gideon built there 24
an altar to the EVER-LIVING, and it
iscalled "The EVER-LIVING'S Peace", to this day. It is near Afrath of Aliazer.

In the night again the EVER-LIVING 25 said to him, "Take the bull of your father's herd, and a second seven year bull, and overthrow your father's altar to Bal, and break the Shrine
that is beside it, and build an altar
to your EVER-LIVING GOD, on the top of this refuge on the mound, and take the two bulls, and offer as a burnt-offering with the wood of the shrine which you have broken up."

---

1 I translate the Hebrew word Jehovah, ירח (Yhowah), as " Noble Man," as a high title, like our Lord, for a Peer, as it is evident
this preacher was not the Creator, but a man
as we are.—F. F.
27 So Gideon took ten men of his servants, and did as the Ever-Living told him. But because he feared his father's family, and the men of the village, he could not do it by day, so did it by night. When they arose in the morning and observed the altar of Bal thrown down and the shrine that was near it broken, and the two bulls burning upon the altar he had built, then each said to his neighbour, "Who has done these things?" So they examined and enquired, and were told, "Gideon, the son of Yoash, has done them!"

28 In consequence the forces of Midian and Amalek, and the Beni-Kedem assembled together, and encamped in the plain of Jezrael. But the Ever-Living descended upon Gideon, and he blew the trumpet and summoned the Abiazerites after him, and send messengers to all Manasseh, and also summoned them after him; and he also sent messengers to Ashur, and Zebulon, and to Napthali, and they went up to meet him.

29 Then Gideon said to God, "If You will save Israel by my hand, as You promised, I will lay this fleece of wool on the level floor;—if the dew is on the fleece only, and dryness upon all the ground, then I shall understand that You will save Israel as You have promised." And he arose in the morning and wrung the fleece, when as much dew ran from the fleece as filled a bucket with water. Gideon, however, said to God, "Let not Your anger burn against me, and I will speak once again; I will try another time with the fleece. Let it now be dry on the fleece only, while there is dew on the ground." So the Ever-Living made it thus that night. There was dryness in the fleece only, and upon the ground there came dew!

Then Jerubal (who was Gideon) arose, and all the people who were with him, and encamped at the Well of Kharod overlooking from the north the camp of Morah upon the plain. But the Ever-Living said to Gideon, "There are too many people with you for Me to give the Midianites into your power, for fear Israel should glorify against Me, and say, 'My hand has saved myself!' Therefore, now, proclaim in the hearing of the people, and say 'Who is afraid and timid? Let him return and depart to Mount Gilad.' Consequently twenty-two thousand of the people departed, but there were left ten thousand.

But the Ever-Living again said to Gideon, "The people are too many. Order them down to the brook, and there select for yourself; and whoever replies to you thus, 'I will go with you!' let him go with you. But all who say, 'I will not go with you!' let him not go with you." So he took those men with him down to the brook, where the Ever-Living said to Gideon, "All who lap with the tongue from the brook, like a dog laps, place them by themselves. And all who bend on the knees to drink." And the number of the 6 lappers from the hand to their mouths was three hundred men, but all the rest of the people knelt on the knees to drink from the brook.

Then the Ever-Living said to Gideon, "With the three hundred men who lapped, I will rescue you, and give Midian into your hand." So the people took their staves in their hands and their clothing, and all the force of Israel went off to their homes, except those three hundred brave men. And the camp of Midian was opposite those in the plain.
And night came. Then the Lord said to him:—"Arise! Descend to the camp, for I will give it to your hand! But if you fear the descent, go down with Furah your squire, to the camp, when you will hear what they say, and after that embolden your hand."

The Midianite's Dream of the Barley Cake.

He therefore descended to the camp, and Furah his squire went down with him to the officers' quarters who were over the camp, where Midian and Amalek and the Beni-Kedem were spread over the plain like locusts for number, and their camels were innumerable like dust scattered on the shore of the sea for multitude. But Gideon proceeded, and perceived a man relating a dream to his comrade, who said, "I have dreamed a dream; when I saw a round barley cake thrown into the camp of Midian, and it went to the General's pavilion and struck it, and it fell; but it bounded forward, and another pavilion fell!"

Then his comrade answered and said, "That is nothing else than the sword of Gideon-ben-Yoash, the man of Israel! GOD will give Midian and all this camp into his power!"

But when Gideon heard this dream related, and its interpretation, he bowed down, and returned to the camp of Israel, and said, "Arise, for the Lord will give the camp of Midian to your hands!"

Then he divided the three hundred men into three divisions, and all of them took trumpets in their hands, with dark lanterns, and lamps inside the dark lanterns; and he said to them, "Watch me; and what I do, you do the same. And when I come to the edge of the camp,—what I do then you also do it. When I blow my trumpet, then all of you blow your trumpets with me all around the camp, and shout, 'The Sword of the Lord and of Gideon.'"

Then Gideon and the hundred men with him went to the head-quarters' side of the camp, where the officers were stationed, and sounded the trumpet, and opened the dark lanterns they carried. The three 20 divisions also blew their trumpets, and waved their dark lanterns, and rushed on with the lanterns in their left hands and the trumpets in their right, blowing and shouting, "The Sword of the Lord and of Gideon," and halted outside around the camp, and aroused all in the camp, who fled in terror. But the three hundred continued to blow the trumpets, and the Ever-Living turned the sword of each against his comrade in all the camp, and the camp fled in confusion to the edge of the meadows of Nekholah, near Tabath.

Gideon collects the Northern Tribes to join him in the War, but the Chiefs of Ephraim quarrel with him, and refuse to join.

The Man of Israel afterwards summoned Naphthali and Ashur, and all Manasseh, and they followed after Midian. Gideon also sent messengers to the whole of Mount Ephraim, to say; "Descend to meet Midian, and capture from them the fords at Bethbarah and of the Jordan." So they called out every man of Ephraim, and captured the fords at Bethbarah and at the Jordan, and captured the two princes of Midian, Oreb and Zaeb, and killed Oreb at the rock of Oreb, and executed Zaeb at the wine-press of Zaeb, and continued the pursuit of Midian, but they brought the heads of Oreb and Zaeb to Gideon from beyond the Jordan.

The men of Ephraim, however, asked him, "Why have you done this business for us, and not consulted us? for you have gone to war with Midian, and continued with it rashly."

But he answered, "What have I done now more than you? Are not the gleanings of Ephraim better than the vintage of Abiezer? GOD has given to your hand the Princes of Midian, Oreb and Zaeb; so what have I been able to do more than you? Then turn your spirit away from me when speaking about this matter."

Gideon passes over the Jordan without them.

Then Gideon went beyond the Jordan, himself and the three hundred men with him, weary, yet pursuing,
and said to the people of Sukoth, "Give, I entreat you, a little bread to the men who are with me, for they are exhausted, and I am pursuing after Zebakh and Tzalmuna, the kings of Midian."

The Chiefs of Sukoth refuse also to supply Men or Food.

But the masters of Sukoth replied, "Are the hands of Zebakh and Tzalmuna in your power, that we should give you any bread?"

Gideon, however, retorted; "When the EVER-LIVING gives Zebakh and Tzalmuna into my power, then I will inform your governors with thorns from the desert and with briars."

The People of Phanual also refuse Supplies.

From there he went to Phanual, and asked them the same, but the men of Phanual answered like the men of Sukoth, so Gideon also replied to the men of Phanual, "When I return with peace, I will throw down this towering Phanual."

