WASHINGTON, DC – Daniel Bahar, former Assistant US Trade Representative for Services and Investment, will join international economic policy advisory firm Rock Creek Global Advisors LLC (RCGA) as a Managing Director.

RCGA team members in the United States and Europe advise many of the world’s leading companies. Founding firm member Daniel Price highlighted Bahar’s leadership role at USTR in US services, investment, and digital trade policy and negotiations, as well as his experience representing USTR on the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States (CFIUS).

“We are delighted to welcome Daniel to RCGA,” said Price, former principal international economic policy advisor to President George W. Former USTR Michael Froman said, “Daniel is a leading expert on trade, investment, and digital economy issues with vast experience negotiating with China, the European Union, and other key partners. At home and abroad, he is admired as a strategic leader who combines deep knowledge and a strong network of personal relationships to develop solutions and advance shared interests.”

In addition to Price, Bahar joins RCGA team members: Michael Smart, former international trade counsel on the US Senate Finance Committee; Barbara Weisel, former Assistant US Trade Representative for Southeast Asia and the Pacific; Katherine Martin, former Head of International Regulatory Policy and Supervisory Cooperation at the US Securities and Exchange Commission; and Ambassador Jean-David Levitte, former Diplomatic Advisor to French Presidents Sarkozy and Chirac.

“I am very excited to join RCGA,” said Bahar. “I look forward to assisting RCGA clients in managing the challenges and opportunities of the current rapidly evolving policy environment.”

Bahar served at USTR for 15 years across four US Administrations, most recently leading development and implementation of US services, investment, and digital trade policy, and overseeing a range of bilateral and multilateral negotiations, as well as USTR’s interagency CFIUS role. Bahar also previously served as USTR’s lead investment negotiator and represented the United States on investment matters in international forums, such as the G20.

Bahar received a J.D. from Harvard Law School, an M.A. from the College of Europe, studying as a Fulbright Fellow, and a B.S. from Drexel University.
