Determiners worksheets with answers

Content index 10 Choose the right answer. Demonstrative words are used when a speaker has the ability to physical point the noun they have in mind. The four most common demonstrative are: what, these, this, and those. When we want to specify how much or how small we have nouns we use quantifiers. They include words such as: less, little, a lot, and that's it. The obsessed will help you show ownership and it tells you the noun belongs to someone or a thing. Examples of possessive are: mine, yours, his, her, his, and ours. These sheets begin by focusing on placing words in sentences and determining the best grammatical and syntax use of those words. We are expanding on the use of the same skill at the point level. We would caution you to check out all the words of placement in each section along the way. Once students get a good handle on this, we move on to rewriting sentences using the new word that they offer modeled off. We spend a lot of time using all four defining formats in all different sheet formats. Page 2 Home This sheet is a PDF document. You'll need Adobe Acrobat Reader to view a sheet or answers.