(B.C. 1248.) Gideon attacks the Camp of Zebakh and Tzalmuna.

Now Zebakh and Tzalmuna were encamped at Karkar with about fifteen thousand men, all they had left them; but with the whole camp of the Beni-Kedem, a hundred and twenty thousand infantry, accomplished swordsmen. Gideon consequently advanced by the lower road to the General's pavilion from the east of Nobakh and Yagbah, and attacked the camp whilst the camp was resting in security. Zebakh and Tzalmuna, however, fled, and he pursued them, and captured both the kings of Midian,—Zebakh and Tzalmuna,—and all the camp was thrown into confusion.

(B.C. 1247.) Israel wishes Gideon to be a King.

The Men of Israel afterwards said to Gideon, "Rule over us,—you and your son, and your descendants, for you have saved us from the hand of Midian."

He refuses Kingship, but asks a Share of the Prize captured.

But Gideon replied to them, "I will not be Governor over you; nor shall my son govern you: The EVER-LIVING is your Governor." But Gideon said, "I request each of you to give me a ring from your plunder." (For as they were Ishmaelites they wore gold rings.)

And they replied, "We will give you that gift," so he spread his cloak, and each threw upon it a ring.
from the plunder; and the gold rings which he asked were one thousand seven hundred shekels in weight, besides the crescents and ear-drops, and cloaks, and the woven shawls of the King of Midian, and the necklaces which were on the necks of the camels. Gideon afterwards made a suit of armour of them, and set it up in his village at Afrah, but all Israel whored after it there, and it became a snare to Gideon and all his house; Midian was thus subdued before the Israelites, and it did not again raise its head, so that the country had rest for forty years in the time of Gideon.

(B.C. 1209.) Gideon dies.

29 Jerub-baal ben-Yoash, however, returned to his home; and Gideon had seventy sons produced from his loins, for he had many wives. But his secondary wife, who was in Shekem, bore him also a son,—and his name was Abimelek. Then Gideon-ben-Yoash died with good grey hair, and they buried him in the tomb of Yoash his father, in Afrah of Abiezer.

(About B.C. 1203.) Anarchy and Religious Rebolts.

33 But when Gideon-ben-Yoash was dead, the Israelites went again and whored after Bal, and chose Bal-Bereth as their god! For the Israelites remembered not their EVER-LIVING GOD, Who redeemed them from the power of all their enemies around. Nor did they act kindly to the family of Jerub-bal-Gideon, for all the good he had done for them.

(B.C. 1203.) Abimelek conspires to become a Chief.

9 Abimelek went to Shekem, and spoke to them, and to all the clan of the house of his mother's father, to say;

"I wish you to whisper to the ears of the Balites of Shekem, 'What good is it to you, this government of seventy men?—all the sons of Jerubal—compared to the government of a single man? and remember that I am your bones and flesh!'"

(B.C. 1203.) Abimelek murders his Seventy Brothers.

3 So his mother's relatives whispered all these things about him to the “So, now, if in truth and uprightness you have made Abimelek your king; and if you have done handsomely to Jerubal and to his family,
and if you have done to him according to the work of the hand of my father, who fought for you, and poured out his soul for you, who have risen upon my father's family to-day, and murdered seventy persons on a single stone, and have elected Abimelek, the son of his slave, over the Balites of Shekem, because he is your relative;
—then according to the truth and justice with which you have acted towards Jerubal and towards his family to-day, be content with Abimelek, and let him be content with you!

But if not, let fire come out from Abimelek and consume the Balites of Shekem, and the house of Miloa, and let fire come out from the Balites of Shekem, and from the house of Miloa,
and consume Abimelek!"

Then Jotham fled, and hid himself in Barah, and stayed there from the presence of Abimelek his brother.

(B.C. 1200.) The Balites and Abimelek quarrel.

When Abimelek had been a chief in Israel for three years, the EVER-LIVING sent a bad feeling between Abimelek and the Balites of Shekem,
consequently the Balites of Shekem plotted against Abimelek. The injury done to the seventy sons of Jerubal,
and their blood, returned upon Abimelek their brother, who had murdered them, and upon the Balites of Shekem who encouraged his hand to the murder of his brothers.

So the Balites of Shekem laid an.
ambush upon the tops of the mountains, and they robbed all who passed near them in the road, and it was reported to Abimelek.

(B.C. 1200.) Gal-ben-Abd conspires against Abimelek.

Then Gal-ben-Abd came to Shekem
with his brothers and passed into it,
and the Balites of Shekem confided
in him, and went out and reaped
their vineyards, and pressed them,
and afterwards made a feast, and went to the House of their god, and ate and drank, and cursed Abimelek.

Then Gal-ben-Abd exclaimed, "Who is Abimelek? and what was Shekem that we should be enslaved? Is he not the son of Jerubal, and Zebul his Lieutenant? They were slaves,— those furious, low-bred bastards;—
but why should we be enslaved?
But if this people were under my hand, I would turn Abimelek off!"

Then he shouted against Abimelek,
"Collect your army and meet me outside!"

When Zebul, the Commandant of the city, heard of the speech of Gal-ben-Abd, he was furious, and sent messengers to Abimelek at Tharmah
to say:—

"I find Gal-ben-Abd and his brothers have come to Shekem, and that your rivals in the town are against you. So now get up by night, you and all the force with you, and hide in the fields, and at dawn, when the sun rises, advance and attack the city, and then you, and the force you bring with you, can do to him whatever you find in your power."

Abimelek consequently arose that
night and all his force with him,
and they advanced secretly against Shekem in four divisions. But Gal-
ben-Abd went out and stationed himself outside the gate of the town.
Then Abimelek and the force with him
arose from their ambush, and Gal
saw the force, and asked Zebul, "Is
that an army descending from the
tops of the hills?"

When Zebul replied to him, "You
see the shadow of the mountains
instead of men!"

But Gal continued to speak and said,"Look! it is a force that descends
from the highlands, and one division
comes from the road of Alan-Maonim!"

Then Zebul replied to him, "Where
now is the mouth which said, 'Who is Abimelek? that we should be enslaved? Is not that the man whom you despised? Now go and fight
with him!"

Abimelek consequently arose that
night and all his force with him,
and they advanced secretly against Shekem in four divisions. But Gal-
ben-Abd went out and stationed himself outside the gate of the town.
Then Abimelek and the force with him
arose from their ambush, and Gal
saw the force, and asked Zebul, "Is
that an army descending from the
tops of the hills?"

When Zebul replied to him, "You
see the shadow of the mountains
instead of men!"

But Gal continued to speak and said,"Look! it is a force that descends
from the highlands, and one division
comes from the road of Alan-
Maonim!"

Then Zebul replied to him, "Where
now is the mouth which said, 'Who
is Abimelek? that we should be enslaved? Is not that the man whom
you despised? Now go and fight
with him!"

Abimelek consequently arose that
night and all his force with him,
and they advanced secretly against Shekem in four divisions. But Gal-
ben-Abd went out and stationed himself outside the gate of the town.
Then Abimelek and the force with him
arose from their ambush, and Gal
saw the force, and asked Zebul, "Is
that an army descending from the
tops of the hills?"

When Zebul replied to him, "You
see the shadow of the mountains
instead of men!"

