Through a carefully selected series of four programs, the Vanderbilt Certificate in Leadership Excellence will help you build key skills and fulfill your potential as a leader. You’ll have the opportunity to learn, discuss and experience both fundamentals of leadership and advanced approaches with noted authors, distinguished academics and knowledgeable peers.

Four programs. Nine days.

Executive Leadership—3 days
Taught by noted author and Vanderbilt business professor Dick Daft, this fast-paced and highly interactive program will help you become a stronger leader and will teach you strategies for building a shared vision, motivating people and leading change effectively.

Leadership Coaching—2 days
Taught by executive coach and Vanderbilt professor Mark Cannon, this intensely focused program will help you strengthen your organization by developing the distinct set of competencies to more effectively coach, motivate, recruit and retain high-performance employees.

Leading Change—2 days
Taught by noted author and Vanderbilt business professor Dick Daft, this engaging program will help you lead change initiatives that succeed, build support for embracing and sustaining change and adopt best-practice strategies for applying course learning to an actual project in your organization.

Negotiation Skills for Managers—2 days
Taught by negotiation expert and distinguished scholar Ray Friedman, this program provides an analytical framework for approaching negotiation scenarios and will help you build skills as a negotiator with both internal and external constituents, handle disputes and help your organization function more effectively.
