

BUS5001 Ethical, Legal and Industrial Frameworks

Unit Description

BUS5001 Ethical, Legal and Industrial Frameworks introduces students to the regulatory, moral, and professional codes necessary for navigating and leading businesses in a national and global context. This unit takes students from a personal and professional point of responsibility, underpinned via legal principles and operational recording and reporting management systems. On completion of this unit, students will be able to apply their knowledge of current frameworks to contemporary practice.

Credit Points	8 credit points
Duration	12 weeks (10 teaching weeks and 2 revision and assessment weeks)

Unit Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, students will be able to:

1. Critically evaluate legal frameworks, professional standards and ethical principles that shape decision-making in national and international business environments.
2. Apply legal reasoning and ethical analysis to interpret laws, resolve disputes and recommend responsible and compliant courses of action.
3. Assess the effectiveness of organisational systems and governance structures in managing risk, accountability and stakeholder obligations.
4. Examine the legal and ethical dimensions of employment relationships, industrial regulation and workplace rights, including emerging challenges and reforms.
5. Reflect on personal and professional responsibilities to demonstrate leadership, integrity and accountability in complex legal and ethical situations.
