Our Year

Fighting for the Most Good Until the Job is Done

The Salvation Army served nearly 800,000 people via disaster relief services in 2018.

As 8,527 wildfires marked the deadliest disaster season in California's history, The Salvation Army was on the front lines, assisting evacuees, first responders, and more than 300,000 displaced families. In fact, as the fires raged on, so did we. Throughout the months of peril, we staffed eight evacuation centers; provided almost 180,000 meals, drinks, and snacks; and distributed donations from our warehouse to more than 4,500 individuals. But we didn’t stop there. In other regions of the country, where volcanoes and hurricanes uprooted thousands, we delivered infant supplies, comfort kits, and meals to disaster survivors. And we’re staying the course. Thanks to our generous donors, we’re investing in continued efforts to rebuild communities still suffering from the catastrophic 2017 hurricane season.
Fighting for the Most Good Across Borders

In partnership with local churches and community centers, The Salvation Army fed more than 750 people impacted by the border crisis in El Paso per day.

Amid America’s growing humanitarian crisis, The Salvation Army is living out its mission to meet human needs in God’s name, without discrimination, by helping to feed, clothe, and shelter displaced migrant families. Because we believe it is our duty as Christians to serve suffering humanity, regardless of what has put them in our path, we’ve worked closely with partner agencies in numerous communities to provide immediate physical, emotional, and spiritual care to the thousands vetted and processed by immigration services. We’re also partnering with The Salvation Army across Central America to address the root issues of the immigration crisis as we better equip international communities to thrive.
Fighting for the Most Good In the Heart of Our Communities

A $5.8 million donation helped build a crucial addition to one of The Salvation Army’s most beloved children’s camps.

This year, support from Margaret A. Cargill Philanthropies enabled us to expand the size and scope of our camp facilities in Big Bear, California. The additional 10,000-square-foot recreational center will provide more than 1,000 at-risk children with enhanced opportunities to explore dance, soccer, karate, and gymnastics as they enjoy the beauty of nature and the freedom of childhood. The Salvation Army also celebrated major wins in the fight against homelessness with help from the Bezos Family Foundation. In Houston, Texas, we implemented a new 30-day solutions model to combat homelessness and have already witnessed a reduction in reoccurrence. Likewise, our new program in Charlotte, North Carolina, is helping homeless clients find more permanent housing and job opportunities as they work toward greater stability.
Fighting for the Most Good In Everyday Battles

We distributed 16,848,216 tangible items of clothing, furniture, and gifts to families in need in 2018.

With 15% of our country’s homeless population considered chronically homeless, 50 million Americans facing food insecurity on a daily basis, and 14% of Americans living below the poverty line, there are millions of people in need of The Salvation Army’s assistance. That’s why we continue to offer “hand-up” programs such as utility assistance, transportation services, and subsidized child care to families fighting to rise above homelessness and poverty. In 2018, that meant providing social services to more than 14 million people dedicated to moving from simply “surviving” to fully thriving as they win their battles to make ends meet.
Fighting for the Most Good for Generations to Come

The Salvation Army now operates more than 700 Pathway of Hope centers nationwide.

Formed in 2011 as a revolutionary approach to combatting the intergenerational poverty epidemic, The Salvation Army’s Pathway of Hope program reached new milestones this year by expanding its reach throughout the country. With more than 700 active locations, each now providing more than 260 services such as case management, adult education, housing assistance, child-care centers, and job training, the program is equipping families to work toward sustainable change nationwide. Because children who live in long-term poverty are 32 times more likely to remain in poverty than their peers, the success and growth of Pathway of Hope is a major victory in breaking the cycle of intergenerational poverty.
Fighting for the Most Good With Passion and Purpose

Read letters from our National Commander and National Advisory Board Chairman detailing The Salvation Army’s:

• Innovative services and tactics
• 2018 victories
• Vision for the future
Dear Friends,

One hundred and fifty years ago, our founder, William Booth, pledged that The Salvation Army would fight for every last suffering soul on earth, regardless of the toll it might take. Today, I’m proud to say that we are still faithfully delivering on that mission in every single ZIP code of America.

