THE SALVATION ARMY

Doing the Most Good
“God has said, ‘Never will I leave you; never will I forsake you.’” – Hebrews 13:5

No matter what obstacles stand in the way, the Lord always prevails. He never gives up. And through His power, neither does The Salvation Army.

As we look back on the previous year, we recognize the soldiers of service – our volunteers, donors, and supporters – who have joined us to overcome obstacles, pursue possibilities, and come to the aid of the most vulnerable members of society.

United we stand in our fight for good. We will never surrender. Because with God, we always prevail.
Rising Up

“The waters are rising, but so am I.” – Catherine Booth

The Salvation Army has been working to better combat poverty and assist those imprisoned by it. From developing a deeper understanding of the epidemic to identifying locations and population segments with the greatest need, we’re pushing forward on all fronts. Last year’s most significant advances in the battle against poverty were:

• Changing the perceptions of poverty: Our 2016 Human Needs Index update revealed that the level of American need rose by 15 percent in 2015, reversing the improvement trend seen from 2012 to 2014. These findings showcase a different version of poverty than most might assume based on otherwise positive reports, such as increased employment and a raise in the national minimum wage.

• Advocacy meetings with Congress: To assist the record 49.1 million (one in every six) Americans now living below the poverty line, we held advocacy meetings with over 50 members of Congress to educate them on the increased urgency of human need in the United States. These sessions focused on meeting the immediate needs of Americans living in poverty and identifying long-term solutions to help them regain financial stability.

As the threat of poverty continues to increase nationwide, we approach the challenge with the same tenacity as our cofounder, Catherine Booth, resolute in our promise to do the most good.
Standing Strong

In 1891, Salvation Army Captain Joseph McFee set out a large iron kettle at the foot of Market Street in San Francisco. His purpose? To raise enough money to fund a Christmas dinner for the city’s most destitute people. Over a century later, this humble act of service has flourished into an iconic holiday tradition that supports nearly 25 million Americans throughout the year. During the 125th anniversary of The Red Kettle Campaign, we celebrated our 25,000 dedicated volunteers and generous corporate partners who helped us achieve:

- A record-setting year, with $149.6 million raised
- Christmas dinner on the table and presents under the tree for 3.2 million people
- 10 million nights of shelter and 55 million meals provided for those in need throughout the year, thanks to holiday donations
- The continuation and growth of programs such as substance abuse recovery, after-school enrichment, and emergency shelters funded by The Red Kettle Campaign

The Red Kettle Campaign wasn’t the only anniversary we celebrated. 2016 marked a new fundraising record in our partnership with the Dallas Cowboys. Through this continued commitment to making a difference, we have achieved:

- A tradition that has withstood the test of time to help over 500 million people in need
- A $2 billion fundraising milestone

Through the dedication and determination of our volunteers, partners, and supporters, we aren’t just continuing to stand strong. We’re making major strides together in the battle for good.
Fighting to the Finish

Never surrendering means never backing down. So while we’re frequently first responders in times of tragedy, we’re also the last to leave the scene. We stay until the healing is complete, even years later. Whatever it takes. Last year’s efforts to aid those affected by natural disasters included:

- Gearing up: In 2016, we renewed our agreement with FEMA, updating our collaboration plans for emergency preparation, protection, response, recovery, and mitigation operations when disaster strikes in the United States.

- All hands on deck internationally: When Hurricane Matthew – the most powerful Caribbean storm in a decade – hit Haiti last September, our volunteer base was already on the scene and able to provide immediate food, shelter, and counseling to those who’d lost everything.

- Continued presence in Joplin: Five years after the catastrophic tornado struck Joplin, we still have boots on the ground helping with long-term recovery efforts. From rebuilding homes and aiding with social services casework to constructing a new disaster relief facility, we’re continuing to support the community of Joplin – every step of the way.

Just as God continues to stand by our side, we continue to come to the aid of those in need.
Prevailing Always

Need never stops. Therefore, neither do we. No matter what challenges we face in serving the most vulnerable members of society, we will never surrender.

Whether it’s continuing long-standing traditions, partnerships, and recovery efforts or leading the charge in a new mission to change the perceptions of poverty or help those in need when disaster strikes, we continue to make strides in the fight for good. We look toward the future and its challenges with optimism. Because with God on our side, we always prevail.
Dear Friends,

These words of wisdom from our faithful and fearless founder inspire me in good times and bad times. And they continue to inspire all of us who – with God’s help – continue to help those in need.

When we surrender to God’s power, all things are possible. We gain the strength to face any challenge. In fact, it is only through surrendering to the Lord that we gain the fortitude to “never surrender” in our plight to love the lost, the hurt, and the broken.

I’m pleased to say that our accomplishments this year reflect our total surrender to God.

We continue to stand strong with victims of natural disasters at home and abroad. We’re fighting to assist nearly 50 million Americans battling poverty. And we’re shining a light in the darkness to those struggling with substance abuse, financial problems, and broken family relationships.

By God’s grace, we help shelter tired heads, comfort weary hearts, and feed hungry bellies. And although we’ve set new fundraising records in fiscal year 2016, the relationships we’ve built along the way are what truly make us blessed.

I consider it a blessing to work alongside all of you. To share your endless passion. To help bring peace to all those who desperately need it. And, fueled by a complete surrender to the Lord, to never, ever surrender in our dedication.

There remains much work to do. And much joy in doing it.

