ABOUT

The Stock Pile is a Building Materials Reuse Warehouse, a not for profit organization with the purpose of improving housing for low to moderate income families and diverting reusable building materials from landfills. The Stock Pile provides gently used or overstock low-cost building materials at 1/3 of the retail price to its customers. They also offer deeper discounts through a free membership program for low-income individuals, disabled individuals, and those over the age of 62. Their building materials come from commercial home improvement stores, local home builders, and individual donors.