But Gal continued to speak and said,"Look! it is a force that descends
from the highlands, and one division
comes from the road of Alan-
Maonim!"

Then Zebul replied to him, "Where
now is the mouth which said, 'Who
is Abimelek? that we should be enslaved? Is not that the man whom
you despised? Now go and fight
with him!"
Abimelek then retired to the highlands until Zebul advised Gal and his relatives against remaining in Shekem; so when morning came his army went out to the fields; and he reported it to Abimelek; so he took his force and divided it under three leaders, and lay in ambush in the fields and watched until the army had come clear of the town, when he arose and assailed it.

Then Abimelek and the Officers who were with him rushed and seized the open gate of the town;—and the two other Leaders charged upon all who were in the fields and repulsed them, whilst Abimelek assailed the town all that day and captured it and killed the people who were in it, and threw down the houses, and sowed it with salt.

When all the Balites of Shekem Tower heard of it, they went to the tower of the House of their god, Brith, and it was reported to Abimelek that all the Balites had assembled at Shekem Tower. Abimelek consequently ascended Mount Zalmon with all his force, where he took an axe and cut boughs from the trees, and hoisted them upon his shoulder, and said to the people who were with him,

"What you have seen me do, be quick and do the same." So all the army each cut a branch and marched after Abimelek, and piled them against the tower, and set the tower on fire with them, and thus killed all the people in the Tower of Shekem,—about a thousand men and women.

Abimelek besieges Thebetz, but is slain.

Then Abimelek marched to Thebetz, and besieged Thebetz and captured it. But there was a strong tower in the middle of the town, and all the men and women fled there and shut themselves in, and went to the roof of the Tower.

Abimelek, however, advanced to the tower and assailed it, and approached close to the door of the tower to consume it with fire, but a woman threw an upper millstone upon the head of Abimelek and broke his skull. When he immediately called to the youth who carried his arms and said, "Draw your sword and kill me! for fear they should say 'a woman killed him!'" So his Squire drew, and killed him. And when the men of Israel saw Abimelek was dead each returned to his home.

Thus God turned upon Abimelek the wrong which he did to his father, in murdering his seventy brothers; God caused all the wickedness of the men of Shekem to return upon their heads, and brought the curse of Jotham the son of Jerubal upon them.

Abimelek, a man of Issakar, arose to save Israel. He resided in Shamar on Mount Ephraim, and judged Israel for twelve years, and he had thirty sons, who rode upon asses, and they possessed thirty villages, called the villages of Jair to this day. They are in the country of Gilad. When Jair died he was buried in Kamon.

Then Jair the Giladite arose after him, and judged Israel for twelve years, and he had thirty sons, who rode upon asses, and they possessed thirty villages, called the villages of Jair to this day. They are in the country of Gilad. When Jair died he was buried in Kamon.

The Amorites also passed over the Jordan to make war with Judah and Benjamin, and the House of Ephraim, and ravaged Israel greatly. Then the Children of Israel cried to the EVER-LIVING, saying, "We have sinned against You! for we have forsaken our God and served the Balim."

But the EVER-LIVING replied to the Children of Israel, "Have you not the Mitzerites, and the Amorites, and the Beni-Amon, and the Philistines, and the Zidonians, as refuges from oppression for yourselves? that you call to Me to save you from their hand, when you have forsaken Me, and served other gods? Therefore I will not continue to save you! Go, and call the gods whom you have chosen for yourselves:—Let them save you in the period of your distress."

(B.C. 1143.) The Distressed and Repentant Nation revolt and seek a Leader.

15 The Children of Israel, however, said to the EVER-LIVING, "We have sinned! Do to us all that is good in Your sight! Oh! save us now, today!" And they put away the foreign gods from amongst them, and served the EVER-LIVING, and He stayed His anger against Israel.

17 Then the Amonites assembled and encamped in Gilad, and the Children of Israel collected and encamped in Mizphah. But the army said to the Chiefs of Gilad, "We have not a man to lead us. Let the man who is able to fight with the Amonites be the head of all the inhabitants of Gilad!"

11 Now Japhthah the Giladite was a heroic man;—but he was the son of a foreigner who bore Japhthah to Gilad. His Giladite wife also bore him sons, and that woman's sons grew up, and drove Japhthah out, and said, "You shall not inherit with the family of our father,—for you are the son of a foreigner!" Japhthah consequently fled from the presence of his brothers, and lived in the country of Tob, where Japhthah collected vagabond fellows who came to him.

An Embassy sent to Japhthah.

4 This was in the time when the Amonites were at war with the Children of Israel. So the judges of Gilad went to bring Japhthah from the district of Tob. And they said to 6 Japhthah, "Come and be our Leader, and fight for us with the Amonites."

But Japhthah replied to the judges of Gilad, "Did you not hate me, and drive me from the house of my father? Then why should you come to me now that you are in distress?"

The judges of Gilad, however, answered Japhthah, "In spite of that, return now with us, and fight the Amonites, and you shall be the chief of all the inhabitants of Gilad."

Then Japhthah said to the judges of Gilad, "If I return with you to fight the Amonites, and the EVER-LIVING gives them to my advance, am I to be your chief?"

And the judges of Gilad answered Japhthah; "Let the EVER-LIVING decide between us, if it is not done as you say!"

Japhthah accepts the Chieftainship of Gilad.

Japhthah thereupon went with the 11 judges of Gilad, and the people appointed him over themselves as a chief and leader, and Japhthah took the oaths before them in Mizphah.

Japhthah sends a Message to the King of Amon.

Then Japhthah sent Messengers to the king of the Amonites, to say; "What is there between me and you, that you have come to fight me in my country?"

When the king of Amon answered the Messengers of Japhthah, "Because Israel when coming up from the Mitzeraim seized my country from Arnon to the Jabok, and the Jordan. But you can go back to them in peace."

Second Embassy sent by Japhthah.

But Japhthah sent Messengers again to the king of the Beni-Amon and said to him, "Japhthah replied thus; 'Israel did not seize the country of Moab and the country of the Beni-Amon, for in the coming up from the Mitzeraim, Israel went in the desert by the Red Sea, and came to Kadesh, when Israel sent Messengers to the king of Edom to say,—'I wish to pass over by your country;" but the king of Edom, and the king of Moab, replied that they were not willing; therefore Israel halted at Kadesh, and marched into the desert, and went round the land of Moab, and encamped at the river Arnon, and did not invade the bounds of Moab—for the Arnon was the boundary of Moab. From there Israel sent ambassadors to Sihon the king of the Amorites,—king of Heshbon,—and said to him, "I, Israel, would pass through your country to my place." But Sihon would not trust Israel to pass through his boundaries; so Sihon collected all his forces, and encamped at Jahtz, and fought with Israel. The EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel, however, gave Sihon and all his army to the hand of Israel, and Israel conquered all the country of the Amorites residing in that region, and acquired all the region of the Amorites from the Arnon to the Jabok, and from the desert to the Jordan;—and since the EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel has driven the Amorites before His People, yet you would possess! Cannot you possess what Kemosh your god has caused you to possess?—whatever our EVER-LIVING GOD has caused us to possess, we shall possess for ourselves.

1 Egyptians.—F. F.

"And now, are you better than Balak-ben-Tzifor, the great king of Moab? Greater than Israel? If you can fight with them, fight with them! "Israel, however, has dwelt in Heshbon and its villages, and in Aroar, and its villages, and all the towns along the Arnon three hundred years, so why have you not recovered them during that period? And I myself have not offended you, but you have done wrong to me in making war upon me. Let the EVER-LIVING as Judge decide to-day between the Children of Israel and the Beni-Amon."

