

Free lecture series in Shelter Medicine!

University of Wisconsin–Madison Maddie's® Shelter Medicine Course Spring 2018 Thursdays 12-1pm CST

*Dr. Sandra Newbury, Director of the UW Shelter Medicine Program
Course Instructor and Coordinator*

Welcome! You are invited to attend this free public lecture series on shelter medicine. The UW Maddie's Shelter Medicine Elective course discusses concepts key to sheltering and helps veterinary students, shelter professionals, volunteers and members of the community reflect on current challenges and solutions for saving lives of homeless animals. The lectures will introduce you to guest speakers who are leaders in the field of shelter medicine. The goal of the knowledge gained is to raise awareness of animal shelters, animal health, and community programs to help save lives of homeless animals.

We invite non-credit students, shelter staff and volunteers, and members of the community to participate in lectures in person or online. The Shelter Medicine Elective course meets on Thursdays from 12-1pm and lectures are in a presenter-led format with time for discussion and Q&A after each presentation. Most presentations will be recorded and posted online. *Discussions Sections will not be recorded

Live webcasts can be viewed at: <http://live.videos.med.wisc.edu>

You will see the title of the lecture appear near the tops of the screen within a few minutes before the class is scheduled to begin and when the live stream becomes active you select it to join us live. Please contact Shelter Medicine Program Manager Stephanie Koester at smkoester@wisc.edu with any technical questions about logging in to webcasts.

Most lectures will be recorded and can be viewed at <https://videos.med.wisc.edu/events/229>. Recordings will be available at this link for most lectures within about 24 hours after the lecture ends.

Lunch is provided during the in-person course and in order to be included in the lunch order, non-credit attendees must notify Stephanie (smkoester@wisc.edu) of their attendance by the Monday of each week you plan to attend in person. Class meetings are held on Thursdays from 12:00pm to 1:00pm CST in room 2360 of the University of Wisconsin–Madison School of Veterinary Medicine (2015 Linden Drive, Madison WI).

We post weekly updates and reminders on Facebook about the course.
