This two day conference, designed with the classroom teacher and building administrator in mind, focuses on curriculum resources and instructional strategies that promote achievement gains for high achieving and gifted students in heterogeneous classrooms and gifted classrooms.

Learn more about developing higher level questions and products, designing units that emphasize abstract conceptual understanding, teaching through a problem based learning approach, and applying models and frameworks that promote content expertise. We will showcase Vanderbilt Programs for Talented Youth's new elementary integrated science and ELA units published by Prufrock Press and provide workshops on our previously published ELA middle school units and models. The recently published Jacob's Ladder Reading Comprehension Program nonfiction series and newly released second editions of the original Jacob's Ladder books will also be shared.

The hands-on sessions are led by curriculum developers, PTY faculty and staff, and nationally known experts in the field of gifted education.