The King of Amon refuses Peace.

But the king of the Amonites would not listen to the words that Japhthah sent to him.

Japhthah declares War.

Then the Spirit of the EVER-LIVING came upon Japhthah and he passed through Gilad and Manasseh, and advanced to Mizpah of Gilad: for Mizpah of Gilad was in subjection to the Beni-Amon. Therefore Japhthah vowed a vow to the EVER-LIVING, and said:—

Japhthah's Vow.

"If you will deliver the Beni-Amon to my hand, then whatever first comes out of the doors of my house to meet me, upon my returning with peace from the Beni-Amon, shall be the LORD'S, and shall be offered as an offering!"

Japhthah conquers the Amonites.

Japhthah then advanced against the Beni-Amon to fight with them, and the EVER-LIVING gave them into his power, and he conquered from them Aroar, and as far as the Pass of Minith,—twenty villages,—and onwards to the vine-fields,—a very great conquest. Thus the Amonites were subjected to the Children of Israel.

Japhthah's Despair at his only Daughter falling under his Vow.

Her Sublime Faith.

When, however, Japhthah returned to Mizpah to his home, his daughter came out to meet him with timbrels and dances, and except her alone there was no child to his house. So when she approached him he tore his robes, and said, "Alas! my daughter! You have overwhelmed me with sorrow, and you are my grief! for I have opened my mouth to the EVER-LIVING,—and I am not able to go back!"

But she answered him, "My father, if you have opened your mouth to the EVER-LIVING, do to me according to what has come out from your mouth, since the EVER-LIVING has made a triumph for you over your enemies, the Beni-Amon!"

Then she asked her father, "Grant this thing to me, give me two months that I may go and wander on the hills and lament for my maidenhood, I and my friends."

And he replied, "Go!" and sent her away for two months. So she and her friends went, and lamented over her girlhood upon the mountains.

But at the end of the two months she returned to her father, and he did to her as he had vowed, and she knew..."
no man. Thus it became an institution in Israel, that from year to year the girls of Israel should go to celebrate the daughter of Japhthah, the Giladite, for four days yearly.

(B.C. 1143.) The Ephraimites assail Japhthah and begin a Civil War.

12 But the men of Ephraim assembled, and advanced northward, and demanded of Japhthah, “Why did you proceed to war with the Amonites, and not invite us to go with you? We will burn your house over you with fire!”

2 But Japhthah replied to them; “There was a great contention between myself and the people with me, and the Beni-Amon and I applied to you, but you did not save me from their power. When I saw that you would not save, I took my life in my hand, and advanced against the Amonites, and the EVER-LIVING gave them into my power. Then why do you ascend to-day against me to fight with me?”

(B.C. 1142.) Japhthah defeats Ephraim with great slaughter.

The Shiboleth.

4 Consequently Japhthah assembled all the army of Gilad and fought the Ephraimites, and the men of Gilad defeated Ephraim.

Then the men of Gilad said to themselves; “Ephraim will escape between the Ephraimites and Manassites!” so they captured the fords of the Jordan from Ephraim, and when any one of the fugitives of Ephraim said, “I wish to pass over,” the men of Gilad replied to him, “Are you an Ephraimite?” and if he answered, “No,” they replied to him, “Say ‘Shiboleth,’ ” and he responded, “Siboleth,” for he was not able to pronounce it. Then they seized and slew him at the fords the Jordan, so there fell at that time forty-two thousand of the Ephraimites.

7 Japhthah afterwards judged in Israel for six years. Then Japhthah the Giladite died and was buried in the City of Gilad.

(B.C. 1137.) Ibzan becomes a Leader.

8 After him Ibzan, the Bethlehemite, judged in Israel, and he had thirty sons, and thirty daughters sent out, and thirty daughters came in to his sons from without, and he judged Israel seven years. Then Ibzan died and they buried him in Bethlehem.

(B.C. 1130.) Ailan becomes a Leader.

Then Ailan the Zebulonite judged in Israel, and he had forty sons and thirty grandsons who rode on seventy asses, and he judged in Israel eight years.

(B.C. 1120.) Abdon-ben-Hilel becomes a Leader.

But after him Abdon-ben-Hilel judged the Phirathanite in Israel, and he judged in Israel ten years. Then Abdon the Zebulonite died, and they buried him in the country of Zebulon.

(B.C. 1116 to 1120.) The Birth of Samson.—Anarchy, and the Conquest by the Philistines.

Then the Children of Israel repeated the doing of wrong in the sight of the EVER-LIVING, SO the EVER-LIVING delivered them into the hand of the Philistines for forty years.

1 From the death of Gideon in 1146 B.C. to the rise of Saul absolute anarchy seems, from the Historian’s narrative, to have existed in all the Hebrew Commonwealth, from the Euphrates on the East to the Mediterranean Sea on the West, only diversified by the ravages of the Arabian and Mesopotamian Robber Chieftains, and the revolt of the aboriginal tribes whom Moses and Joshua had subdued. The Judges whose names were selected by Isaiah to serve as landmarks for the chronology of his history were only Hebrew Insurgent Leaders, who ruled by personal influence in small districts of the country around their homes so long as vigour and life lasted. They must not be looked upon as in any sense National Presidents of the Commonwealth of Israel. The Historian is careful to make this clear in his narrative. It is only comparatively modern Translators and Commentators who have obscured the fact by their ignorance. I have tried to clear their obscurities away, and restore the history of Isaiah to the original claritude of the Prophet. At Ch. xiii. we step back to 1161, to introduce the history of Samson, whose career began a revival of the Hebrew national spirit.—F. FENTON.
13—2 THE BOOK OF THE PERIOD OF THE JUDGES. 14—2

2 years. But there was a remarkable man of Tzarah of the family of Dan, and his name was Manoh, but his wife was barren,—she was childless.

3 A Messenger of the EVER-LIVING, however, appeared to his wife, and said to her, "Look, now, you barren and childless woman! you shall conceive and bear a son! But guard yourself, and drink neither wine nor beer, and eat no grapes; for you shall conceive and bear a son, upon whose head no razor shall go; for the youth shall be a Nazarite to GOD from his birth, and he shall be strong and save Israel from the hand of the Philistines."

4 The woman therefore went and said to her husband, "A man from GOD has come to me, and his appearance was like a Messenger of GOD, very bright, but I did not ask him if he was so,—and he did not tell me his name, but he said to me, 'See! you shall conceive and bear a son; and you shall not drink wine or beer, nor eat any grapes, for the youth shall be a Nazarite to GOD from his birth to the day of his death!'"

5 So Manoh entreated the EVER-LIVING, and said, "Let the man whom You have sent appear, GOD, to me. Let him come again to us, that we may learn what the youth who is to be born must do." The EVER-LIVING, therefore, listened to the voice of Manoh, and the Messenger of the EVER-LIVING also went up in the flame of the altar, and Manoh and his wife watched them. But when the flame went up from the altar to the skies, the Messenger of the EVER-LIVING also went up in the flame of the altar, and Manoh and his wife saw him and they fell upon their faces to the earth. The Messenger of the EVER-LIVING, however, did not again appear to Manoh or his wife after he had recognised that he was a Messenger of the EVER-LIVING.

