The Department of Social Sciences of the United States Military Academy at West Point invites candidates for a full-time, tenure-track, Assistant Professor of International Affairs with a focus in the politics of China and East Asia. Expertise in international political economy is also desirable. The position will begin in July 2022.

This is a full-time, tenure track appointments. Successful candidates for this position should be available to begin work no later than late June 2022. U.S. citizens and non-citizens with allegiance to the United States may apply. Salary and benefits are highly competitive.

To apply, please submit your full application packet digitally Ms. Marianne Daniello at marianne.daniello@westpoint.edu. Applicants must include: (1) a cover letter; (2) curriculum vitae; (3) a statement of research and teaching interests; (4) a scholarly writing sample; (5) unofficial copies of graduate school transcripts; (6) three letters of recommendation. If you are claiming veterans’ preference in your application, please indicate this in your cover letter and include your DD214 form in your submission. If claiming a military spouse preference, please include a copy of the sponsor’s Permanent Change of Station orders. In order to receive full consideration, applications must be received by Sunday, 31 October 2021.

Candidates will be evaluated according to the following factors: (1) Academic accomplishments in political science with an emphasis in the politics of China and East Asia, with accomplishments in international political economy also desirable; (2) Prior experience teaching high-quality college-level courses in political science, international political economy, and in the politics of China & East Asia; (3) ability to conduct high quality research and present results in a variety of media, to include (but not limited to) peer reviewed publications; (4) ability to lead and guide student research and offer academic counseling and mentorship; (5) willingness and ability to contribute to the United States Military Academy’s mission to “educate, train, and inspire” cadets to serve as leaders of character who will serve as commissioned officers in the United States Army.

The United States Military Academy at West Point was established in 1802 and continues to be the nation's premier leader development institution. It is the only college specifically charged with preparing young men and women for service as officers in the United States Army. As such, it has a singular educational focus on graduating enlightened military leaders of strong moral character whose minds are creative, critical, and resourceful. Located 50 miles north of New York City, this prestigious institution is nestled in the beautiful Hudson River Valley.