The Turning Point Center for Women and Children

Program Overview

The Salvation Army Turning Point Center for Women and Children is a 24-hour supportive living program that provides apartment-style housing for single mothers and their children who are experiencing homelessness or housing instability.

The program offers supportive services and stable housing for up to 24 months, allowing families the time, structure, and resources needed to build independence and long-term self-sufficiency. Through individualized support, residents work toward improving vocational opportunities, increasing earned income, securing permanent or long-term supportive housing, and achieving greater overall stability.

Participants gain independence through structured activities that promote accountability, life skills development, and stability while addressing barriers that threaten housing and economic security. Master's-level Case Managers provide intensive, strength-based, and trauma-informed support, helping participants develop personalized plans that lead to financial and personal independence. Turning Point's philosophy is rooted in empowering young women to make positive choices within a safe, supportive, and stable environment.

Eligibility

Eligible participants are young women primarily between the ages of 18 and 24 who are pregnant and/or parenting no more than four (4) children, have a history of homelessness or housing instability, and lack other family support resources. Applicants up to 28 years old may be considered on a case-by-case basis.

Participants must have verifiable income (such as TANF if unemployed) and demonstrate the motivation and ability to develop an Individual Family Plan (IFP) aligned with the program's goals.

Program Services

Turning Point Center services are organized around six programmatic focus areas, grouped within three core service areas: housing, case management, and workforce development.

The six focus areas include Education, Employment, Finances, Mental and Physical Health, Housing, and Family.

Case management is a foundational component of the program and is provided to all participants. Services are individualized and centered on each family's strengths, assets, and needs. The Workforce Development enhances case management by supporting career exploration, job readiness, and access to long-term employment opportunities. These services reinforce skill development and practical application to support stable housing outcomes upon program exit.

Program Success

Turning Point’s success is driven by the resilience and determination of the women and families who participate in the program. Since opening in 2001, Turning Point has supported nearly 400 families in creating and achieving their independence goals. More than 75% of program participants have transitioned into permanent housing, with many choosing to remain engaged as mentors for current families.

Participants demonstrate improved parenting skills, increased educational attainment, sustained employment, and enhanced financial literacy—empowering them to continue building savings and achieving long-term goals.

As founder Evangeline Booth stated, “There is no reward equal to that of doing the most good to the most people in the most need.”