Manoh consequently said to his wife, "We shall die,—for we have seen a god!"

6 But she replied to him, "If the EVER-LIVING intended to kill us He would not have received a burnt-offering from our hands, and we should not have seen all this, and He would not have listened to us as He has.

The woman afterwards bore a son, and called his name Samson, and the lad grew great, and the Mighty Spirit of the EVER-LIVING impelled him to the camp of Dan between Tzarah and Ashthal. (B.C. 1141.) Samson falls in Love with a Philistine Girl and marries her.

But Samson descended to Thimnath, and saw a woman in Thimnath, a Philistine girl; so he returned and told his father and mother, and said, "I have seen a woman in Thimnath,

1 "The Brilliant," in Hebrew.—F. F.
But his father and mother replied, "Is there not a girl related to you? or a woman in all your nation? that you should go and take a wife from the foul Philistines."

Samson, however, exclaimed to his father and mother, "Get her for me! for she is perfect in my eyes!"

For his father and mother did not know that it was given to him from the EVER-LIVING to seek a wife from the Philistines, although at that period the Philistines governed in Israel.

Consequently Samson and his father and mother descended to Thimnath. (Once formerly, when he had gone to the vineyards of Thimnath, a young lion had roared at his approach, and the Spirit of the EVER-LIVING had fallen upon him, and he had torn it in two like tearing a kid,—but had not told his father or his mother what he had done.)—

So they went down and spoke to the woman, who was perfect in the eyes of Samson, and stayed some time for the marriage.—But he went aside one day to look at the carcase of the lion, and observed a swarm of bees in the skeleton, and honey, so he took some into his hand, and walked along, and ate as he walked with his father and mother. Then he gave them some, and they ate, but he did not tell them that he had taken the honey from the skeleton of a lion.

There came meat from the Eater; and from the Strong came sweetness."

And they were not able to guess the riddle by the third day. But, when the seventh day came, they said to Samson's wife, "Open your husband, and explain the riddle for us, or we will burn you, and destroy your father's house with fire! unless you tell it to us!"

Samson's wife consequently wept to him, and said, "You hate me now, and do not love me,—you have not explained that riddle to me and my relatives!"

But he answered her, "I have not explained it to my father and mother,—so why should I explain it to you?"

She consequently wept over him the seven days that the feast lasted, and when the seventh day came he explained it to her,—for she wore him out,—and she explained it to her relatives. So the men of the village said to him at the end of the seventh day at sunset:

"What is sweeter than honey? And what stronger than a lion?"

But he replied to them, "If you had not ploughed with my heifer, you would not have found out my riddle."

Then the spirit of enthusiasm came upon him, and he went down to Ashkalon, and killed there thirty men, and took their clothing, and gave the suits of clothing to the guessers of his riddle,—but he was furious, and went off to the house of his father.

The wife of Samson, however, was left with the companions who had accompanied him.

Samson comes to fetch his Wife.

Her Father refuses him.

Afterwards when the time of wheat harvest came Samson visited his wife with a goat's kid, and said, "I wish to go to my wife's chamber." But her father would not allow him to enter. Her father also remarked, "I said to myself, he hates her. So I have given her to your friend. Is not her younger sister handsomer than she? I will give her to you instead of her!"

(B.C. 1140.) Samson's Revenge.

He burns the Philistines' Cornfields.

Samson, however, replied to him, "I will be revenged this time on the Philistines for doing me wrong!" and went and caught three hundred foxes, and took torches and tied their tails together, and fixed 5 a torch between the two tails, then fired the torches and sent them amongst the cornfields of the Philistines, and burnt the shocks and standing corn, and the olive-yards. When the Philistines enquired, “Who has done this?” they were told, “Samson, the son-in-law of the Thimnite, because he took his wife and gave her to his companion.” The Philistines therefore went up and burnt her and her father with fire. But Samson said to them, “Because you have done this, I will be revenged upon you, and then I will cease!” So he smote them hip and thigh with a great slaughter. Then he went and occupied a cavern in the precipice of Aitan.

(B.C. 1140.) The Philistines in Revenge plunder Judah, and demand Samson, but he slaughters a Thousand of them with the Jaw of an Ass.

9 The Philistines afterwards went up and encamped in Judah, and advanced to Balkhi. When the men of Judah asked “Why have you advanced against us?” they replied “You must hand over to us Samson for us to do what we intend to him.”

10 Three thousand men therefore went from Judah to the cavern in the precipice of Aitan, and said to Samson, “Do you not know that the Philistines govern us? Then why have you done this to us?” When he replied, “As they did to me, I have done to them!”

11 But they answered him, “We have come to bind you, and give you to the hands of the Philistines.” Samson only said to them, “Swear to me that you will not assail me yourselves!”

12 So they replied to him saying, “We will only bind you and deliver you to their hands; and we will not kill you.” Then they bound him with two new ropes and hoisted him down from the cliff. But when they came to Lekhi, and the Philistines shouted at his approach, an enthusiasm fell upon him and he smashed the manacles that were upon his arms like burnt flax, and snapped the cords off his hands, and finding the fresh jaw-bone of an ass, he put out his hand and seized it, and killed a thousand men with it! Then Samson exclaimed:—

“With the jaw-bone of an ass, 16 I have made them asses!—
With the jaw-bone of an ass, 17 I’ve slain a thousand men!”

And as he ceased speaking he threw the jaw-bone from his hand, and named the place “Jaw-hill.”

Samson’s Exhaustion after the Fight.

His Prayer.

Then he was terribly exhausted, and cried to the EVER-LIVING, and said, “You have given this great victory to the hand of Your servant, and now I shall die for thirst, or fall by the hand of the uncircumcised.”

Then GOD opened the well at Balkhi, and water came from it, and he drank and his spirit returned to him, and he survived; therefore he called its name “Prayer-well,” which is in Balkhi to this day. He afterwards judged in Israel during the Philistine period, twenty years.

(b.c. 1139.) Samson caught by a Harlot at Gaza, but escapes.

Samson once went to Gaza, and saw a woman, a harlot, and went to her. The Gazites said, “Samson has come.” So they surrounded and laid an ambush for him all night at the gate of the city, and waited all the night, saying, “At dawn of day we will kill him!”

But Samson lay down till midnight. Then he arose at midnight and pulled up the doors of the city gate with the two posts, and the cross bar, and placed them on his shoulders and carried them to the top of the hill that is opposite Hebron.

(b.c. 1138.) Samson entangled by the Harlot, Delilah of Shorek.

And after this he loved a woman in the vale of Shorek, and her name was Delilah; so the lords of the Philistines went to her, and said, “Pump him, and find out in what his great strength consists, and in what way we can master and chain him to destroy him, and we will each give you one thousand one hundred shekels.”

1 Ramath-lekhi, in Hebrew.—F. F.
6 Delilah consequently said to Samson, "Tell me, now, in what your strength consists? And in what way they could bind and destroy you?"

7 And Samson answered her, "If they bind me with seven wet ropes that have never been dried, I shall become feeble like an ordinary man."

8 So the lords of the Philistines brought to her seven wet ropes that had never been dried, and she bound him with them, while an ambush hid in her chamber. Then she exclaimed to him, "The Philistines are upon you, Samson!" but he snapped the ropes as he would snap a thread of tow burnt in the fire. Consequently his power was not discovered.

