AD HOC COMMITTEE ON THE REVIEW OF
THE ROLE OF THE UNITED NATIONS
IN THE FIELD OF DISARMAMENT

STRENGTHENING OF THE ROLE OF THE UNITED NATIONS
IN THE FIELD OF DISARMAMENT

Administrative and financial implications of documents
A/AC.181/L.5/Rev.1 and Add.1 and of all other working papers submitted at the second session of the Ad Hoc Committee on the Review of the Role of the United Nations in the Field of Disarmament

Note by the Secretary-General

Introduction

1. At its second session (14-24 June 1976), the Ad Hoc Committee on the Review of the Role of the United Nations in the Field of Disarmament invited the Secretary-General to submit, at his earliest convenience, information on the administrative and financial implications of working paper
A/AC.181/L.5/Rev.1 and Add.1 submitted by Sweden and of all other working papers submitted at that session. Only one other working paper, A/AC.181/L.7, submitted by Mexico, contains proposals requiring consideration in this respect. This note, therefore, gives information on the administrative and financial implications of the proposals put forward in the working paper submitted by Sweden and of the amendments thereto presented in the working paper submitted by Mexico.

Recommendations concerning the relationship between the General Assembly and the Conference of the Committee on Disarmament (CCD)

2. The working paper submitted by Sweden contains in paragraph 7 the following recommendations:

"(a) The CCD report, being an indispensable document of the General Assembly, should as a rule be available to delegations in New York not later than 15 September each year. The report should reproduce any decisions and conclusions reached and present in summary form the main substance of the discussions in the CCD, with a view to increasing its usefulness to delegations."
"(b) All official CCD documents should be made available to all Members of the United Nations through their delegations in New York on a regular and continuing basis.

"(c) The General Assembly, in entrusting tasks to the Conference of the Committee on Disarmament, should take into account the existing workload of the Committee as well as the progress achieved on the issues before it."

3. In connexion with paragraph 7 (a) and (b), the Secretariat has submitted to the Ad Hoc Committee preliminary estimates (annex I) which can now be confirmed.

4. With respect to paragraph 7 (c), account has to be taken of the fact that the workload of the Committee, to a large extent, determines the need for substantive servicing of the CCD by the disarmament secretariat. In this respect there has been a gradual, but substantial increase in the requirements to be met. As a result, whereas some years ago the Eighteen-Nation Committee on Disarmament could be serviced by 2-3 officers, it is now necessary to send 5-6 to the CCD. The reason is that the activities of the CCD have greatly increased in the course of 1976 and previous years and the work of the Secretariat assigned to the Conference is becoming increasingly specialized. At present the CCD is holding three different types of meetings: (a) plenary meetings; (b) informal meetings with or without experts; (c) informal meetings of working groups. This year the CCD, in addition to plenary meetings, has held many informal meetings with the participation of experts on (a) prevention of environmental modification techniques for military or any other hostile use; (b) prohibition of new weapons of mass destruction and of new systems of such weapons; (c) cessation of nuclear-weapon tests; and (d) a ban on chemical weapons. It has also held numerous informal meetings (without experts) on organization of work and will hold a number of informal meetings for the adoption of its final report. On 1 July 1976, the CCD established a working group to negotiate a convention to prohibit environmental modification techniques for military or any other hostile purpose. An Ad Hoc Group of Scientific Experts to consider international co-operative measures to detect and identify seismic events has been established. In both cases, the CCD secretariat provides assistance and services as deemed necessary.

5. For a number of years, the verbatim records of plenary meetings of the CCD have been assembled by the CCD secretariat without recourse to the services of verbatim reporters. In addition, since 1962, the secretariat has prepared unofficial summaries of all informal meetings of the CCD, with or without experts. Now the secretariat is not only continuing to prepare unofficial summaries of such meetings, whose number has increased strongly in the meantime, but is also preparing the summaries of meetings of working groups. Moreover, on 1 July 1976, the CCD decided that the draft report of the Committee to the General Assembly would be prepared by the secretariat. It also decided that the reports of the working groups to the CCD would be prepared by the secretariat. Many of these developments could not be anticipated in the preparation of the regular budget for the biennium 1976-1977.

