Kathleen Rice, Ph.D., CTF, LJUST Associate, brings over 30 years of experience as a facilitator, trainer, and social justice educator. Her passion is supporting individuals and groups engaging in work that is challenging and liberating, personal and organizational, and systems-changing. Her style as a facilitator and trainer has been described as engaging, authentic, inclusive, calming, thoughtful, creative and full of thought-provoking questions.

Kathleen was raised in Central Illinois in a middle-class Protestant family with two college-educated parents, until her parents' divorce when she was 13. Her formal education consists of a B.A. in Elementary Education from Illinois Wesleyan University, an M.S. in Higher Education and Student Affairs from Indiana University, and a Ph.D. in College Student Personnel from the University of Maryland. Kathleen is a Certified Facilitator with the Institute of Cultural Affairs Technology of Participation (ToP) and utilizes methodologies to support inclusive and equitable participation and consensus building of diverse stakeholders.

She has served as the lead facilitator in the development of many multi-year strategic plans and annual implementation plans with national and state associations as well as academic and student development units of colleges and universities. Kathleen specializes in supporting higher education institutions in building collaborative partnerships with local and global communities, and has worked with institutions including Stanford University, University of Minnesota, California State University Office of the Chancellor, University of California - Los Angeles, and the University of San Francisco. Since 2001, Kathleen has been a participant and teaching team member of The UNtraining, a national organization committed to healing personal and social oppressions. She leads groups on UNTraining White Liberal Racism.

For fun, Kathleen enjoys eating good food and going for long walks with the love of her life, maintaining her sporadic yoga practice, and doting on her nieces and nephews.
