The Membership Program
By launching a membership program, our main goal is to create new opportunities for students to engage with the Gallery and our exhibitions. We are not only hoping to enrich your visitor experience but also add more value to your life on campus by providing you a venue for leisure, socialization, contemplation, scholarly pursuits, and more.

Who We Are

About Us
Vanderbilt University Fine Arts Gallery presents a series of exhibitions each year. In addition, our permanent collection has continued to flourish and increase the depth, diversity, and number of its holdings; now totaling more than 6,800 works, it serves to illustrate the history of world art in its most creative and comprehensive aspects.

The Gallery’s mission is to promote engagement with the visual arts among students and the greater community through exhibitions, collections, research, and instruction.

What is the membership all about?

Striving to create a community
A significant number of our student visitors indicated that they would be interested in meeting other art-enthusiasts like themselves in the Gallery and connecting with them. The membership program is integral to our efforts for fostering such an ecosystem. We are passionate about bringing people together around art!

Staying in touch
We are invested in building channels for a two-way conversation. The membership program will provide us with a more proactive platform to exchange ideas on how to make the Gallery add more value to your Vanderbilt experience.

It is all about getting you excited about the Gallery
We recognize that being in a traditional gallery setting might not be everyone’s favorite pastime and that is perfectly fine. Whether it is or is not, we are constantly working on creating new touchpoints that are conducive to unique experiences for individuals with a diverse set of interests. It is this diversity that makes establishing a community through the Gallery membership program enriching and invaluable.

Having events catered to your specific interests
Getting to know you and your interests more through the membership program will allow us to invite you to our events that are especially relevant and enjoyable for you.
