

Wawa's Commitment to Food Safety

Wawa takes its commitment to food safety with utmost seriousness. Food safety is a critical part of our business, and an area where our associates have earned an excellent reputation, both in our industry and with our regulatory agencies.

We are committed to continuously reviewing and improving all steps we take to ensure food safety. We strive to be the best, and make it our mission to take the lead and push ourselves to higher standards.

- Wawa deals exclusively with well-respected suppliers and holds each and every vendor to the highest standards. We firmly follow the letter and spirit of HACCP principles insisting on proper tracking, documentation, quality and food handling procedures. We inspect our suppliers routinely to guarantee that they meet our stringent guidelines for food safety. All of Wawa's suppliers are subject to our own vendor audit to ensure they meet our standards.
- All foodservice associates are trained in safe food handling procedures. They inspect food safety areas and conditions several times daily, including verifying equipment and product are at proper temperature, codes are up to date, and surfaces and working areas are properly cleaned and sanitized.
- Wawa store management completes Food Manager Certification training, a thorough, nationally-recognized food-safety certification program.
- Wawa conducts rigorous audits of each store several times a year. These Food Safety and Sanitation inspections and measurement system enable us to continue to meet high standards.
- Wawa is a member of many food industry and regulatory partnership groups charged with demonstrating the industry's commitment to safe food service through safety and training.
- Wawa has retained Dr. David Acheson (former Associate Commissioner for Food, US Food & Drug Administration) and The Acheson Group as food safety consultants to ensure continued improvement of all food safety programs.
- We routinely share our commitment with others in our industry, in order to demonstrate the importance we place on food safety.
