ABOUT

Mega Man Metals is a small business that specializes in industrial metal recycling. The company is run by two brothers, Adam and Nathan Cordner, who have a background in the garbage business. They started in the garbage industry in 2005 and transitioned to recycling in order to contribute to saving the environment, conserving energy, and creating jobs. Mega Man Metals recycles and purchases all types of ferrous and non-ferrous metals, as well as electronic waste. They are committed to running honest scales and offering competitive prices based on market trends. The company is open to the public and provides dumpster services for the construction industry. They also offer free roll-off dumpster services for scrap metal on job sites, warehouses, and workshops. Mega Man Metals can help fulfill LEED AP requirements and is expanding with the opening of a second location in 2013. Overall, Mega Man Metals is dedicated to sustainable metal recycling and supporting renewable energy initiatives.