6. In addition, a practice has been started to request the Secretariat to prepare position and background papers, as well as other compilations, on various subjects.
So far in 1976, papers of that nature have been prepared, at the request of the CCD, on such subjects as environmental modification techniques, nuclear-weapons tests, chemical weapons, the mid-term review of the Disarmament Decade and organization of work.

7. In order to cope with these increased responsibilities, the Committee and Conference Services Section is continuing to draw resources from the other disarmament units. However, as described below, the activities of the other disarmament units are also increasing and becoming more specialized.

8. For these reasons, it is recommended that the Committee and Conference Services Section be strengthened by the addition of two Professional staff members, one at the P-4 and one at the P-2/1 level, and one General Service staff member at the G-4/1 level. The financial implications of these posts are estimated at $55,300 for 1977.

Recommendation concerning studies

9. The recommendation contained in working paper A/AC.181/L.5/Rev.1, paragraph 8, with regard to disarmament studies reads as follows:

"(a) The General Assembly /should/ consider making increased use of in-depth studies of disarmament and related matters on an ad hoc basis conducted by the Secretary-General with the assistance of qualified governmental experts and with assistance, whenever appropriate, from other sources.

"(b) The capacity of the United Nations Secretariat should be such as to ensure that it can effectively carry out the responsibilities given to it in connexion with such studies."

10. In recent years, a number of studies have been undertaken by the Secretary-General with the assistance of qualified governmental experts. Reference can be made to the following ongoing projects:

(a) Economic and social consequences of the arms race and of military expenditures.

(b) Reduction of military budgets.

The financial implications approved by the General Assembly for these studies amount to $79,000 and $82,000 respectively. These costs include travel and per diem expenses for the experts.

11. In the preparation of these and other reports, it has been the practice in recent years to depend on the Secretariat for the actual drafting based on individual contributions submitted by the experts. In order to temporarily strengthen the Secretariat for the drafting of these reports it has been found necessary to engage the assistance of outside consultants. Should, however, the General Assembly decide to increase the number and frequency of studies of disarmament and related matters, the addition of permanent staff would be preferable. Administrative and financial implications of this proposal would, however, best be considered in the context of a discussion by the General Assembly of what number of studies should be carried out.

Recommendations concerning collection, compilation and dissemination of information

12. The working paper submitted by Sweden contains the following recommendations designed to improve existing United Nations facilities for collection, compilation and dissemination of information:

"(a) The United Nations [should] publish annually before the regular session of the General Assembly in all the official languages of the Organization a United Nations Disarmament Yearbook. This publication should contain a descriptive review of the main developments and ongoing negotiations in the field of disarmament, including a summary of the General Assembly resolutions adopted and of the proposals made in this connexion. It should further contain inter alia:

- texts of new treaties and agreements in the field of disarmament as well as drafts of such texts submitted to the United Nations or the Conference of the Committee on Disarmament (CCD);

- a report on the status of the existing disarmament agreements;

- decisions and conclusions on these matters reached by, inter alia, the CCD, the IAEA and possible Review Conferences;

- factual information, as communicated by Governments or appearing in their official publications, on military expenditures, armed forces and armaments, military production, arms trade and foreign aid in the military field, with full citation of the sources. Such material should appear together with an outline for criteria for the study and comparison of the military budgets as examined and agreed upon by the United Nations once such criteria have been established. 1/

"(b) The United Nations [should] publish approximately three times a year a disarmament periodical of the United Nations in all the official languages of the Organization. The publication would present in highly readable form current facts and developments in the field of disarmament, such as summaries

1/ Pending the establishment of such criteria, information referred to in this paragraph should be published with an appropriate introductory explanation with respect to the relative value of such information for the purpose of the study and comparison of the military potential of States.
of new proposals and of important relevant statements and communiqués. It would also contain, inter alia, summaries of in-depth studies undertaken by the United Nations or the CCD. It should further provide for bibliographies in the field of disarmament and related matters.

"(c) To the extent that these tasks are entrusted to the United Nations with regard to the compilation and dissemination of information on disarmament for the benefit of Member States and public opinion, appropriate steps should be taken to ensure that the United Nations Disarmament Affairs Division can effectively carry out these responsibilities.

"(d) The United Nations Secretariat, through the appropriate channels, continues to disseminate to the general public information on disarmament questions and related matters including information contained in the periodical and the Yearbook." (A/AC.181/L.5/Rev.1 and Add.1, para. 9).