Humbly,

Bill Burke
National Advisory Board Chairman
Dear Friends,

In Galatians 6:9, the Apostle Paul encourages us to “not become weary in doing good, for at the proper time we will reap a harvest if we do not give up.”

It is a humble reminder that “doing good” achieves its full impact only if we never surrender.

Over the past year, that spirit of conviction has remained fiercely strong in the thousands of volunteers, donors, and supporters who keep The Salvation Army fighting for those whom nobody else will. It’s a 152-year-old fight we are deeply honored to carry on. With the Lord’s help, we will not become weary.

The world has seen great challenges this year. Our Human Needs Index has revealed increased need here at home, exposing a different side of poverty than what meets the eye—or even what’s told via statistics. Our donors have met these challenges with record-setting donations, including $149.6 million earned in The Red Kettle Campaign alone.

The persistent burdens of poverty, addiction, and natural disasters may strain our will, but so long as there is darkness in the world, we will not waiver. We will heed the Apostle Paul’s words.

Armed with love, The Salvation Army continues to stand as a global symbol of the resourcefulness, compassion, and bold problem-solving that today’s challenges demand. Thanks to your incredible generosity, we are shining a light on the potential found in all men and women on God’s Earth. Together, we truly are doing the most good.

With hope in our hearts, we will never grow weary. We will never grow overwhelmed. We will never surrender.

Yours in His Service,

David Hudson, Commissioner,
National Commander
“Then pealed the bells more loud and deep: ‘God is not dead, nor doth He sleep; The Wrong shall fail, The Right prevail, with peace on earth, good-will to men.’”

– Henry Longfellow, “Christmas Bells”

The Salvation Army Red Kettle Campaign is a continuation of a fight that began more than a century ago.

In 1891, unable to bear the pain of seeing so many hungry and destitute people throughout his city, Salvation Army Captain Joseph McFee resolved to find a way to provide a free Christmas dinner for every poverty-stricken individual in San Francisco. He had only one major hurdle to overcome: funding the project.

After great prayer and pondering about how he might feed over 1,000 people on Christmas Day, he remembered a large iron kettle back home in Liverpool known as “Simpson’s Pot,” into which passersby would throw in spare change to help the poor.

The next day, he placed a similar pot at the Oakland Ferry Landing at the foot of Market Street in San Francisco. Beside it, he placed a sign reading, “Keep the Pot Boiling.” The Red Kettle was born. And soon, he had collected enough money to fund his Christmas feast.
Within 10 years, the kettle idea spread from the West Coast to the East Coast, and soon after that, all across the world – to Korea, Japan, Chile, and many European countries. Over time, the addition of a volunteer bell ringer at each kettle helped garner attention for the lifesaving work of The Salvation Army.

“People are hungry, people are going without a place to sleep at night, they are out in the cold during the winter months, and we have a responsibility to help them get back on their feet.”

Today, bell ringers from all walks of life continue to brave the cold and the crowds at Christmastime, united in their resolve to help the less fortunate members of their communities.
“We welcome anyone and everyone who is willing to ring that bell at the kettle to help us through our bell-ringing season to fund our initiatives and programs throughout the year.”

More than a century after their inception, the kettles and bells have become an integral part of the overall holiday vernacular. If you ask anyone what comes to mind when they hear the words “The Salvation Army” during the holidays, they’ll say one of two things: “bell ringers” or “red kettles.” Even the famous Christmas carol “Silver Bells” was inspired by the sound of volunteers ringing Salvation Army bells around Christmastime.

In its milestone 125th year, The Red Kettle Campaign of 2015 set a new national fundraising record. Some 25,000 bell ringers of all ages, ethnicities, and backgrounds – along with numerous corporate partners – raised $149.6 million for the campaign, with all money going to work directly in the community where it was raised.
“Every little dollar that someone puts in is going to be put to good use.”

In addition to providing assistance throughout the holiday season, donations helped The Salvation Army provide more than 10 million nights of shelter; over 55 million meals; and funding for substance abuse recovery, after-school programs, and emergency shelter for children and families in need year-round.
“If you’re wondering why someone is ringing the bell, it’s because they want to make a difference.”

With a bell as our battle cry, The Salvation Army Red Kettles continue to fund the fight to deliver spiritual light and love to almost 25 million people each year – people who might otherwise be forgotten, but shall never go unserved.

ABOUT THE SALVATION ARMY

“Doing The Most Good.” In these four words, our mission – to feed, to clothe, to comfort, to care. To rebuild broken homes and broken lives. By walking with the addicted, we can lead them to recovery. In fighting hunger and poverty, we can feed and nurture the spirit. And, in living and sharing the Christian Gospel by meeting tangible needs, we give the world a lasting display of the love behind our beliefs.

The Salvation Army operates 7,580 centers in communities across the United States. These include food distribution, disaster relief, rehabilitation centers, anti-human trafficking efforts, and a wealth of children’s programs. Our work is funded through kettle donations, corporate contributions, and the sale of goods donated to our Salvation Army Family Stores. Eighty-two cents of every dollar we spend supports our various missions across the country. We are a tax-exempt 501(c)(3) organization, and contributions are deductible for Federal Income Tax Purposes to the extent permitted under Section 170(b)(2) for corporations.

An international movement, The Salvation Army is an evangelical arm of the universal Christian Church. Our message is based on the Bible, and our ministry is motivated by the love of God. We preach the Gospel of Jesus Christ and meet human needs in His name without discrimination.
