It is the only way to create or repair many archaeological artifacts and ornaments. The desktop appearance of archaeology is an alternate version of the creative desk, except that Workbench is dull brown, with a white sheet on top of it. Like a desk, the desktop has tools, such as two hammers in front of it. When it is active, the tools on the front will be on top of the desktop, and there will be remnant residing on top of it as well. Recipe Note: There is probably a clash with the Natura mod, where if it is installed you can only design it with creation tables from Natura trees. Using the main use of the archaeological desktop is to recover objects to their former glory. To use the archaeology desktop, you need a good amount of remnant residam, which come from fossils (stone tablets don't work), like this is the only thing that can activate the desktop. You must also have any kind of broken ancient artifact (see below). Put the leftovers in the bottom slot, like 'fuel' and put the object in the left slot. After a while, the artifact will be restored. Items that can be restored to a gallery Add an image to this gallery Community content is available under CC-BY-SA unless otherwise specified.