9 Therefore Delilah said to Samson, "I see you are laughing at me, and telling me lies! Tell me now how could I bind you?"

(B.C. 1127.) Samson, however, deludes.

10 So he replied to her, "If I am bound with fresh willows that have not been used in any work, I shall become feeble and be like a common man!"

11 Delilah accordingly took fresh willows, and bound him with them, and then exclaimed to him, "The Philistines are upon you, Samson!" (and an ambush was laid in the chamber), but he snapped them off his arms like a thread.

(B.C. 1121.) Delilah continues to try and find the secret of his strength, to betray him, and succeeds.

12 So she fastened them to the loom, and exclaimed to him, "The Philistines are upon you, Samson!" when he awoke from his sleep, and pulled up the pins of the loom with the web.

13 Delilah afterwards said to Samson, "So far you have laughed at me, and told me lies! Tell me, how can I bind you?" And he answered her, "If the seven plaits of my hair are woven in a loom!"

14 Then she exclaimed, "What! Do you say you love me, when your heart is not mine? These three times you have laughed at me, and not told me in what your great strength consists!"

So when she had worn him out by 16 talking every day, and worried and exhausted his life to death, he told her the whole of his heart, and said "A razor has never gone upon my head, for I was devoted to God from birth. If I were shaved, then my strength would leave me and I should become feeble like another man."

Then Delilah saw that he had told her all his heart, and she sent and called the lords of the Philistines, saying, "Come up now, for he has told me all his heart!" The lords of the Philistines consequently went up to her, and they brought the money with them. And she laid him asleep on her lap, and called to a man who cut off the seven plaits of his head, and broke and degraded him,—and his strength went from him.

15 Then she exclaimed, "The Philistines are upon you, Samson!" and he awoke from his sleep, and said, "I will go out, for once, for a time, and refresh myself," but he did not know that the Ever-Living had left him! The Philistines then seized him, and put out his eyes, and took him down to Gaza, and bound him in chains, and he ground at the mill in the prison with slaves.

16 But he awaited the growing up of the hair of his head that had been shaved.

(B.C. 1120.) The Philistines make a Thanksgiving Feast to Dagon for Samson's being captured.

Meantime the lords of the Philistines prepared to sacrifice a great sacrifice to Dagon, their god, and to triumph, for they said, "Our god has given Samson our enemy into our power!" They therefore showed him to the people and praised their god, for they said, "Our god has given our enemy into our power, who wasted our country, and who caused us much trouble." And when their hearts were delighted they exclaimed, "Bring Samson and let him make sport for us!"

17 Samson's prayer and tragic death.

So they brought Samson from the Slaves' Prison, and he made sport before them, and they placed him in a Prison Cell.
26 between the pillars. Then Samson said to the warden who had him by the hand, "Come near to me, and place me by the pillars upon which the building is supported, that I may rest myself on them."

27 Now the building was full of men and women, and all the lords of the Philistines were there, and about three thousand men and women looking at the sport of Samson.

28 Then Samson prayed to the EVER-LIVING, and said, "EVER-LIVING GOD, remember me now, and strengthen me this time also, my GOD, and I shall be at once avenged for my two eyes, upon the Philistines." Then Samson grasped the two central pillars upon which the building was supported,—one with his right and the other with his left hand,—and Samson exclaimed, "Perish my life with the Philistines," and bent with might, and the building fell upon the lords, and upon all the people who were in it,—so the dead whom he killed with his death were more than he had killed in his life.

31 His relatives and all the house of his father descended, however, and carried him away, and buried him between Tzarah and Ashtaol in the tomb of Manoh his father. But he judged in Israel twenty years.

Mikah and the Danites, and his Teraph. An Historical Poem.

17 There was a man in Mount Ephraim, named Mikah, who said to his mother, "Those eleven hundred of silver which were taken from you, and about which you cursed and swore in my hearing,—I have your money; I stole it." And his mother replied, "The EVER-LIVING bless you, my son!"

3 So he returned the eleven hundred of money to his mother, when she said to him, "I had consecrated that money to the EVER-LIVING on account of my son, to make an image, and a shrine; but now I will give it to you!"

4 So he returned it to his mother. But he took two hundred of the money, and gave it to a silversmith, who made an image and a shrine, and it was in the house of Mikah, and Mikah made it a House of gods, and made an ephod and a teraph, and also set aside one of his sons, and he was the priest to it.

REFRAIN.
There was no king in Israel in those days;—
Each did what was right in his own eyes.

There was also a youth of Bethlehem-Judah, in the clan of Judah, but he was a Levite, who resided there. And the man went from the village of Bethlehem-Judah to settle where he might find a home, and he came to Mount Ephraim, to the house of Mikah, in making his journey, when 9 Mikah asked him, "From where do you come?" And he answered "I am a Levite from Bethlehem-Judah, and I am going to settle in Ashur."

But Mikah said to him, "Stay with me, as a father and a priest, and I will pay you ten silvers a year, and a suit of robes, and your board."

So the Levite consented, and the 11 Levite was content to settle with the man Mikah, and the youth became to him as one of his sons. Mikah 12 also appointed the Levite, and the young man became his priest, and lived in the house of Mikah. Consequently Mikah said, "Now I know that the EVER-LIVING will prosper me, because I have got a Levite for a priest."

REFRAIN.
There was no king in Israel in those days;—
Each did what was right in his own eyes.

At that time the tribe of Dan was seeking itself a district for settlement, for it had not obtained until that period a district amongst the tribes of Israel. The Danites consequently sent five men from their clan, all of them bold fellows, from Tzarah and Ashtaol, to examine the country and search it, and said to them, "Go, search the country." So they came to Mount Ephraim, to the house of Mikah, and lodged there. While they were in the house of Mikah they recognised the voice of the young Levite, and were attracted by it, and said to him, "When did you come here? And what do you do here? and for how much?"

And he answered them, "Mikah does this and that for me, and hires me, and I am his priest."

When they replied to him, "Enquire, now, of God, and learn the result of the journey that we are going upon."

And the priest answered them, "Go in peace! The EVER-LIVING accompanies the way you are going!"

So the five men went and arrived at Lashah, and saw that the people inhabited it in security under the government of Zidon, quietly and securely, and there were no soldiers in the country. It was controlled and administered from Zidon, and they had no troubles for themselves.

When they returned to their relatives at Tzarah and Ashthaol, they asked, "What about them?" When they replied, "Come on and let us assail them, for we have seen the country, and it is very beautiful. Go, you idlers, do not delay to march, and go to seize the country;—for you will come to a quiet people, and a land of extensive forests, which GOD will give to your hands,—a place where there is no want of anything that is upon earth!"

Consequently from the clan of the Danites there marched from Tzarah and Ashthaol six hundred men, all of them skilled warriors, and they advanced and encamped at Krith-Jarim in Judah,—therefore they called that place Dan's camp to this day. It is behind Krith-Jarim. From there they crossed Mount Ephraim, and proceeded to the house of Mikah.

There the five men who had gone to spy out the country entered and took the image, and the ephod, and the teraphim, and the shrine. But the priest asked "What are you doing?" When they answered him, "Be quiet! Put your hand on your mouth, and go with us, and be our father and priest. Is it better for you to be priest to the family of one man, or to be priest to a tribe and clan in Israel?"

So the heart of the priest was satisfied, and he took the ephod, and the teraphim, and the image, and went along with the army: who faced about and marched, and placed the children and baggage, and precious things in front of them.