The working paper submitted by Mexico contains an amendment to paragraph 9 (b) which reads as follows:

"(b) The United Nations should publish approximately three times a year a disarmament periodical of the United Nations in all the official languages of the Organization. The publication would present in highly readable form current facts and developments in the field of disarmament, such as summaries of new proposals and of important relevant statements and communiqués. It would also contain, inter alia, summaries of in-depth studies undertaken by the United Nations or the Conference of the Committee on Disarmament. It should further provide for annotated bibliographies and brief summaries of important books and articles on disarmament questions and related matters." (A/AC.181/L.7).

13. The publication of a United Nations Disarmament Yearbook and a disarmament periodical, three times a year, would represent a substantial increase in the workload of the disarmament secretariat. In comparison with present resources, it is estimated that the following additional staff would be needed:

(a) For the Disarmament Yearbook:

1 P-5; 1 G-5; 1 G-4/1

The financial implications for these posts for 1977 are estimated at $61,000.

(b) For the Disarmament Bulletin:

1 P-4; 1 P-2/1; 1 G-4/1

The financial implications for these posts are estimated at $58,100.

14. The processing of the proposed United Nations Yearbook on Disarmament and of the United Nations periodical by the Department of Conference Services would require the provision of additional resources to cover expenditures on editing, translation, revision, typing and printing.

15. Editing of the original material would require one man/month of temporary assistance to edit 300 standard pages of the Yearbook manuscript at an estimated cost of $3,000 (1.5 man/months to edit 450 pages, 2 man/months to edit 600 pages). Editing of one issue of 50 standard pages of the periodical would require the provision of 0.5 man/weeks for editorial temporary assistance at an estimated cost of $500. To the extent possible, this workload would be absorbed within the resources available to the Department.

16. Translation, revision and typing of the above material on disarmament would have to be done either externally on a contractual basis, or internally displacing an equivalent amount of work to be done contractually at the following costs (1977 rates):

17. The expenditures involved in the reproduction and distribution of the publications would vary, depending on the type of reproduction and the number of copies distributed. If most of the materials were to be distributed in an initial effort, the costs would be considerably less than those to cover expenditures for storage of large amounts of materials and for the issuance of the materials on a secondary basis.

22. The cost of processing of one issue of the Yearbook in three languages only (size 8 1/2" x 11"; 5,000 English copies, 2,000 French copies, 1,000 Spanish copies reproduced and distributed; 300 ESP edited, translated, revised and typed) is estimated at $34,000 at 1977 rates.

23. The cost of processing one issue of the periodical in two languages only, (6,000 English and 2,500 French copies per issue reproduced in one colour and distributed; 50 ESP per issue edited, translated, revised and typed) is estimated at $15,000 (1977 rates).

24. The publication of both the Disarmament Yearbook and the Disarmament Bulletin could be achieved in two stages. One possibility would be to begin preparation of the Yearbook in 1977, and of the Bulletin in 1978. In this case, the recruitment of necessary staff could also take place in two stages. The manning table in annex II has been drawn up on this assumption.

25. It is considered that the resources of the Information and Research Section are sufficient to meet the additional responsibilities that would derive from the amendment to paragraph 9 (b) submitted by Mexico.
Recommendation concerning the follow-up of disarmament resolutions and agreements

26. The working paper submitted by Sweden contains in paragraph 10 the following recommendation concerning ways and means to enable the United Nations Secretariat to assist, on request, States parties to multilateral disarmament agreement in their duty to ensure the effective functioning of such agreements, including appropriate reviews:

"(a) States participating in multilateral disarmament negotiations should fully explore the possibilities of entrusting appropriate functions to the United Nations, its specialized agencies or the IAEA with respect to the implementation of multilateral disarmament agreements. The capacity of these organizations to assist States, on request, to meet their obligations arising out of agreements concluded in such negotiations should be commensurate with the tasks which might be entrusted to them;

"(b) As a rule such States should request the Secretary-General to assume the depositary role for multilateral disarmament conventions and treaties;

"(c) States participating in multilateral and regional disarmament negotiations should give serious consideration to the provision of Review Conferences. In making the necessary preparations for Review Conferences the States parties should consider requesting the United Nations to provide facilities, conference services and other assistance in connexion with such conferences. The United Nations should have the capacity necessary to meet such requests."

