

USTA COMPETITIVE PATHWAY MERIT-BASED WILD CARDS – 2019

In preparation for the 2019 Competitive Pathway Restructure (ATP / WTA / ITF), which goes into effect on December 31, 2018, the USTA has undertaken an integrated and deliberate process to develop a formal system of wild card linkages in order to create developmental and progression opportunities for our best American* players.

The wild card linkages were designed for four types of American players: High Performance Juniors, Transition Pros, Collegiate players and adult players (late-maturers). The specific linkages were determined by benchmarking historical performance in our premiere American events (USTA and Collegiate) against the current average level in Transition Tour and Pro Circuit events.

Throughout 2019, as new playing patterns emerge, the USTA will be engaging in third party data collection and analysis throughout the year to help us to identify areas where linkages need to be adjusted, in order to optimize in 2020.

*All wild cards awarded in this system will be given to American players only.

GUIDING PRINCIPLES

In designing the system of wild card linkages, the USTA was guided by three important guiding principles:

Transparency

The wild card linkages will be published and communicated broadly. Post-tournament wild card reports will be posted and accessible to the public after each event. All wild card information can be found here:

The Principle of Earned Advancement

Earned Advancement references the concept of upward mobility through winning at progressive levels. Tournament linkages are evaluated based on rankings data and ratings information (using prior year historical data). This process promotes the concept of earned advancement by providing merit-based opportunities to compete in the USTA's Competitive Pathway system, which includes the ITF World Tennis Tour.

Accessibility for American players

The new global (ATP / WTA / ITF) system allows for a clearly defined pathway from the ITF junior circuit to professional opportunities. However, the USTA linkage system provides access for American players who choose to play in USTA or Collegiate pathways. If they are successful in those pathways they will earn opportunities to compete in the ITF World Tennis Tour.

PROCEDURES

The following USTA wild card allocations are merit-based for 2019 USTA National, International Championships, Men's & Women's Championships, selected Collegiate events, Competitive Pathway linkages, National Standings List Incentives and are subject to change as per USTA Player Development. Individual tournaments Directors also have local wild cards for their individual events.

Players who earn a merit-based wild card from one of the below mentioned events must submit an email to wildcards@usta.com within two weeks to arrange. The email must contain the players first three tournament choices in order of preference based on the applicable level mentioned. These tournaments must fall within a nine month window from the day a player earns their wild card. The player will then be instructed to complete the request online via the Wild Card Request Form by clicking here. The USTA will make every effort to award the wild card to one of the players' selected events, but it is not guaranteed. Furthermore, circumstances may arise where a player must submit additional tournament choices. It is the sole responsibility of the player to submit the email by the above mentioned time frame.

Players who earn a merit-based wild card into one of the below mentioned ITF Junior events must submit an email to jrcomp@usta.com within two weeks to arrange and/or confirm.

If the USTA or USTAPD finds that wild cards are being sold or bartered, appropriate disciplinary action will be taken.

CRITERIA

In order for a player to be eligible to accept a USTA issued wild card, the player must meet the following eligibility criteria:

- Eligibility – A player must meet the eligibility requirements to represent the United States in Fed Cup, Davis Cup, Junior Fed Cup, Junior Davis Cup or ITF World Junior Tennis Competition.
