DIGITAL LIVES: A POST-PANDEMIC PRIMER FOR LEADERS

By Brian Wade

The rapid spread of Covid's Delta variant has derailed family vacations, delayed office reopening's, and heightened fears that our suspended reality will go on for years to come.

But even with the continued disruption and changing government guidelines, business leaders are resolved to press ahead, even as they find themselves at a challenging intersection.

NOTEWORTHY ANNOUNCEMENTS

VOLTA CHARGING GOES PUBLIC VIA SPAC ON NYSE +

"Volta's entrance to the public markets is a significant milestone for the company and the future of electric vehicles in our community. When Virgo first invested in 2016, we realized the power of the coming wave of electric vehicles and Volta's differentiated business model, which offered superior unit economics via additional revenue streams. The Volta management team has gone on to build the leading electric charging platform to support a generational shift in consumer demand for media experiences and mobility. We are proud of our partnership with CEO Scott Mercer, President Chris Wendel and Chief Strategy Officer Drew Lipsher, and are excited to see the continued growth of the company."

THE EXECUTIVESPOTLIGHT

CARLO PEREZ – Swift Medical Founder & CEO

Carlo Perez began his career as a technologist, but after recognizing there was a ceiling for him to grow on a technical path, he quit his job at the time and hitchhiked across Asia, only to discover his calling for entrepreneurship. He realized he could do more than he thought he could in the past and wanted to build a bridge between technology and solving healthcare problems in order to help individuals. Six years ago, Carlo founded Swift Medical where he developed a smartphone software that allows clinicians to evaluate chronic wounds more efficiently and effectively. Carlo's overarching goal is to transform how wound care is delivered globally.
