In this lesson we will learn to talk about the weather and seasons in Spanish using some basic structures and vocabulary covered in our previous lesson on descriptions and weather forecasts in some interesting conversations about time and seasons in Spanish (EL CLIMA). This will give you more chances to practice Spanish listening. Comencemos... Introduction of vocabulary: The four seasons in Spanish As ESTACIONES or LAS ESTACIONES DEL Año expressions can be used to refer to seasons in Spanish. Many countries have four seasons cuatro estaciones del año. The four seasons in Spanish are: OTOÑO (autumn), INVIERNO (winter), SPRING (spring) and VERANO (summer). Here a video that shows the four seasons through beautiful images plus some important examples that we will use later in conversations and some important notes. You will also find the two seasons for tropical countries. Describing the weather and seasons in Spanish SER and ESTAR for weather descriptions and seasons Both SER and ESTAR are very useful to talk about the weather and seasons in Spanish. The verb ESTAR will be used to say what time is like at a given time, i.e. temporary weather conditions, for example: El clima está caliente. On the other hand, ERA will be used in a more descriptive and general way, for example: El clima es caliente en mi ciudad (the weather is warm in my city – it means it is generally warm). If we were to say El clima está caliente en mi ciudad, it would mean that it is hot at the moment, but it could change soon. Las estaciones del año y el clima The majority of the time, the phrases to describe the seasons in Spanish will follow the structure [Artículo definido (El/La) - season - ERA (to be) - adjective]. Here are some basic examples, similar to those presented in the video: Spring es hermosa, El verano es una estación muy caliente and El otoño es colorido. Listen to the first conversation about time and seasons in Spanish and pay attention to SER and ESTAR. Fernando: Ya llegó el verano! Es tiempo para ir a la playa Isabel: Sí, ya estamos en verano. Hoy está haciendo mucho calor. Fernando: Bueno, el verano es una estación muy caliente Don't even tell me, it's always hot in summer here. The good thing is that we can go to la playa verdad? Fernando: Esa es la mejor parte de esta estación del año Script translation: Il tempo e le stagioni in Spagnolo Fernando: L'estate è qui! It's time to go to Isabel beach: yes, it's summer. It's very hot today though. Fernando: Well, summer is a hot season here Isabel: Don't talk about it! It's always hot here in summer. The good thing is, we can go swimming at the beach, right? Fernando: This is the best part of this season, Sabas qué? La mayor, a de los países de América latina son países tropicales, así que solo tienen dos estaciones al año: la estación seca y la estación lluviosa. HACE - weather conditions in Spanish Another very common way to talk about time in Spanish is by using the phrase HACE from the verb HACER plus weather conditions in Spanish. It would be the equivalent of It's in English, for example: Hace calor (It's hot). The main difference would be that we don't use a Spanish adjective after Hace, but a noun like that saying Hace caliente is incorrect. You can also use Estar - Hacer in gerund form as shown in the conversation above, for example: Está haciendo calor. In the next conversation, you'll see SER, ESTAR, and HACER in use. Note that this conversation shows you how to talk about your favorite season in Spanish and why you prefer one season over another. Click on the game to hear the example. Isabel: El clima está muy frío hoy. En las noticias dicen que hoy va a caer nieve. Fernando: Es cierto, hoy está haciendo frío. Es porque estamos en invierno : A ti gusta el invierno? Isabel: Yes, el invierno es mi estación favorecida del porque puedo esquiar y patinar sobre hielo Fernando: uh-mm... pues yo í set spring. Ya quiero que mare primavera porque el clima es m'ldo y puedes hacer m's cosas afuera Script translation: Weather and seasons in Spanish Isabel: The weather is very cold today. They told the news that fernando would snow today: It's true! It's cold today. It's because it's winter. Do you like winter? Isabel: Yes, winter is my favorite season because I can ski and practice ice skating Fernando: um ... well I prefer spring. I want it to be spring already because the weather gets warmer and you can do more things outside Dire what you like about seasons in Spanish What's your favorite season? in Spanish In order to ask someone What's your favorite season? in Spanish, is it possible to use the favoriteCuál es tu estación favorita? e cuál es la estación que te gusta m's?. You can answer with Mi estación favorita e.g... and La estación que m's me gusta es.... Say why you like a season in Spanish with porque (why) plus a simple description of the weather as in Mi estación favorecida es el invierno porque cae nieve. Also remember that you can use Me gusta express I like it in Spanish. Listen to these phrases and questions in the next conversation. Isabel: Cuál es tu estaciòn favorite? Fernando: En mi paàs hay 4 estaciones del ao. I favored es el otoo porque las hojas cambian de color verde a dorado, amarillo y rojo... y el clima es agradable tambièn. Isabel: Ya veo. En mi paàs solo tenemos dos estaciones. A m'me gusta la estaciòn seca porque puedo ir a nadar a las playas Fernando: pero t' no vives cerca de la playa sèverdad? Isabel: No, I live lejos de la playa... El clima de mi ciudad es fresco y hay varios r'os tambièn pero prefiero el mar Script translation: Il tempo e le stagioni in Spagnolo Isabel: What is your favorite season? Fernando: There are 4 seasons in my country. My favorite is the fall because the leaves change from green to golden, yellow and red... and the weather is nice too. Isabel: I understand. In my country we only have two seasons. I like the dry season because I can go swimming at Fernando beaches: But you don't live near the beach, right? Isabel: No, I live away from the beach ... the time of my city is cool and there are several rivers, but I prefer the mare HAY - weather conditions and forecasts in Spanish The last way to say what the weather is like in Spanish is using [Hay a climate - an atmospheric condition in Spanish] or [El tiempo est s ' an atmospheric condition in Spanish] as in these examples Hay a climaado esta maàana and El tiempo est You can ask about the weather in Spanish using the c'emo est el climate hoy? and there's the tiempo hoy? As we explained in the previous lesson, we can make weather forecasts in Spanish using ESTAR (will), HABR (there will be), CAER (will fall) and HAR (there will be). Check how weather descriptions and Spanish forecasts are used in a conversation. Isabel: Lluve bastante en esta ciudad. El cielo est nublado y un veces fieno tormentas elèctricas. Fernando: Es porque estamos en la estaciòn lluviosa. La estaciòn seca terminà hace dos meses. Las tormentas son normales en esta estaciòn del ao. Isabel: Espero que no hayan huracanes... Fernando: No creo. El pronàstico del tiempo dadì que el cielo estar despejado en los pr'ximos d'as, con algo de viento y temperaturas moderadas. Isabel: Ese es un buen reporte. Translation conversation Isabel: It rains a lot in this city. The sky is cloudy and sometimes there are thunderstorms. Fernando: It's because we're in the rainy season. The dry season ended two months ago. Storms are normal at this time of year. Isabel: I hope we don't have hurricanes... Fernando: I don't think so. The weather forecast says the sky will be clear in the coming days, with little wind and moderate temperatures. Isabel: It's a good relationship.