This year, as we continued to fight for the most good across our communities, our country, and even our borders, we were as fierce as ever in our dedication to Doing The Most Good.

Powered by the strength of our Lord and fueled by the generosity of our donors, volunteers, and staff, we provided holiday assistance to more than 2.6 million people, distributed nearly 17 million tangible items to folks in need, and provided basic social services to over 14 million Americans. We also tenaciously worked to change public perception of human need by showcasing the unseen challenges faced by over 40 million Americans living on the poverty line.

As volcanoes, wildfires, mudslides, and hurricanes endangered hundreds, displaced thousands, and destroyed millions of dollars’ worth of property, we served nearly 800,000 people with emergency disaster assistance. And we’ve continued to pour resources into rebuilding areas devastated by the catastrophic 2017 hurricane season.

With your faithful support, we partnered with local governments to serve those impacted by our country’s border crisis. At the peak of the border crossings, we were able to provide over 30,000 hygiene kits, over 170,000 meals, and over 8,000 lodging accommodations to migrants.

Through an expansion of our Pathway of Hope program and sizable gifts from corporate donors, we came alongside those struggling with generational poverty, homelessness, hurt, and hopelessness – and offered them help and healing.

Though the successes of this year are great, countless challenges remain as we work to help the most vulnerable members of society continue to win their daily battles.

That’s why now, more than ever in our fight for the most good, I’m eternally grateful to our donors and supporters for your partnership on the front lines.

Humbly,

Tony Thompson
National Advisory Board Chairman
Dear Friends,

When I begin to consider the “rewards” The Salvation Army reaped in 2018, I think about Jeffrey – a homeless veteran and single father suffering from severe PTSD. After struggling for years to gain stability for himself and his 6-year-old son, he’s finally found hope and a future through The Salvation Army, where he’s secured gainful employment and long-term housing.

Jeffrey’s success story is simply one of the thousands of humble rewards we’ve reaped this year. Yet every reward is richer knowing that it was exceptionally hard-fought by our donors, volunteers, and staff.

In fact, in an uncertain economy where an end-of-year government shutdown, tax code changes, and turbulent stocks threatened to derail our key giving season, we continued to fight for the most good – and through the grace of God, we experienced a decrease in year-over-year fundraising of less than 1%.

Amid the humanitarian crisis along our country’s border, we marched on in our fight for the most good – and managed to transcend political battle lines simply by offering unconditional shelter, food, and love to our neighbors in need.

Despite historically devastating disasters, chronic homelessness battles, vicious cycles of generational poverty, and a dearth of relief for the working poor, we persevered in our fight for the most good – and provided disaster relief to nearly 800,000 people, holiday assistance to over 2.6 million people, and social services to more than 14 million people.

Victories like these continue to illuminate the power of God at work through the mission of The Salvation Army. I am honored to serve alongside each and every one of you as we keep our gaze fixed upon the endless rewards yet to come in our tireless fight for the most good.

Yours in His Service,

David Hudson, Commissioner
National Commander

ABOUT THE SALVATION ARMY

“Doing The Most Good.” In these four words, our mission – to feed, to clothe, to comfort, to care. To rebuild broken homes and broken lives. By walking with the addicted, we can lead them to recovery. In fighting hunger and poverty, we can feed and nurture the spirit. And, in living and sharing the Christian Gospel by meeting tangible needs, we give the world a lasting display of the love behind our beliefs.

The Salvation Army operates 7,685 centers in communities across the United States. These include food distribution, disaster relief, rehabilitation centers, anti-human trafficking efforts, and a wealth of children’s programs. Our work is funded through kettle donations, corporate contributions, and the sale of goods donated to our Salvation Army Family Stores. Eighty-two cents of every dollar we spend supports our various missions across the country. We are a tax-exempt 501(c)(3) organization, and contributions are deductible for Federal Income Tax Purposes to the extent permitted under Section 170(b)(2) for corporations.

An international movement, The Salvation Army is an evangelical arm of the universal Christian Church. Our message is based on the Bible, and our ministry is motivated by the love of God. We preach the Gospel of Jesus Christ and meet human needs in His name without discrimination.
