Each fall PTY is pleased to host a conference that highlights ways to identify and serve gifted students from traditionally underrepresented groups. This year we are excited to welcome two keynote speakers to the conference: April Wells and Dr. Megan Foley Nicpon.

Ms. Wells will be speaking about ways to develop culturally responsive classrooms and Dr. Foley Nicpon will be sharing strategies for working with twice-exceptional students and supporting social-emotional development of gifted students.

Breakout sessions will be led by keynote speakers and Vanderbilt PTY faculty and staff including Dr. Tamra Stambaugh, Dr. Eric Fecht, and Dr. Sarah DeLisle as well as school-based educators and leaders. The PTY faculty and staff will share strategies for working with ELL students, students from low income backgrounds and students from rural areas.

Guest speakers from area school districts will discuss how they have translated theory into practice and developed programs and systems for identifying and serving gifted students from a variety of backgrounds.

Join us for an engaging learning experience and opportunities to network with other colleagues in gifted education.