When they had proceeded to a distance from the house of Mikah, the people who were employed in Mikah's family, shouted and followed the Danites, and called to the Danites, who turned on them and said to Mikah, "What is the matter with you, that you are shouting?"

And he answered, "You have stolen the god I made for myself, and the priest, and marched off!—so what have I left? And yet you ask me, 'What is the matter with you?'"

But the Danites replied to him; "Don't let us hear your noise! For fear some rough fellows should rush out on you,—and take your life, and the lives of your family." Then the Danites went along their way, and Mikah, seeing they were stronger than himself, faced about and returned to his own house.

Thus they stole what Mikah had made, and the priest who had come to him, and went to Lashah, to a people peaceable and quiet, and assailed them, and burnt their city with fire, and there was no deliverance, for they were far from Zidon, and had no intercourse with any person. They afterwards settled in the vale of Beth-rekhob, where they built a town, and called it Dan-town, after the name of their ancestor Dan, who was born to Israel, but the name of the place was formerly Lashah. The Danites also set up for themselves the image, and Jonathan-ben-Ghersham-ben-Masheh, he and his sons, were priests to the tribe of Dan until the time of removing from the country, and they worshipped the image that Mikah made all the period that the House of GOD was at Shiloh.
THE CRIME OF GIBEAH: AN HISTORICAL POEM.

(The date is uncertain when the crime was committed.—F. F.)

19 It was also in the period when there was no king in Israel, that a certain Levite resided at the back of Mount Ephraim, and he married a woman of Bethlehem-Judah, as a second wife, but this second wife deserted him and went from him to the house of her father at Bethlem-Judah, and was there for a period of four months.

3 Then her husband arose and went after her to speak to her heart, to cause her to return and attend him. So he mounted his ass and went to the house of her father, and saw the girl's father, who was glad to meet him. And his father-in-law, the father of the girl, comforted him, and he stayed with him three days, and they ate and drank, and rested there.

5 When the fourth day came, they got up in the morning, and he arose to depart, but the father of the girl, his father-in-law, said, "Refresh your heart with a little bread, and go after that." So he stayed and both of them ate together and drank. Then the father of the girl said to the man, "Be content now, and stay and let your heart enjoy itself." But the man arose to go. However his father-in-law pressed him, so he sat down and stayed there. However he got up on the morning of the fifth day to go, when the father of the girl said, "Comfort your heart, and delay till the turn of the day." So they ate and drank. Then the men of the town, sons of Belial, surrounded the house, knocked at the doors, and said to the master of the house, the old man, "Bring out the man who has come to your house, that we may outrage him!"

But his master said to him, "I will not turn to a town of foreigners where there are none of the Children of Israel. Let us pass over to Gibeah. Therefore," he added to the lad, "come, let us enter one of these places, for we will lodge in Gibeah, or in Rama."

So they passed on and marched and came to the south side of Gibeah of Benjamin, and they turned towards it to go and lodge in Gibeah, and went and sat in the square of the town, but no person invited them to his house to lodge.

At last an old man came from his work in the fields, at dusk—a man from Mount Ephraim, who was a resident in Gibeah—but his wife was a native of Benjamin. Raising his eyes he saw the man at a distance in the square of the town, and the old man said, "Where do you go? and whence do you come?"

And they replied to him, "We are crossing from Bethlehem-Judah to the back of Mount Ephraim, from where I am, but I came to Bethlem-Judah, and I am returning to the House of the EVER-LIVING. But no man has invited me to his house, although we have straw and provender for our asses, and food and wine for myself and my waiting woman and lad. We want nothing at all except shelter."

Then the old man said; "Peace be with you! Bring your asses with you to me! Only do not lodge in the street." So he took them to his house, and heroded the asses, and washed their feet, and they ate and drank.

They were cheering their hearts when the men of the town, sons of Belial, surrounded the house, knocked at the doors, and said to the master of the house, the old man, "Bring out the man who has come to your house, that we may outrage him!"

But the master of the house went out to them, and said, "No, my friends! Do not inflict wrong upon me, I pray,—since this man has come to my house, do not commit this wickedness! I have two maiden daughters, and his servant-wife, I will bring them out to you, and you can outrage them,—and do to them
what pleases you! But to this man
do not such a loathsome thing."
25 But the men would not listen to him; so the man seized his servant-
wife, and sent her out to them outside, and they outraged her, and maltreated her all the night, until daybreak, but went away from her at the departure of darkness. Then at the arrival of dawn the woman came,
—and fell before the doorway of the man’s house, where she had been outraged until daylight.
27 Her master also arose at daybreak
and opened the doors of the house,
and came out to proceed on his journey and saw the woman, his servant-wife, fallen before the house
with her hands upon the doorstep, 28 and he said to her, "Get up and come along!" But she spoke not.
Then he brought the ass and lifted
the woman up, and went to his place, 29 and entered his house, where he took a knife, and seized his servant-wife and divided her corpse into twelve pieces and sent to all the 30 countries of Israel, and all who saw it said, "There has not been, nor has there been seen anything like this from the time the Children of Israel came up from the Mitzrayim until this day! Apply yourselves to it,— consult, and speak!"

20 All the Children of Israel then went out and assembled the Parliament unanimously from Dan to Beersheba, and the country of Gilad, to the 2 Ever-Living at Mizpah, where the Chiefs of the people of all the tribes of Israel presented themselves as an assembly of the people before GOD,
with four hundred thousand men,
disciplined soldiers.

3 The Benjaminites, however, heard that the Children of Israel had gone up to Mizpah where the Children of Israel asked, "Who has committed this crime?" And the Levite, the husband of the woman who had been murdered, answered, and said, "I and my servant-wife came to Gibeah
of Benjamin to lodge, when the blackguards of Gibeah rose upon me,
and surrounded the house at night,
purposing to murder me, and they outraged my wife until she died. So I took my wife and cut her to pieces,
and sent her to all the land possessed
by Israel, because they had committed such a crime in Israel. Now, Sons of Israel, apply to the matter—
and consult about it!"

Then all the Parliament arose as 8
one man and exclaimed, "Let no man go to his home, nor any man
return to his house, for this is what 9 shall be done to Gibeah,—we will assail it by lot, and we will select ten 10
men in a hundred, from every tribe of Israel, and a hundred from a thousand, and a thousand from ten thousand, as a provisional draft of the army for action, and send them against Gibeah of Benjamin, because of the great crime they have committed in Israel, and all the people 11
of Israel shall approach the town as if united in one man."

However, the tribes of Israel sent 12
officers to all the tribe of Benjamin to enquire;—"What crime is this which has occurred amongst you?
Therefore, now, give up those men, 13
sons of Belial, who are in Gibeah, and we will execute them, and burn out
the crime from Israel."

The Benjaminites, however, would not listen to the voice of their countrymen the Children of Israel, but 14 assembled from their villages to Gibeah, to prepare for war with the Children of Israel, and the Benjam-sites at that period could collect from their towns twenty-six thousand disciplined men, besides the inhabitants of Gibeah,—and they amounted to seven hundred chosen men. These 16
seven hundred skilful men were more than a numerous force. All of them were both-handed at slinging stones
to a hair's breadth, and never missed.