27. It is considered that the resources of the Section for Specific Problems are sufficient to meet the additional responsibilities that will derive from the above recommendation.

Recommendation concerning the disarmament secretariat

28. The working paper submitted by Sweden contains in paragraph 11 the following proposals:

"(a) The Disarmament Affairs Division be transformed into a United Nations Centre for Disarmament (UNCD) within the framework of the Department of Political and Security Council Affairs.

"(b) The Centre be headed by an official with the rank of Assistant Secretary-General.

"(c) The Centre to be staffed accordingly."

29. It would seem appropriate to maintain the basic structure of the disarmament secretariat and that the Centre be composed of the following units:

1. Office of Assistant Secretary-General;

2. Conference and Committee Services Division, headed by a Director (D-2) who would also act as Deputy to the Assistant Secretary-General;

3. Information and Research Service, headed by a Principal Officer (D-1);

4. Section for Specific Problems, headed by a Senior Officer (P-5).

30. The financial implications of paragraph 11 (b) are estimated for 1977 at $63,500 (1 A-S-G post plus a Personal Assistant to the A-S-G at the G-5 level).

31. The manning table for 1977 is given in annex II with reference to the various proposals described in the present note.

Summary

32. The total estimated cost of the posts referred to in paragraphs 8, 13 (a) and 30 is $179,900 for 1977. As indicated in paragraph 25, the posts related to the preparation of the Bulletin, of which the first-year cost is estimated at $58,100, might be recruited for in 1978. In addition, the annual costs of editing, translating and printing the Yearbook in six languages would amount to between $55,000 and $158,000 depending on the alternative chosen, and those of the Bulletin to between $45,000 (two languages only) and $243,000 (six languages) also depending on the alternative chosen.
Annex I

DISTRIBUTION AT HEADQUARTERS OF CCD DOCUMENTS

Paper prepared by the Secretariat at the request of the Committee

I.

The budget of the Conference of the Committee on Disarmament (CCD) is part of the United Nations budget. The expenditure estimates for the CCD, for the biennium 1976-1977, are included in the Proposed Programme Budget for the Biennium 1976-1977 (General Assembly, Official Records, Thirty-ninth Session, Supplement No. 6 (A/10006), vol. I, sect. 2, pp. 2-15 to 2-17).

The summary of total estimated costs, direct and apportioned, for the biennium 1976-1977 is as follows:

A. Direct costs $ 179,000.-

B. Apportioned costs 1,685,000.-

1,864,000.-

II.

At present no distribution of CCD PVs is made to Member States at United Nations Headquarters. The other CCD documents are distributed as part of the CCD report to the General Assembly.

If it were to be decided that a distribution of CCD PVs, as well as documents, be made to Member States at Headquarters, there would be the following extra costs:

(1) Extra cost of making a full distribution at Headquarters of the CCD PVs, at the time when the CCD report, with annexed CCD documents, is circulated as a document of the General Assembly.

It is estimated that it would cost about $14,300 to produce enough copies for a full distribution. 1/ It is expected at this stage, that it would be possible to absorb the additional distribution work without extra costs.

1/ It is estimated that if the CCD PVs were to be distributed upon request by Member States at Headquarters, the cost of reproduction would be reduced by about $1,300, but there would be no savings, nevertheless. In fact, it would be much more costly to distribute the PVs on a request basis than to make a full distribution.
(2) Extra cost of making a full distribution at Headquarters of CCD PVs and other documents at the same time as they are issued in Geneva.

The cost of a full distribution of the CCD PVs would be the same as under (1) above. There would be no extra cost for a full distribution of the other documents, as they would no longer be circulated as part of the CCD report. 2/ The distribution cost would rise proportionately to the number of times the documents are to be handled and distributed by the Section. However, at this stage, it is expected that it would be possible to absorb the distribution at no extra cost.

The estimates under (1) and (2) above are based on the following assumptions: (a) CCD PVs in English about 800 pages per year; (b) PVs and other documents to be distributed as CCD documentation in the four CCD languages (E,F,R,S); and (c) no editing to be done at Headquarters.

2/ The same considerations as under foot-note 1/ above apply here.
