We warmly invite forest land managers, scientists, and administrators to join this year's most comprehensive conversation about restoration after wildfire in California's forest lands.

Together, we'll explore the whole story – the interplay between social and ecological perspectives, cultivating a collective dialogue that branches toward real solutions.

With several ways to support, your participation will help make this fall's premiere California post-fire forest restoration gathering a great one

The gathering will build on three years of community conversations within the CA Reforestation Pipeline Cooperative with keynotes, panels, plus forums to build momentum for the restoration work ahead of us.

To be held December 2-4 at the base of the central Sierra Nevada foothills in Roseville, 'the Understory' will gather a diverse audience of forestry professionals to explore the restoration of resilient forests after fire - from the ground up.