But Israel stood up, without 17
Benjamin, four hundred thousand men, all of them disciplined sol-diers,
men of war, and they arose and 18
advanced to Bethel, and enquired of GOD—where the Children of Israel asked, "Who of us shall go up to open the war with the Benjaminites?"
When the LORD replied, "Judah shall open it."

The Children of Israel accordingly 19
arose at dawn and camped before Gibeah, and the leader of Israel 20 advanced to fight with Benjamin, and the Israelites proceeded from the camp towards Gibeah. But the 21 Benjaminites came out from Gibeah, and left Israel that day twenty-two thousand men on the ground. The 22
army of the men of Israel, however,
were bold, and continued to prosecute
the war from the spot they had advanced to on the first day. The Children of Israel also went up and wept before the EVER-LIVING until the evening, and enquired of the EVER-LIVING asking, "Shall we continue to pursue the war with the Benjaminites, our countrymen?" And the EVER-LIVING replied, "Go up against them."

The Israelites consequently approached the Benjaminites on the second day, and Benjamin came out to meet them, from Gibeah, and they destroyed of the Children of Israel on the field eighteen thousand men, all of whom were trained soldiers.

So all the Israelites therefore went up, and all the army came to Bethel, and they wept and sat there before the EVER-LIVING. The Children of Israel also enquired of the EVER-LIVING, and placed the Ark of the Covenant of GOD at their right hand, and Phinehas, a descendant of Eleazar-ben-Aaron stood, before it on the right hand of them, and said, "Continue still to go to war with the Benjaminites your countrymen, until defeated. The EVER-LIVING also says, 'Go up! for to-morrow I will give them into your power.' But Israel must place ambushes around Gibeah."

So the Children of Israel advanced against the Benjaminites for the third time, and they approached to Gibeah step by step, and the Benjaminites came out to meet the force, which drew off from the town, and waited for the attack from the victorious army step by step to the highway which leads to the ascent of Bethel, and adjoins to the field of Gibeah,—losing about thirty men of Israel.

Then the Benjaminites said, "We are driving them before us as formerly." But the Children of Israel said, "We will retreat and draw them from the town to the highway, then let all the army of Israel arise from their place, and advance from Bal-Thamar, and the ambush of Israel, placed at the locality of the hill-moorland, must advance from the south to Gibeah with twelve thousand men, the bravest of all Israel, and fight boldly and they will not know that the stroke of their crime is upon them."

So the EVER-LIVING discomfited the Benjaminites before Israel, and the Israelites disabled on that day twenty-five thousand one hundred men of Benjamin, all disciplined soldiers, for the Benjaminites fancied that they retreated, and that the Israelites gave way to the Benjaminites; but those relied upon the ambush which they had placed on the hill, for the ambush kept quiet and lay down upon the hill until they rushed and attacked the whole town with the sword; and it had been arranged with the men of Israel by the Commander of Israel, if the ambush succeeded, to send up a cloud of smoke from the town. Consequently the Israelites retreated to the camp, and the Benjaminites, who were encouraged to the attack, wounded about thirty of the Israelites, "for," they said, "they certainly fly before us, as in the former battles," so they continued their retreat until the ascent from the town of the pillar of smoke. Then Benjamin faced round, and saw it ascending to the sky from all the town. The Commander of Israel also turned front, and the Benjaminites were terrified, for they saw the punishment of their crime was upon them, and turned from the face of the Israelites to the way of the desert, and were defeated in the battle, and those who were in the town were destroyed in the midst of it. But the Benjaminites turned their flight from the level way to the refuge of the hills on the west, and there fell of Benjamin eighteen thousand men, all of them brave fellows. Thence they turned and fled towards the desert, to the cliffs of Rimmon, and five thousand men went up to the cliffs. But they were followed to Gidim, and two thousand of them slain. Thus all of Benjamin who fell on that day were twenty-five thousand men, disciplined soldiers, all of them strong men. But there turned and fled to the desert, to the cliff of Rimmon, six hundred men, and they held the cliff of Rimmon four months.

Then the Israelites turned upon the Benjaminites and they struck with the sword thoroughly from man to beast, and every town they captured they set on fire.

Then all Israel swore in Mizpah saying, "No man among us shall give his daughter as a wife to Benjamin."

Afterwards all the people came to Bethel, and sat there before the EVER-LIVING until the evening, and lifted up their voice and wept a great weeping, and asked "Why, EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel, has this come to Israel, to destroy to-day one of the tribes of Israel?" But when next day came the people got up and built an altar, and offered a burnt offering and peace offerings.

Then the children of Israel asked, "Who has not come up to the Assembly of all the tribes of Israel before the EVER-LIVING, for a great oath has been sworn that whoever came not up to the EVER-LIVING at Mitzphah shall be put to death."

The Children of Israel also grieved for Benjamin their brother, and said, "To-day a tribe has been blotted from Israel. What shall we do for them to provide them wives, since we have sworn not to give them a supply of wives?" So they asked, "Is there a single tribe of Israel which has not come up to the EVER-LIVING at Mitzphah?" and found that no man had come to the camp from Jabesh-Gilad, to the Assembly. They therefore reviewed the army, and did not find there a Jabeshite from Jabesh-Gilad. The Parliament consequently sent there twelve thousand chosen men, and commanded them saying, "Go and assail the Jabeshites of Jabesh-Gilad with the sword, both men and boys. But act in this way;—You shall destroy every male and every female who has had connection with a man." But they found of the population of Jabesh four hundred girls, maidens, who had not known man by connection with a male, and they brought them to the camp at Shiloh, which is in the land of Canaan.

Then all the Parliament sent and addressed the Benjaminites who were on the cliff of Rimon, and proclaimed peace with them. So the Benjaminites returned, and they gave them the women who came from Jabesh-Gilad, but they were not found sufficient. The people therefore grieved for Benjamin, because the EVER-LIVING had made a breach in the tribes of Israel.

The Lords of the Parliament also said, "What shall we do to supply wives, for we have destroyed the women of Benjamin?" So they said "Let Benjamin seize upon the unwilling rather than a tribe should be blotted from Israel, for we are not able to give them wives from our daughters, because the Children of Israel have sworn, imposing a curse on whoever gives a wife to Benjamin."

They then made a feast of several days to the EVER-LIVING in Shiloh, which is at the north of Bethel towards the sun-rise, on the highway leading up from Bethel to Shechem, and near to Libnah, and they also instructed the Benjaminites, saying;—"Go and hide yourselves in the vineyards and watch, and when you see the girls come out from Shiloh to dance in the dances, then come out from the vineyards, and each of you catch a wife for himself from the girls of Shiloh, and take them to the country of Benjamin. And if their fathers should come, or their brothers, to complain to us, we will command them to be lenient with you for taking each one his wife by force, because we cannot give to you as at ordinary times."

The Benjaminites accordingly did so, and carried off wives to the number of those deficient, who stole, and went off, and returned to their estates, where they rebuilt their villages and settled in them. The Israelites also marched from there at the same time to their tribes and clans, so everyone came from there to his home.

¹ These two beautiful epics, regarded as narrative poems, were probably the production of Isaiah himself, founded upon traditions of the events, or from historical records long since lost; and were intended to show his corrupted and party-riven countrymen the horrors and crimes produced by disregard to religion and political unity. I especially conclude so from the insistence upon the doctrine of a Monarchy being the best security for social laws and safeguard of individual life. The poet has made no attempt to fix any definite dates to them, and I consequently do not attempt it.—FERRAR FENTON.
